

INFORMATION FOR VETS

VA Advises Veterans To Check Insurance

An alarming number of World War II veterans in the Pacific Northwest each month risk loss of their National Service Life Insurance through tardiness or carelessness in paying premiums, the Veterans Administration reports.

A survey recently completed by the VA disclosed that over 37 percent of the 170,000 active G. I. insurance accounts of Northwest veterans are being paid during the 31-day "grace period" allowed on delinquent accounts. Eleven percent, or 19,000 veterans, regularly pay their premiums during the last two weeks of the grace period.

Most alarming, the VA said, is the fact that over 3,400 veterans each month mail insurance payments "after" the 31-day grace period. Policies of these veterans are lapsed by the VA, leaving the veterans and their families without the protection insurance provides.

The VA also pointed out that hundreds of veterans fail to sign checks, send checks or money orders made out to companies or organizations having no connection with the VA, or fail to provide identification by which the funds may be posted to their accounts.

may find out by writing the VA Insurance Service, District 11, Exchange Building, Seattle. Using the yellow VA premium payment envelope and making checks or money orders payable to the Treasurer of the United States will mean faster, more accurate service, the VA said.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Q. Can you tell me how the Veterans Administration operates in foreign countries?

A. The VA administers benefits available to veterans, their dependents and beneficiaries in foreign areas through the United States Foreign Service.

Norma Lee COUNSELOR..

Dear Mrs. Lee,

My problem is my father. He wants me to go to college after I graduate this spring. I don't want to. He always wanted to go to college but didn't get to finish high school. So now he keeps harping about all the educational chances he is giving me and that I'm not taking advantage of them proper. I don't like school very well and have only gotten average marks. I stayed and finished high school only to keep peace in the family.

Mother thinks I should do what dad wants. She never crosses him and he thinks he is a little dictator. This is the first time any one in the family has ever crossed him for any length of time. Every night at supper table he brings it up again. Its getting so that we all hate to sit down at the table.

I want to go to beauty school and learn to be an operator. I like to work with hair and fix both my sister's and mother's hair all the time. I feel that I could be happy doing that and I don't need a college degree for it either.

Can you, Mrs. Lee, tell me some way I can persuade Dad to let me run my own life. Otherwise I'll just run away and go to a larger city and make my own way. But this would hurt mother and I don't like to do that as it might be bad for my little sister who is just 14 and she might think she could do likewise if she didn't get her own way. I wouldn't want to be responsible for her doing anything like that. I'm almost 19 and could take care of myself!

Student

Dear Student,
You are quite right about not wanting to be responsible for your sister. And she might try and follow your example and leave home if crossed. So I would only use that method if all else failed. You might hold it in reserve in case your father continues to refuse you.

I'm afraid your father wants you to go to college only because he never got that chance. Actually there are a lot of educated fools in college. It is all right to go to college if you are going for a specific thing. But to just go for the sake of going is foolish. If you wanted to be a teacher it would be necessary to go to college, but to be a beauty operator it is not necessary. Operators make a good living and if it is added knowledge your father wants you to have, there are numerous extension courses you could take. But I'm afraid it isn't just added knowledge he is after. It is the prestige of having a daughter in college. Actually college probably isn't at all like your father anticipated it. If possible, see if you can't make arrangements for him to visit one of the colleges and talk to the student guides. They can probably make him see better than you just what a waste it would be to send you to college. Once the glamor is removed, he might feel different about it.
