W. C. T. U. NOTES

Milwaukee, Wis. Feb 26—"A compulsory college for saloon keepers is the only method of securing men who will live up to the liquor laws and enforce them," said judge N. B. Neelen of the local district court here today, just before fining a local saloonkeeper $50 for selling liquor to a minor.

"Running a saloon is like handling dynamite" said the judge, "and it requires men of education to handle both. What we need is an endowed college so that all prospective saloonkeepers can be trained in psychology so that their sense of perception can be brightened. This would make them able to judge the age of men and would enable them to live within the law." The judge thinks that saloonkeepers ought to pass a rigid mental and moral examination before being given a diploma of ability.

THE BILLION DOLLAR WASTE.

The greatest waste in any single industry in this country is made with the corn crop. The grain of the annual corn crop of the United States is worth on the farms one and a half billion dollars. In a ripe corn plant 60 per cent of the feed value is contained in the kernels and 40 per cent in the stalk and leaves. With the grain worth one and a half billion dollars, the feed value of the rest of the crop is a billion dollars. At least 90 per cent of the feed value of the stalk is lost under the present system of farm management—a waste with this crop alone of almost a billion dollars yearly. No other business but farming could stand such an enormous loss.

In the New England and the Middle States most of the stalks are saved as fodder, and there are many silos, but with the damage from weathering, the waste in handling and the loss in digestibility from drying, the farmers are very far from utilizing the full feed value of the corn stalk. In the corn belt, where the bulk of the crop is raised, comparatively few corn growers harvest the stalks, and the only returns most of them secure from the forage is by pasturing the dead stalks in the cold and storm of winter. Frequently the death of stock pastured in the stalk fields makes a loss that far exceeds the returns from the feed.

Contrast this waste by the corn grower with the practices of large business organizations. For years the great packing houses have sold dressed meat for less than they have paid for the live weight of the animals.

Yet every year these packing houses return millions of dollars profit because they utilize to the fullest extent the value of their by-products. The Standard Oil Company takes crude oil in to its refining plant, puts it through costly processes, using apparatus that require an outlay of millions, pays the freight the kerosene and gasoline direct to consumers at a lower rate than is asked for mineral water, where the only expense is to run the water through a pipe from the spring into a bottle. At the same time the corn growers are wasting most of 40 per cent of the feed value of over one hundred million acres of corn.

The silo provides the corn grower with the means for utilizing the largest portion of the feed value of his entire crop, grain and forage. The silage can be kept for days, months or years, or feeding may begin as soon as filling the silo is completed. The silo can be filled in good weather, when it is raining, or in times of extreme drouth and hot winds. Silage is good, fed daily, both in winter and summer. When grass is ready in the spring, the feed that remains in the silo can be covered and will keep well until needed when the summer drouth comes. Silage furnishes a green, succulent, appetizing feed through the winter, the same as grass through the summer. It keeps the animal's system in as good condition as when the stock is on good pasture, and feeds given with it are better digested.

Corn makes the best silage, Kaffir corn, Milo and sorghum follow, their value being in the order mentioned. Green pea vines, husks and cobs from the canning factories make good material to put in the silo. In continuous rainy weather alfalfa, clover and other hay crops may be saved in the silo.

The vast dry farming section of the Southwest will be as thickly settled with comfortable farm homes as is the northern corn belt whenever stock raising, drouth-resistant forage crops and the silo are adopted, instead of exclusive grain farming. Every live stock growing district in the United States needs the silo. The general use of the silo will make the high-priced small farms of the corn belt profitable growers, as well as finishers of cattle and sheep.

"SAVE THE BIRDS," IS PLEA

John Burroughs and Ernest Thompson-Seton Unite in Appeal to Pupils in U. S.

New York.—John Burroughs and Ernest Thompson-Seton issued a joint appeal to the school children of America in which they say:

"An urgent appeal we make to you in behalf of our native birds, many species of which are in danger of extermination. To you is now given the opportunity to render substantial help toward their preservation. A measure is now before congress, the purpose of which is to place all migratory birds under the protection of the federal government.

"Such a law is greatly needed. If it is not passed our birds will continue to decrease—to the great and everlasting disadvantage and shame of the American people. The destruction of bird life is costing American farmers millions of dollars annually through the constantly increasing devastations of harmful insects upon which the birds feed. But a greater loss their slaughter is bringing to all who love God's great out-of-doors.

"We therefore appeal to the school children of America to help in this vitally important matter. We ask you to get your parents, teachers, and friends to write or telegraph to the congressman of your district and the two senators of your state, now in Washington, urging immediate action upon the pending bird protection bill—that they may understand how deep is the interest in it and how great is the need for it."

GETS BAIL OUT OF HIS SOCK

Canadian Visitor, Rescued From Alleged Robber Band, Reveals Hiding Place When Taken to Station.

Chicago.—James Shelton, a farmer of Regina, Sask., Canada, John Foster, and J. W. Brownlee, were arrested in a saloon, after a battle with detectives of the South Clark street station.

Shelton met Foster and Brownlee upon his arrival at the Polk street depot in the morning, and spent the day with them. An unidentified man who saw them enter the saloon, notified the police that Shelton was in the hands of robbers, and Sergeant Joseph Halligan and six detectives hurried to the place.

Shelton went to the assistance of his companions when they were arrested, and the police were compelled to beat the three into submission.

When searched at the station, the police found only $3.17 in Shelton's pockets. He inquired what amount of cash bail would be required to effect his release, and when told $100, he drew a roll of bills out of his hose, depositing $100 with the sergeant, and left the station. He was last seen entering a Chinese barber shop.
