

RASCALLY MOSQUITO

Is Responsible for the Malaria.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—If there were no mosquitoes in the world, probably there would be no malaria. This is because malaria is caused by a microbe which is carried about from person to person by the mosquito. In other words, malaria is a blood disease, in that mosquitoes suck up the microbes from the blood of one person and then fly off and inoculate another person with those germs. Meantime, the mosquitoes have malaria. Plus that, the germs of typhoid fever, fleas disseminate anthrax and mosquitoes are the purveyors of filaria which causes the elephantiasis and of the plasmodium which causes malaria.

The transmission of the microbe malaria has been proved by the experiments of Dr. Roland Ross of the Indian medical staff. He worked in the laboratory of Col. D. D. Cunningham in Calcutta. He fed some mosquitoes on patients afflicted with malaria, and then allowed these same insects to puncture the bodies of captive birds. The inoculation was quite complete. It seemed probable that the malaria germ was sucked out of the human body by the flea, the bug, the louse, the leech, the sand fly or the mosquito. The geographical distribution of the disease pointed to the last two, and especially the mosquito. So Dr. Ross secured some specimens of the gray or barred back mosquito and allowed them to feed of a man afflicted with malaria. Then he examined the blood of the mosquito under the microscope and secured specimens of the disease. He also inoculated the birds by injecting them under a net with malaria-infected mosquitoes and found that the disease was transmitted. The infection of the birds was proof sufficient of the supposed transmission and that the mosquitoes are the most potent agents for promulgating the disease.

UNIVERSITY LAW COURSE

At a meeting of the Seattle Bar association and the board of regents of the University, Friday afternoon in the chamber of commerce, the bar association voted that a law department be established at University of Washington. This practically settles the question of establishing such a department, for President Groves declared during the discussion that there were sufficient funds on hand for carrying on a department if the bar association approved the plan. The meeting was a large one, being attended by almost every prominent attorney of the city.

On its final passage the motion was carried with only one dissenting vote, that of J. T. Ronald, and he put himself on record as strongly in favor of the law school, but he was not sure whether it was feasible to establish it at the present time and make a success of it.

A Trust for Them as Well as Everything Else.

NEW YORK, May 8.—A consolidation of the peanut industries of the country, under the control of a single company, with a capital of $5,000,000 is about to be effected. The promoter of the consolidation several months ago secured options from a great many of the peanut growers. Some of the larger ones declined to give options, but it is said that, now that the plan of consolidation is well known, most of them are willing to sell and take stock in the new company. The options expire on May 15, and the promoters express confidence that the new company, which is to be called the American Peanut company, will be incorporated before then.

The main offices and warehouses of the company are to be in Norfolk, Va., and shipments will be made from that point to the large cities of the country, instead of being distributed from New York, as has been the custom in the past. The value of the peanut industry of the United States annually is estimated at between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000. One of the plans of the consolidation is to increase the product and export part of it.
