INDIAN GIRL IN PUYALLUP RACES

Spirited Horses Entered in Events During Fair

PUYALLUP, Wa., Sept. 19.—Ruth Parton, half-breed girl of the Yakima Indian reservation, celebrated as the champion relay rider of the Pendleton Roundup, will have four hot-blooded gallopers entered in the Puyallup Races at the Western Washington fair here, October 2 to 5, inclusive, according to W. H. Paulhamus, president and manager, today.

So the best runners from the Canadian circuit will be here to compete for the stakes hung up. Races will be run every afternoon and evening, except October 3, entry day, and October 5, which is Church and Union Labor day. Racing will start at 2 and 7:30 p. m., the evening performance being held under powerful electric lights. In all, there will be 35 races, five in the afternoons and two in the evenings.

No matter how hard it may rain, Paulhamus promises there is no need for anyone to get wet this year, as the entire exposition can be seen without stepping out into the rain. The track has been covered with four inches of cinders so it will be in good shape for the runners, regardless of weather conditions.

Among the noted horsemen who will bring mounts here are: John McCasland, of Kentucky, with seven head; Jack Pierce of Boise, three horses; Roy Neal, Southern Oregon, two; Charley Emmett, known as "Gipsy" Emmett, of Tishuana, 13; "Buck" Fortuna, who participates in the Puyallup races every year, one; J. C. Smith, of New Orleans, five; J. S. Evans of Calgary, four; W. H. McPadden, Yakima, one; "Babe" Adams of Pittsburgh, Pa., two; Tony Muratta, of Vancouver, Wn., two; Frank Allen, of Tappanish, one, and Frank Iyall, of Whapato, three.

Letters from Chief Seattle

(A WEEKLY BUDGET OF MISSESS FROM A FRIENDLY OLD SPIRIT)

To Whom It May Concern

Dear home: One of The Star's oldest subscribers, G. E. Henry, asks me, "What has become of the whistling boy?" When he was a youngster and when I was the kids hustled about with round cheeks plying "Spanish Cavalier" or "Honey Boy." Now you never encounter the species. Why is this?
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Cowen Parkers

Dear Folks: Congratulations! It's pleasant to learn that you succeeded in forcing the city officials to let you keep your jitney. As long as the city refuses to give you street car service it cannot justly deprive you of the rubber-tired transportation to which you long have been accustomed.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Gum Chewers

Please, dear people, use discretion and don't stick your Spearmint all over the handles of the chairs in my favorite movie palace. It is bad enough to have your hands all stuck up with gum from the restaurant, but it is worse to get stuck to the seat just when you grab the arms of the chair to steady yourself in a thrilling moment. Have a heart!
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To Juanita Miller, Sierras, California

Dear Juanita: Now that you've had your little whirl at goofy romances and have burned your income before an old cow's skull, and danced in a gummy sack, and behaved as if you had something pressing on your brain, don't you think it's about time to settle down and try some plain, ordinary living? You have played the silly little thing long enough. Your daddy was a nice old fellow who wrote pretty fair verse, but, up to date, you've done little worth while, and you've now ceased even to amuse.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Weatherman

Dear Sir: You know you threw us down this summer with the assortment of weather you handed out and I hope you are trying to make it up with the swell line of Indian summer days recently turned out. We all like 'em and hope they continue indefinitely.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the N. P., G. N. and C., M. & St. P. Railways

Dear Railroaders: What about that hunch to inaugurate a good, fast electric or gasoline suburban passenger and express service on your lines between Tacoma, Seattle and other growing cities and towns in Western Washington? Are you going to let the gasoline propelled bus running on pneumatic tires take away all your business? I think the idea might be good, and one that would benefit all concerned.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Seattle Chamber of Commerce

Mr. President and Gentlemen: A man without a purpose, a firefly without a tail-light, a newspaper without a policy or a rifle minus front and rear sights—how useless these are! Equally so is a civic organization without a platform. I am delighted to see that you not only have adopted a definite, understandable program, but one of genuine public service. Its eight planks are reduction of taxes, consolidation with other civic and business organizations in order to eliminate useless overhead expense wherever feasible, development of more tourist travel to the Northwest, development of this trade territory, support of reclamation projects, obtaining of more conventions, co-operation with other districts of the state and continuance of the Northwest products campaign. Every good citizen can endorse that slate. Go to it!
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Gentleman Who Needed to Smoke at the Circus

Dear Sir: It would have been all right if you'd been in the middle of a group of men, but you weren't. There were just as many ladies as there were men about you, and they had to swallow smoke with every breath. Here's hoping you kept warm. The ladies did. They were darn hot during the whole affair.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the School Board

Learned Men: Consider the request of the Magnolia bluff folks for school facilities in their district. As far as parents have to send their children to the Interbay school across several dangerous viaducts. Winter is coming. High bridges with filmy railings in times of snow are dangerous for the school children and the auto bus line. A few days ago an auto bus with returning school children was crashed into by an army truck, injuring a few of the kiddies—not seriously, BUT, it might have meant death. Public sentiment and folks at Magnolia bluff, perhaps, would have placed some of the blame on the slow-moving machinery of the school system. Immediate relief of some sort should be given.
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Promoters of Drunken Orgies

Sobered Ones: Learn a lesson from "Patty." He has fallen flatly off his pedestal, a shattered idol. From a comedian to a tragedy. From fame to disgrace. From his million-dollar smile to a "pauper's hopeless grin."
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To Officers of the Law Who Captured the Bank Bandits

Men: Don't you feel good now—now that you've got 'em all behind the bars after these weeks of speculation, figuring and planning? I guess you, with Captain Tennant, can say now, "It pays to stay by the job."
CHIEF SEATTLE.

To the Housewives

Dear Ladies: "Don't squeeze the fruit." You don't like it when the man at the fruit stand tells you that. You get huffy and declare he's a crab and state that you won't buy your dime's worth of punes there any more. Be that as it may, neither you nor the fruit man have your feelings bruised nearly so badly as the fruit itself. And after all, when the man is making his living selling muskmelons and bananas, maybe it isn't so pleasant to have a dozen or two bruised specimens each day as a result of his customers endeavoring to "feel if it's ripe."
CHIEF SEATTLE.

P. S. (By the office boy)—If you must pinch da fruit, pinch da coconut.

Sharks Turned From Man-Eaters to Fine Satchels Near Here

Time was when if sharks were mentioned there came to mind the picture of a black, triangular fin cutting a swift swath thru phosphorescent seas, warning of the presence of some roving menace of the deep.

Nowadays when sharks are spoken of one thinks of beautiful, soft and durable tanned leather; of purest oil and glycerine; of shoes, handbags, trunks and all the articles in the making of which fine leather is used.

SEATTLE CENTER OF SHARK LEATHER INDUSTRY

The shark has left his place in fiction to enter the commercial field.

Seattle is the center of the shark leather industry. In fact, the only shark leather factory in the world is located but a few miles outside the city limits, at Edmonds.

In his headquarters and showrooms in the Pacific block, J. F. Lavarne, president of the Universal By-Products company, pointed to a handsome grained suitcase.

"Shark leather," he said. "This lining is shark stomach, tanned. Regular parchment."

GOT IDEA WHILE FISHING IN ALASKA

Lavarne is the original pioneer advocate of the use of sharks for leather and other purposes.

"I got the idea while I was engaged in the fishing business in Alaska," he says. "Many sharks used to get caught on our halibut hooks, and we would take the livers and boil out the oil, then throw the rest of the fish away. The skin was so tough that I thought it ought to make good leather. It did, and now we utilize every part of the fish. Nothing goes to waste.

Compare a 1,200 pound shark with a steer of the same weight. The steer costs a little more than $60. The shark costs less than $25. Out of the shark we get 65 square feet of the finest quality leather. This splits three to five times, and split shark leather is good, whereas split steer leather is used only in inferior quality articles.

25 GALLONS OF OIL FROM LIVER

"From the liver, which extends almost the full length of the fish, we extract 25 gallons of high grade oil. This oil has a glycerine content of 10 per cent. The flesh we dehydrate and sell for stock food. It has special fattening qualities.

"Then the smaller fins are sold to the Chinese for food at $4 a pound. From the head, tail and hide scraps we get 45 pounds of glue from a 1,200 pound shark."

A vast array of articles made from sharkskin are on display in the Universal By-Products Co. office. An exhibit is to be put on at the Eastern Washington fair, at Yakima next week.

Lavarne has perfected a method of French marbling that produces an endless variety of beautiful color effects on soft-tanned shark leather.

The factory at Edmonds is open to the public on Sundays, and visitors are welcomed to the home of this unique industry.

Hardly a stone of the original Westminster Abbey is now in place.

DELAY RAILWAY STRIKE ORDER

Immediate Walkout Is Called Off

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Immediate danger of a railroad strike has been averted today.

In spite of the fact that shop employees of the roads have voted overwhelmingly against acceptance of the 12 per cent slash in wages which became effective July 1, on order of the United States railroad labor board, the decision has been reached to hold up further action until the board announces the new working rules now being formulated.

B. M. Jewell, head of the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor which includes the federated shop crafts, made this announcement at a mass meeting of rail employees here yesterday.

According to Jewell, another ballot will be taken when the rules are announced and if the membership votes against acceptance, then a fight will be waged before the railroad board.

A strike will be called if necessary, Jewell stated. Executives of railroads and representatives of unions are holding meetings over the country to formulate a new set of rules. The war time working rules were abrogated several months ago by the board.

Two Girls Killed in Belfast Riots

BELFAST, Sept. 19.—Belfast suffered a recurrence of internecine warfare over the week-end, but quite had been restored by the military early today.

Two girls were killed and several persons wounded in street fighting, which was checked only after troops with machine guns had been called out.

The United States produces 61 per cent of the world's oil in the first six months of 1921.
