Here is an exceptionally pretty model of warm, soft-napped material, and made on the full-flare lines. Almost knee length it is stylishly set off by the black-check wide revers, novelty pockets and loose belt, which crosses at the front. The jaunty black chin chin hat is worn with a heavily-dotted veil.

CHRY'S WANTS TO GO IN SEARCH OF DADDY WITH SPIRITUAL AID

"I vow that I will set out in search of daddy under spirit guidance," Chrys said defiantly. "And I will start as soon as I get a little more testimony about him."

"My dear! My dear!" I exclaimed. "I have gone thru some terrible experiences which I haven't courted and haven't wanted, but I am a very mild little adventurer compared to you—if you take a ghost for a guide! I tried, at least, to take along a little common sense. Surely, Chrys, you'll never cut loose from your home and follow instructions you obtain from that spelling board? How about Jordan Spence?"

"I'll do just that," she replied. "Jordan Spence loves me as I love him. He will humor me."

"I don't feel so sure about that," I said. "For the love of love, Chrys, let us accept all this supernatural nonsense as—literature. But let us not act in accordance with it."

"If the thing is true at all, it must be a guide to conduct," was the rejoinder. I was reminded for the hundredth time that Bob's only sister is a born fanatic when she sets out to have her own way. They say that she inherits her spirit from an ancestor whom Queen Mary burned at the stake.

"Listen to reason, Chrys. We'll hear from daddy soon. He will cable us again, you'll see, when they make the next harbor. I, for one, have had all the adventure I want for a cycle of blue moons. I'm going to be passive and not interfere with the fates. Maybe that is a good theory—it's popular, but none of the Lorimers have ever experimented with it. Well, I'm going to. Pretty soon Bob and I are going to open up our own little house again. And I am going to drift with the tide of life. I give up. I'll be as happy as I have been while leading a strenuous life."

"Welcome destiny in however sinister a disguise," quoted Chrys, with a shrug. I shivered. I couldn't help it. Our long talk had excited me. I knew that Chrys can be horribly perverse when her pet plans are not received with enthusiasm. Sometimes her own respect for her communications with the unseen affect her speech and her manners and she really looks like a magnificent sylph or prophetess of ancient days.

Perhaps the conversation with the ghost had made me creepy. I couldn't imagine any kind of a sinister destiny attached to my pretty little home. Nevertheless, I shuddered and had to force a little vivacity into my voice when I answered:

"I'll take my luck a day at a time, my dear."

"The luck you need is some kind of a steady job for that husband of yours," Plainly Chrys wanted to get away from our talk about the world of mysteries. "Bob has been brushing up against some dangerous romances since he took off his uniform."

"Bob was a dandy business man before he was shell-shocked," I insisted. "He isn't a lazy man—he never was. He can't help being a millionaire's son, and if he wants to study, study, day and night—"

"He studies only when he hasn't got to rescue some fair damsel in

REMOVE IRON RUST

Iron rust has a most astonishing way of appearing on garments. Sometimes a pin will be a bit rusty and leave two little brown spots in a most conspicuous place.

When this happens try lemon juice and salt.

Wet the spot with a drop of lemon juice, add salt and put on more lemon juice. Lay in the sun and when the salt is dry the rust spot will be gone.

If the sun refuses to put in an appearance for the day, hold the stain with its saturated solution of lemon juice and salt over steam. The rust will be removed.

Eyes Strained?

If your eyes are work-strained or tired; if your vision is dim or blurred; if it bothers you to read; if your eyes burn or itch or ache; if you wear glasses, get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets from your druggist, dissolve one in a fourth of a glass of water and use from two to four times a day to bathe the eyes. Bon-Opto has brought comfort and relief to thousands and thousands.

Note: Doctors say Bon-Opto strengthens eyesight 50% in a week's time in many instances.

WHEN SCOURING

A large-sized cork is an excellent thing to use for scouring the knives and forks and pots and pans.

The firmness of the cork gives something to hold to and alleviates the cramping of one's fingers. Aside from the physical comfort gained by the use of a cork, the mental relief is great. One's fingers don't come in contact with the scouring powder at all. The cork does not absorb the powder and transfer it to fingers the way a cloth does.

It's not that a housekeeper objects to her calling and hates to advertise it by stained hands. It's merely that unsightly hands and finger nails are distasteful to her and for her own sake she tries to avoid them.

Beat yolk of egg and beat in honey and orange juice. Add slowly to tapioca and cook until it thickens. Add butter. Cook about 20 minutes.

Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover with the white of the eggs beaten till stiff and dry with 2 tablespoons of honey. Bake a delicate brown in a hot oven.

NEWSPAPER LINING

Winter or summer, I put several thicknesses of newspaper in the bottom of the garbage pail. In the winter the paper prevents the contents of the pail from freezing to the bottom and forming a coating half an inch thick that remains on the metal all winter.

In summer the protection for the pail is just as necessary. The summer heat causes decomposition of the refuse and the action of the acid on the metal is disastrous.

A newspaper lining in the container makes it possible for the garbage collector to empty the pail easily and entirely.
