THE DEAL EXPLAINED

President Hill Tells of Great Northern's Plans.

PRODUCERS ADDRESSED AT FARGO.

The Aim of the Consolidation Is to Increase Freight Traffic to the End That Lower Rates May Be Established.

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 11.—The features of the tristate grain and cattle growers' convention here were the address of President James J. Hill and the practically unanimous adoption of resolutions commending him for his work in behalf of the northwest. These resolutions, after declaring the most natural line of transportation for the products of the northwestern states and for the trade of the orient destined for the north, middle and eastern states is along the route followed by the Northern Pacific railroad, proceed as follows:

"It is the sense of this meeting, therefore, that in resisting the attempts of the Union Pacific railroad and its allies on the one hand and the Canadian Pacific railroad and its feeders on the other to secure control of the Northern Pacific railroad James J. Hill has performed a notable public service and once more displayed the farsighted and businesslike policy that has characterized his long career as the great developer of northwestern resources and the most watchful guardian of northwestern interests."

Mr. Hill said in part:

Twenty-five years ago it was supposed that competition was necessary to reduce rates. I think that we have shown in the northwest that without competition rates have been reduced faster than anywhere else in the country.

There has recently been an attempt to show that we have no interest in the building up of the prosperity of the people of your state and of the northwest. If we did not do everything in our power to build you up, we would be false to our best interests. Our object in acquiring the Burlington jointly with the Northern Pacific railway was to insure an outlet to the best markets for the grain, live stock and lumber for the northern states and to increase the volume of our traffic to the end that we might at all times be able to establish the lowest rates and most favorable conditions under which the traffic must be carried.

Assuming that the line of the Burlington had not been constructed and that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific jointly had raised the money and were engaged in the construction of it, would there be anything to meet the disapproval of the state traversed by the line of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific? On the contrary, would not such a course have been hailed with approval as a means of opening up markets for northwestern produce, and of reaching markets in the south and southwest, and of securing business, increasing the volume of the traffic of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, thus making reduction of rates and adding to the general prosperity of the northwest? Instead of building the Burlington system or a line of railway alongside of it the Great Northern and Northern Pacific purchased the capital stock of a line already constructed. Instead of issuing stock or bonds for the purpose of raising moneys for building a line right through the same country bonds were issued to purchase the stock of a constructed line.

Railroads make public through published rates the price charged for transportation, the only thing they have to sell, and must report the amount they receive for what they sell and what has been done with it. Courts are open for the purpose of determining whether railway companies as carriers observe their obligations to the public.

The question of the reasonableness of rates and service does not depend upon whether one man owns the capital stock of a railway or whether the capital stock is owned by ten men or a thousand or by persons or corporations. The capital stock of a railway company is personal property to be sold, transferred from one man to another, and any one may purchase and hold all that he has means to buy and pay for. The capital stock of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern will be held by somebody, persons or corporations, if not by the present owners by other owners.

I hope in the future that with better methods of cultivation and more knowledge of what is required your condition may be constantly improved, and if your condition is improved ours will certainly share it with you. As the volume of our traffic increases our rates will be reduced. Remember that whatever helps you helps the railroad, and whatever hurts you or restricts your growth restricts the growth of the railroad serving you. We will always prosper together or be poor together.

ITEMS FROM NEW CASTLE.

New Castle, January 11.—Officer Matthew Tobin deserves great credit for the manner in which he arrested the Philadelphian who passed the counterfeit dollar on Mrs. Patrick McGrory. The fellow was scarcely out of the store when the dollar was discovered to be a spurious one and Mrs. McGrory ran after the man who said his name was George Davis. The officer was notified and Davis was under arrest, identified by three people as being a "shover of the queer" and before the Mayor in twenty minutes. Yesterday morning the officer went on a search and found two of the spurious silver dollars on the other side of the fence opposite where Davis hid behind a tree.

At the hearing before Mayor Boyd Davis was identified by Mrs. McGrory, Mrs. Fanny H. Biggs, Mrs. Bessie Vallette, Misses Mary Kinkead, Mary Janvier, Eva B. Deakyne, as the man who made purchases at their stores and paid for the same with spurious dollars. Bail for his appearance at the District Court for the District of Delaware was placed at $1,000 and in default of bail he was committed to the New Castle County Workhouse to await trial. United States District Attorney William Michael Byrne represented the Government and Deputy United States Marshal James H. Clark took the prisoner to the workhouse. It was learned yesterday that Davis had two comrades with him here on Thursday and one of them had been here on December 16, when the store keepers were victimized by the strangers. The dollars were excellent imitations but were a quarter of an ounce light.

Joseph Sullivan and Rendall Perram had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon. They were skating on the dyke when the ice broke and both lads went down. Their cries and the cries of their companions drew the attention of Jesse Biggs who was driving along the road. Motorman Harris heard the cries and he stopped the car and all hands rushed to the lads' rescue. Riggs unfastened his reins and thereby saved the lads' lives, for he converted the reins into a life line. The youths suffered severely from their impromptu bath and were taken home on the trolley car.

DELAWARE MARSHALSHIP.

It looks at present that there is going to be trouble over the appointment of Marshall J. Cannon Short. A dispatch from Washington last night says:

President Roosevelt to-day agreed to withdraw the re-nomination of United Marshal Short, of Delaware which he sent to the Senate on Wednesday under a misapprehension.

Representative Ball went to the White house this morning and explained the Delaware situation to the President, with the above result.

Mr. Ball will now endeavor to get the Republicans of the State on a slate of Federal appoints fairly distributed with regard to geographical and other considerations.

This will cause a stir among the politicians. Congressman Ball could not stand for the appointment. He believes in a geographical division of the State in the matter of appointments.

Sussex County now has the Collector of Port, a deputy in the office of the Internal Revenue office in addition to United States Marshal. The workers of New Castle County will not stand for it.

The President, it appears, misunderstood the position of Mr. Ball in the matter, and the latter was very much surprised when he learned that Mr. Short's reappointment had been sent in. The Representative is a personal friend of the Marshal, but for political reasons he did not think that the collectorship of the port of Wilmington and the Marshalship should be held by men hailing from the same county—Sussex.

It is understood that he has urged the Republican State committee to name a candidate from Wilmington, and one whose name has as yet, not received public mention.

The committee was derelict in agreeing upon a candidate, and Mr. Ball asked the President to allow Mr. Short to continue in office, but without re-nomination, until some arrangement as to his successor could be made. It was Mr. Ball's understanding that this would be done.

Here's where the rub comes. The Marshal had given up the fight and had not sent a letter to the President. They are still at his office and he is still wondering how the plum fell in his lap.

During the past four years Marshal Short has been a power in Sussex politics and while his office prevented him from taking an active part his hand was visible just the same. Short was an uncompromising DuPont man. He ignored Addicks and his lieutenants.

He was trusty and carried commissions to postmasters in Sussex county.

Now to ruthlessly turn him down means trouble or the whole combination. The New Castle County Republicans will not stand such treatment. He is of no earthly use to them. He draws his salary and they want one of their own in there. Deputy Marshal Clark would like the plum.

Who ever heard of the Clark—Reybold Price family being without an officer holder and without more of the wanting positions. D. W. Elkinton is accused of voting for Democrats in 1900 so that certain people would be defeated. And now comes the rub as to where lightning will strike. Let us have a New Castle County man for the position. Let Short and Clark retire for the present as there are lots of competent men to fill the position. Congressman Ball owes it to New Castle county to recommend a man for Marshal from this county.

Albion C. Pyle of this city is considered to be a candidate for the position and his appointment would meet with general satisfaction. Such a man as Mr. Pyle or Buckingham would fill the office with credit.

VICTORY FOR INDEPENDENCE.

The first clash between Fire Chief John F. Welsh and one of the new fire companies organized in the Ninth ward, occured last night at a blaze in the tool house of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Landith station. The chief ordered the Independence Company out of service, although the members of that organization had the satisfaction of knowing that they had the fire, almost extinguished before Chief Welsh arrived.

The fire was discovered in the tool-house, a frame building opposite the plant of the Planet Mills Company, shortly before six o'clock. The house of the Independence Company is only a few blocks away from the blaze, and when the alarm from box No. 52 was struck the Independence men were hauling their hose carriage through the streets as rapidly as they could toward the burning tool house.

The company received 500 feet of brand new hose on Thursday, and in addition to testing this the members were inspired by the fact that it was to be the first actual fire-fighting service for the Independence Company. A plug stream was turned on the building, with telling effect on the flames, for they were being gradually conquered, and were well under control by the time the district engines in the recognized department arrived. The Phoenix and Reliance Companies with the "Washy" chemical, and the Delaware truck responded to the alarm.

Chief Welsh arrived about the time the district companies did, and all were surprised to find the Independence men, in command of William H. Fuhr, fighting the flames. Chief Welsh had been instructed by the fire committee of council to recognize none of the new companies organized in the Ninth ward, and he proceeded to obey his instructions. As soon as the Independence Company was ordered out of service, the plug stream was disconnected, the hose was reeled on the hose carriage and the members returned triumphantly to their house, with an army of boys tugging at the rope of the hose carriage. In ordering the Independence Company from the fire, Chief Welsh grasped hold of Enoch Dutton, of the new company. A clash between the chief and Dutton was imminent when Dutton was led away by his fellow-members.

It did not take long for the district companies to subdue the fire as soon as they went into service. The loss on the building is about $300 and is covered by insurance.

An exploding lamp in the home of John Jackson, at No. 300 East 11th. street, was responsible for a fire there. Jackson left the lamp burning when he went out for the evening, and about 7.30 o'clock the lamp exploded. The flaming oil was scattered all over the room, igniting the carpet and furniture.

The Phoenix Company was summoned by a still alarm, and the chemical apparatus was put into service as soon as possible. The fire was extinguished but not until it had done about $300 damage. A blazing lounge was carried from the house and tossed into the street.

The fire was discovered by William Hasson, who happened to be passing at the time; The building is owned by Hugh Lynch.

In Memorium

On the death of John Croes, Shivler who died at Newark on the 3rd.

When this aged pilgrim "Fell on sleep" on Friday last, earth was poorer and Paradise richer by going hence So rich and sweet was the life he lead that, from the time he was born, at Swedesboro, New Jersey, September, 4, 1820—nearly eighty-two years ago—until the day of his death, in Newark, Delaware, where he had lived continuously for forty-seven years, he had never been known to speak an unkind word, or do an unworthy deed.

Yea, to know him, was to love him, and one had but to stand in his presence to feel that he was a man who had realized the meaning of "Fatherhood of God" and strange, therefore, that this man should have had so many friends. Everyone who had ever met him loves to tell to-day of the goodness of "Dear Father Shivler" and of the kindly treatment always received at his hands. But he loved God, as well as his fellowmen. For many years he was treasurer, as well as the junior warden of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Newark, Del., and was seldom absent from a Sunday morning service, although living more than a mile away. In all weather, too, he would come, and when the pastor, on one occasion, suggested to him that he had better be careful how he, at his age exposed himself to the storms of winter, his reply was: "Well, doctor, there are, in the very nature of things, so few Sundays before me, I cannot but feel that I ought to utilize every single one of them as it comes."

Like Nathaniel, therefore, he was an Israelite indeed, in whom there was no guile. His was, confessedly, a conscience void of offense toward God, as well as toward his fellowmen. Like Enoch, therefore, he walked with God; and was not, for God took him, full of years, into that heavenly home, where the life is so long and strong, that it is numbered by years no longer.

"The golden evening brightens in the West;
Soon, soon to faithful warriors cometh rest;
Sweet is the calm of Paradise the blest Alleluia."
