Elmer Muer Dead

Elmer Muer, familiarly known to our residents as "Dad Elmer", passed away the end of last week at Rochester, Minn. Death was due to acute kidney trouble. "Dad" has long been a resident of the community, working at odd jobs of teaming and on farms and for a time was employed by Mr. Egan on the dray line. He has suffered for some time from kidney trouble, but the recent attack was the worst he had suffered and he decided to go to the hospital for treatment. Very little is known of his history and the whereabouts of his relatives. He stated that his folks had not heard of him in forty years. It is reported that some of them live in New York State. The funeral services were held and interment made at Rochester.

HOME TOWN FEELING

While you can't force people into sentimental affection for their home town, you can make them see solid reasons for pride in it.

Take Hope as it stands today. Does it not show steady advance every year? Homes and business buildings are more tasteful, kept in better order. Private grounds and streets are neater. Citizens raise more shrubbery and flowers. There are more trees, and many other gains could be mentioned. It's a fine town and people who come here and see it with disinterested eyes say so.

When people begin to be proud of their home town, to realize that it is a privilege to live among such kindly and intelligent and wide-awake people, you have taken the first step toward developing Home Town Feeling. The result is to make people realize it as a privilege to belong to such a community, and have a share of its hopes and enterprises.

FIGHTING POSTS

The way to get at the terrible loss of wealth destroyed by pests, is suggested by such movements as that among the farmers of Spokane county, Washington. They have worked out a plan to fight the squirrels, which are a menace to the crops of the district. Farmers who poison their own squirrels are to be given a rebate out of tax funds, which will give an incentive to everyone to join in this work of crop preservation.

To check the destruction by pests all land owners must co-operate. If 100 farmers fight the pests and the 101st neglects them, that one man may propagate enough pests on his land to infect all the others.
