

Non-Irrigated NETTED GEM SEED POTATOES---

"Just what everybody looking for---they will easily double your yield." Have two cars coming in---get your orders booked at once, to be sure of getting the Mountain Grown Netted Gem Seed Potatoes, so famous in this valley. These are better seed than you can get in the east and the price is right with the market.

Growers buying their seed and supplies here are always protected when it comes time to sell their products. Ask the man who sold his crops here last year. They are the best advertisers we have got. Fresh eggs, live poultry, good alfalfa hay, good table potatoes, etc., taken in exchange for feed and seed or seed potatoes.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The latter part of last week a Mr. Smith and Byron Hunter visited the High school and gave short talks. Mr. Smith is horticulturist for the Harri-man railroad lines of the Northwest and Mr. Hunter is agriculturist of the bureau of farm management, in the U. S. department of agriculture. He has supervision over three states with headquarters at Walla Walla. Both spoke of the advantages enjoyed by present day pupils over those of only a few generations ago, and congratulated the Kennewick High school particularly on its magnificent building and its modern conveniences.

Illness seems contagious among the teachers this past week. Wonder if it is spring fever. Miss Steelman was absent the latter part of last week. Miss Wetmore was ill this week and her classes did not meet until Wednesday, when Professor C. O. Kimball directed the chorus, of which he has taken charge during Miss Wetmore's absence. Miss Ely has suffered a relapse and Mrs. Woodward has taken charge of her work for the present. Mrs. Jenne, the mixed sixth and seventh grades, resigned last week to go to her son, who is seriously ill, in California. Mrs. McClaskey has been appointed to fill her place the rest of the school term.

The seventh A, seventh B, and sixth B have planned a program to be given Friday (today) in the Auditorium. There will be songs by the grades altogether; a double duet by Grace Brown, Fern Johnson, Marjorie Wilkinson and Estella Taylor; recitations by Melford Smith, Margaret Beinhart, Gladys Motter and Wilber Wiesel; an original story by John Shaughnessy; a dialogue, "The Trials of School Mistress," by Evelyn Crossland and Perry Soth; instrumental solos by Helen Koreski and Myrtle Elliott; a debate, "Resolved, that the more to be honored than the soldier." On the affirmatives are Goldie Piersal, Dora Williams and James Reed, from the mixed grades. The negatives are Ruth Cresswell, Alice Haley and William Sly, from the seventh A. Three of the High school students will be present as judges.

The seventh A basketball boys have challenged the girls' basketball team of the same grade for a game. The date has not yet been fixed, but probably will be the first of next week.

Walter Washburn has dropped out of school.

The eighth grade had a little spread last Friday afternoon. There were all sorts of good things to eat and plenty of fun.

Orchard Heating

The buds are in fine shape now. A very little expense and attention will insure a full crop. Can you afford to take chances? Perhaps there will be but one frost, but that may kill every unprotected bud.

We have the Huntley Heater at 13c each

Oil is only 5 1/2c per gallon this year

We are also taking orders for the Patent Smudge Fuel and Heaters to burn in. This is a dry preparation that has many advantages. We hope to see it given a trial by everyone. Price of fuel $1 per hundred pounds in sacks. Heaters 48c each.

Orders for these must be placed before Saturday of this week.
