MANY SOUTHERNERS FILE

SPECIAL TRAINS CARRY HUN-DREDS OF HOMESEEEKERS.

Registration Affidavits Will Be Drawn
From Huge High-Fenced
Platform.

Minot—That the Fort Berthold land opening is attracting attention in the South is exemplified by the fact that almost daily chartered cars filled with anxious land seekers are arriving in Minot, the chief point of registration.
Special cars have arrived from Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska during the past few days with homeseekers.

Among these delegations have been many representative men of the communities from which they came. Some of them have been extensive farmers and others have represented the laboring element.

A notable feature of the registration is the large number of former Americans from Alberta and Saskatchewan who are declaring their intentions to again become citizens of the United States and are registering for a chance in the land lottery. Many of these went to Canada several years ago and have been unsuccessful and are now returning to make this their permanent home. Thirty-seven came in on one train from the north.

Judge James W. Witten announces that any person over the age of sixteen years who possesses good intelligence may act as an agent for an old soldier. The belief has been prevailing that it was necessary for a party to be eligible to make homestead entry or of age, but this was an erroneous idea. It is a perceptible fact that practically every land seeker from Kansas has had an affidavit for an old soldier. Several hundred old soldiers have written to the post office and also to the Commercial club to know whether or not they could secure an agent for them, and as a result, practically all of the men and women of the city of Minot have been solicited to register for a veteran. The soldier must make affidavit to the effect that the name of his agent was written in the blank before he swore to the affidavit and that makes it necessary to secure the agent before the papers are mailed from Minot.

It is an absolute fact that the majority of the land seekers who come here are not satisfied to return home until they have an opportunity to view the promised land, as the reservation is being styled. About twenty automobiles are kept busy daily conveying the land seekers to and from the reservation. The post card dealers have done a thriving business since the registration began, and Postmistress Mrs. J. M. Murphy has added three extra clerks to the stamp department to facilitate matters at the postoffice.
Regular postoffice hours have been kept since the registration began, but all night service will be inaugurated the last week while the big rush is on.
As the time approaches interest is naturally attracted to the manner in which the drawing will be conducted.
At previous drawings a huge cylinder has been used, in which all registration affidavits have been placed and the morning of the drawing thoroughly mixed by revolving the large cylinder for 30 minutes. Judge Witten has decided however to construct a spacious platform, which will be screened in by a fence 10 feet high and upon this platform will be thrown all of the envelopes containing the affidavits of the entire registration, and for 30 minutes they will be mixed with wooden pitchforks. At the lecture the 8-year-old son of Congressman Hanna will be hoisted into and walk into the midst of the piles and pick out an envelope, returning to Judge Witten, and he will announce the name as drawing No. 1.

NEW PROJECTILE IS SUCCESS

Tests Made Near Berlin, Germany, Show It Could Set Airships and Balloons Afire.

Berlin—The trials with the new projectile, apparently fired from a rifle, for use against airships, which were carried out at the experimental institute for hand firearms at Ha-lensee, outside Berlin, are understood to have yielded surprising results.
The projectile, which is described as a small shell, set fire to the balloons through which it passed, with results that would have been immediately fatal to any airship in like case.

If the new ammunition should fully justify the claims made for it and should not be ruled out by the Geneva Conventions, it would go far toward rendering the bellicose employment of airships impossible.

Move Starts in St. Paul for "Ten-Cent Night" at Best Theaters to Benefit Poor.

St. Paul, Minn.—A movement has been begun in St. Paul to enable poor people to visit high grade theaters on certain nights for 10 cents each. Rev.
David Morgan is fathering the plan, and conferred with T. B. McCormick, assistant manager of the Grand Opera House.

"My plan," said Mr. Morgan, "is to have the theaters designate some night when they are not ordinarily sold out, and set aside a certain number of reserved seats where working people may see the performances for 10 cents, feeling that they are enjoying the same privileges as those about them."

HEN HAS HARD TASK

Experiment With Pheasant's
Eggs Quite Expensive.

Domestic Fowl Compelled to Sacrifice
Its Own Progeny in Hatching—Law Will Protect English
Bird for Years.

Jefferson City, Mo.—More work for the patient Missouri hen!
In addition to her other duties, she is now expected to hatch out pheasants.

The pheasant is a sort of everybody-works-but-mother bird, which will not sit—or is it set?—on its own eggs—while in captivity. It being manifest that George can't do it, there is no way out of it except to shove the unwelcome task onto the hens.

That is what State Game Commissioner Tolerton is doing in his effort to introduce the English pheasant in Missouri. It will be a thankless task, too, for as soon as a pheasant is large enough to get about, the first thing he does is to go out foraging for chicken feed. He will even steal from his own foster mother.

In his efforts to accustom pheasants to the Missouri climate Tolerton is sending pheasants free to all farmers and poultry raisers who ask for them.
The result is that colonies of the gaudy birds are now to be found in many parts of the state.

Farmers already are loudly complaining that the pheasants are robbing their chickens of feed. For this there is no remedy, as it is unlawful to kill a pheasant in Missouri.

Almost any one who asks for pheasants can get them from Tolerton.
There are only a few simple conditions. First of these is that, no matter how many pheasants you raise, you will not be permitted to kill one, even for your own table.

You must keep an exact account of the eggs laid and you must either send these eggs to the state poultry farm at Jefferson City or set them under your hens and send the young birds to the game commissioner for distribution in the state.

Here is where the hen gets the worst of it. After she has taken all the trouble to hatch out the pheasants they are taken away from her.
Worse than that, she might seek consolation in hatching out a few children of her own, but even this pleasure is denied her. For, until the young pheasants are two months old, the only food on which they will thrive is fresh hen's eggs.

Biddy's nest is robbed to feed them and she must bear the double injustice to bringing into the world creatures for which she has no natural affection and of seeing them thrive on the ruins of her fondest hopes for a posterity which would do credit to the great Missouri hen family.

At the experimental farm near Jefferson City 450 hens are working overtime laying eggs for young pheasants to eat.

The pheasant in its present stage of Americanization is not a revenue maker for anybody. The law forbids it from being used as food and the regulations surrounding the distribution of the birds prevent even the most opulent from breakfasting on bacon and pheasant eggs. The hen, on the other hand, is the state's greatest wealth producer and her friends can't see why she should be shoved into the background by an imported fowl whose beauty is of about as much practical value as is that of the aurora borealis.

Commissioner Tolerton says that the pheasant is one of the greatest of game birds and that in time the species will be so plentiful in Missouri that pheasant hunting will be permitted.

BEAVERS' DAM RUINS FARM

Farmer Living Near Boonville, N. Y., Faces Financial Loss as Result of Attack.

Utica, N. Y.—A colony of beavers has appeared near Boonville and the members are working on Forbes creek near a farm owned by John Stephens.
As a result Stephens is threatened with financial ruin. The beavers have constructed a dam which has flooded his farm lands. He is powerless to interfere because the law prevents his molesting the animals.

The animals have also built a house about ten feet square. They have felled trees that are eight inches through, trimmed the branches and carried them some distance. The branches are used in the construction of the dam and house.

Where they came from no one seems to know, but it is the opinion of some that they came down Black river from the Adirondacks. Under the law, no person may molest wild beaver, the houses in which they live or the dams that they build. The farmer who has had his lands flooded by these builders must endure it as best he can.

Transplant a Whole Grove.

Commack, L. I.—A remarkable feat of forestry is being performed by a firm of Westbury nurserymen in removing 27 full-grown cedar trees from the estate of former Senator Carl S.
Burr, Jr., to the new plant of the Doubleday-Page company at Garden City.

The trees, which are all about 15 years old and average 20 feet in height, formed a handsome grove on the Burr estate.

THE BEST SPENT MONEY IS THAT PUT INTO A HOME because it brings real contentment and is a joy forever. From the earliest days of civilization the home has been the most sacred of all worldly possessions and, no matter how other customs may change, the home will always remain the same. The ownership of a home means something more than just the investment of dollars.

It's something your children will recall with pleasure long years after you have gone beyond, and the effect it will have on them will be worth more, perhaps, than a thousand times its cost. Our lum-you select the stock for your new home you will not be disappointed.
