LOCAL NEWS.

—Fire destroyed the stove factory of Messrs Daugherty and Wilson, at Mound City, last evening. It broke out in one of the drying apartments near the smoke stack, and when discovered it had made considerable headway. Mound City has no portable fire engine that can be used and the only means the people there had of fighting the flames were buckets of water and a little steam pump in Meyer & Nordman's furniture factory, and for this latter not enough hose was on hand to reach the fire. In this dilemma Cairo was appealed to and Mayor Halliday responded promptly. The signal was given and the Cairo fire department turned out in full force, but the Arabs only went up by the "cannon ball" train on the Wabash, taking the "Little Arab and two hose cars on a flat car. One of Messrs. Halliday's tugs, with a pump boat generally stationed at the coal dump, also went up. When they arrived at the fire the factory was all gone and large heaps of staves and lumber in the yard were being devoured by the flames. The pump boat got first water on the fire and did effective work thenceforth. The engine found some difficulty in finding water, and soon after it got to work at one of the large cisterns of the furniture factory, the nozzle broke in some way and work had to cease. About this time the Delas arrived with their engine, on a special train, and in a few hours the fire was extinguished. Nearly all the belts and the saws, and much of the lighter machinery, were removed from the burning factory and saved.

The Teacher's Institute.

The Teacher's Institute which has been in session since last Monday, closed yesterday at noon. The exercises were conducted by Prof. Reeder, of the faculty of the Normal University of Bloomington. The Professor made a fine impression among his class by the admirable manner in which he explained and elucidated his methods of teaching, and he certainly imparted new and progressive ideas to the teachers and others who were so fortunate as to attend the Institute.

The exercises yesterday consisted of a drill in the elements of reading, arithmetic and language and were of an exceedingly interesting character. The teachers present were hopeful that the Professor could remain all week, but he was compelled to return home as business of importance demanded his attention there.

Of the 62 teachers in the county but 10 were in attendance, and of those but five were Cairo teachers. The teachers who were not present certainly missed a rare treat, an occasion of great profit as well as interest. The following teachers were present yesterday, viz: Miss Lizzie M. Sheppard, Miss N. J. McKee, Miss Jennie Schutter, Miss Mattie Allen and Mr. Reed Green of next years corps of Cairo teachers; and Misses Jennie and Maud Warwick, Miss Rowling, Miss Clodfelter and Mr. Vick, of the county schools. Among others present were Mrs. Hacker, Mrs. Lohr, and Mrs. Gibbs, County Superintendent.

Some one has declared conceit worse than consumption, and the comparison is a true one. Many are the "conceited" who cry down legitimate remedies, and who de- clude suffering humanity, whose only sal- vation is the immediate use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Weather Report.

Summary of Meteorological Record of Yesterday Afternoon for this Weather District.

Sky generally clear. Barometer below 30 in the north and northeast. Rain reported from St. Paul, 08; Vicksburg, 01; New Orleans, 13. Thermometer ranged between 73 and 94.

THE BULLETIN thermometer stood as follows at the different hours of the day given in the diagram below:

Boy Killed.

About 9 o'clock last night, as the special train which had taken the Delta engine to Mound City, returned, and when near Thirty-second street, a boy named Jno. Henry Smith jumped from one of the flat cars, fell on the track and was killed.

The train was moving at the rate of probably twenty-five miles per hour. At the point where the boy jumped off the street was several feet higher than the track, the track having not yet been raised to the raised level. It was quite dark, and it seems the boy was not aware of the condition of the street. He jumped off in spite of the protests of those near him, but failing to gain a footing on top of the bank, he fell back under the wheels. One flat car, the tender and engine passed over him and ran about a square before it was stopped and ran back. The boy's mangled remains lay strewn about the track. One leg and arm were cut off and his head was mangled to a jelly.

The boy was the son of a widowed mother who is employed at the boarding house on the corner of Thirty-second street and Commercial avenue, to where the gastly remains were conveyed.

After Twenty Years.

MILROY, MIFALIN Co, Penna.—Mrs. John Gemmill, in 1864 injured her spine and was partially paralyzed for nearly twenty years. She was advised to use St. Jacobs Oil, the conqueror of pain. The first application gave instantaneous relief. Before the second bottle was exhausted she was cured.

Fuss and Feathers but no Logic.

From the N. Y. Evening Post, Aug. 23d.

There was no answer made to Mr. Schurz's damaging speech at the Blaine Brooklyn meeting last evening, but a "beautiful floral helmet, topped with a white floral plume," was displayed from the stage, and was greeted with howls of delight. When the presiding officer pronounced the names of Blaine and Logan, he paused, glanced nervously to the right and left, and then curtains were drawn back and portraits of the candidates were revealed, amid fresh howls. After these demonstration of "enthusiasm," Stewart L. Woodford came forward and said that he had never favored Mr. Blaine's nomination, but being a good Republican and having a low opinion of the Democratic party, he should support Blaine for the Presidency. Then Senator Hawley made a long speech of nearly two hours' duration about the Republican party, including a five minutes' defense of Blaine, which we have treated elsewhere. Then Judge Foraker made a speech. When the earnest speaking for Blaine to begin? It cannot be possible that his managers hope to elect him by this kind of campaigning.

Willing To Sell Him.

A Louisville physician has a pet monkey, Jocko, which always took great delight in watching the ladies painting and powdering their faces, says the Times of that city. One Sunday after the family had gone to church, Jocko got a can of green paint and a brush, hopped into the dressing bureau and painted himself from head to tail. The doctor's wife, who thinks a great deal of the pet, got a pint of turpentine and tried to wash the paint off. He stood the operation heroically until the turpentine began to soak into his hide. Then, with one wild bound and a horrible screech, he sprang about fifteen feet in the air and struck on the kitchen roof, over chimney tops, along telegraph wires, down a pole and went tearing under the block as though pursued by a cyclone. Returning to the house he made war upon the doctor, for whom by the way, he hasn't much love, and before the contest ended the doctor's hand was badly lacerated. The doctor offers $25 to anybody who will steal the monkey.

Arsene Houssaye has a mania for building chateaus. He now has seven at Beaujon and is building an eighth. The seven were named respectively the houses of "Youth," "Love," "Knowledge," "Family," "Renown," "Wealth" and "Wisdom." The eighth which he is now building, is the house of "Death," and will be the mausoleum in which its author's dust will be placed.

A New Surgical Lamp.

One of the newest adaptations of electric illuminations is in the shape of a very small lantern, which can be introduced into the mouth, throat, and in some cases, the stomach, for the purpose of aiding surgical and dental operations which cannot be carried on without light and for which it has been extremely difficult heretofore to obtain light by mirrors or other means. Experiments have been making for some years to perfect apparatus of this kind. Since 1881 E. T. Star, an expert in electrical science, has been working at intervals upon minute electrical lamps, and at last succeeded in getting highly satisfactory results. Patents have been obtained. The instrument has been critically examined by dentists and surgeons and has already been used in practice.

The lamp primarily consists of a delicate glass bulb, from which the air has been withdrawn and as nearly a perfect vacuum created as possible. The bulb varies in shape, being spheroidal, flat and compass-shaped, and also cylindrical, with a conical termination. Through the thin walls of the lantern run the conducting wires, connected by a carbon arc, on which the electricity centres, and which thus becomes the place of light. The glass lantern is very small, the cylindrical shaped being scarcely half an inch in length, and with a diameter not nearly so great as that of an ordinary lead-pencil. The compass-shaped lamp is about one-quarter of an inch thick, and has a diameter of an inch, while the spheroidal seems scarcely larger than a good sized pen. The lamp is attached to a handle, from seven to nine inches long, and about half an inch thick, through which run the wires connecting with the battery. The handle and the lamp can be separated, and thus but one handle is necessary for use with the different forms of the lamps. The intensity of the power, and hence the brilliancy of the arc of light, can be regulated by moving along the handle a ring which connects with the wires. The handle has several joints and its positions can be arranged in almost any way so as to adapt it to the shape of the cavity which it is proposed to illuminate. Mirrors can also be fastened to the lamp and light reflected to places where the lamp cannot be introduced. To prevent the too great diffusion of light and the radiation of heat, the lamp may be partially covered with a hard rubber or gutta-percha case.

When the lamp is placed in the mouth of a patient every portion of the throat, even to the lowest parts, and every recess of the upper places can be plainly seen. This will greatly facilitate the work of surgery and dentistry, and enable an operator to conceive a much more thorough diagnosis of a case than the use of any other means previously known. Placed behind the teeth, the intense light renders not only the teeth, but even the gum above, highly transparent. If the teeth are good and undecayed, no lines will be visible—but the presence of a filling or of the mere beginning of decay may at once be seen. When the lamp is placed within the mouth and the lips are closed, the entire front structure of the mouth is brought to view. The bone and tooth formations are easily discoverable, and even the interior of the nasal passages. In the same way the instrument is of great value in the treatment of obstetrical disease, and in studies of the stomach. No unpleasant sensations are experienced by patients, even in cases of protracted use, no other effect being noticeable than that which follows the drinking of a hot cup of coffee. The difficulties in bringing this application of the electric light to practical use were due principally to the fact that none of the electrical manufacturing companies in America make the right kind of a lamp. Mr. Starr tried them all, and not getting what he wanted in the very best shape, was compelled to go to Europe. More than a score of different lamps, carbons and means of conveying power had to be tried before the best was found.—Philadelphia Press.

Treed by a Bull.

A joke is told on a party of this city. They were holding a private picnic on Picnic Point. A young man wandered off and finding a shady nook by the lake divested himself of his clothing and took a bath. When he came out and was about to put on the first garment, which was a reddish color, he heard a roaring and loud rustling in the brush behind him. He looked, and behold, an infuriated bull was coming toward him, and was already within a dozen rods of him. His shirt was about half on; he did not stop to make any adjustment of the garment, but proceeded forthwith to climb a tree. He was about six feet from the ground when his bullship reached the scene and commenced pawing the ground at the foot of the tree. The young man cried for help, and his cries were even heard by his companions. All hands started, but when the sad predicament of the young man was noticed a portion of the party retired, and the remainder with sticks and stones put the maddened animal to flight, and the treed young man slid down and clothed himself. He promised to put up the cigars and ice cream if the party would not tell the joke on him. Of course they will keep "mum."—Madison (Wis.) Democrat.

Preaching.

The tenth census shows, for instance, that there are in this country 64,698, or in round numbers 65,000 clergymen. Suppose, for the sake of illustration, that each one preaches but two sermons a week, which is perhaps rather below than above the average, and we shall have in the course of a single year a total of 6,760,000 sermons. Further, suppose each sermon of only thirty minutes' duration, also perhaps less than the average length, and at the rate of a hundred words a minute, each sermon will have about 3,000 words or twelve book pages each of 250 words, and all the sermons preached every year will give a total in printed matter of 81,120,000 book pages, or 162,240 volumes of 500 pages each, while if an average congregation of fifty listen to one sermon, a total of 3,360,000 worshippers is presented at a single service.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
