The Press will deem it a special favor if persons who fail to receive their paper regularly will report the same to the office, as it is our only means of knowing how the carriers are doing their work.

We will pay a reward of $25 for evidence that will convict anyone of stealing papers after they are delivered to residences.

Camel's Milk.

Camel's milk is said to be not only very palatable, but also extremely strengthening and nourishing.

Old Fogey.

Old fogey means an old military pensioner. The term comes from the old pensioners of Edinburgh castle, whose chief business was to fire the guns or assist in quelling street riots.

Effect of an Iceberg.

Newfoundland has at times a peculiar visitor, which is thus described: "The occasional grounding of an immense iceberg a short distance from the shore produces an astonishing local climatic change during its stay, preventing the ripening of crops and garden fruits, but presenting at sunset magnificent prismatic or iridescent effects."

Smelling Salts.

Smelling salts are a prolific cause of deafness. All strong and pungent odors, particularly those which act on the secretory processes, should be avoided as far as possible.

Hot Sand.

A sand bag will hold heat better than anything else. A wooden stocking filled with fine sand and heated in an oven will retain warmth twice as long as a water bag or a brick.

The Spanish Peasant.

The Spanish peasant works every day and dances half the night and yet eats only his black bread, onion and watermelon. The Smyrna porter eats only a little fruit and some olives, yet he carries with ease his load of 200 pounds.

Old Helmets.

Many helmets of the fourteenth century were provided with door visors, opening laterally on hinges.

Books in Russia.

In Russia many scientific and miscellaneous books are not allowed to be sold, simply on account of a few objectionable lines, but if any one needs the book he can send a letter, with 80 kopecks, and get special permission to order a copy.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Frying Mints.

Don't put croquettes in lard until a blue smoke rises from it to show it is absolutely boiling. Too low a temperature means greasy, indigestible frying.

Don't attempt to fry anything until the lard is first tested on a piece of stale bread. If it turns a clear golden brown at once you are safe in beginning.

Don't forget to clarify and strain your fat after it has been used and save it for the next time. Only a wasteful cook throws away her frying material after it has done duty but once.

Don't forget to have heavy brown paper in a colander on top of the range, and put your fried things into it as soon as done. The paper absorbs any superfluous grease.

Cleaning Windows.

For cleaning windows some people use ammonia in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a gallon of water, but the work can be performed quite as efficiently and much more quickly by using clean water and two good chamomile leathers, one for washing the glass and the other for polishing it. See that the wash leathers are quite clean, and do not make the glass so wet that the water drips from it. Have plenty of clean water and change it frequently. Dip the chamomile in this and rub the panes, taking care that the corners are not forgotten. Wring the cloth tightly and go over the surface of the glass a second time. Then polish with the other wash leather.

Emergency Reliefs.

When a child is seized with convulsions, that most dreaded of infantile diseases, carry it immediately into the open air and the convulsion may soon cease. If the weather be cold be sure to keep the body well covered, but give the air free access to head and face.

Croup, which so often attacks children in winter, is caused, nine times out of ten, by the impure air in the house. Open the windows and admit plenty of fresh air, and you will find the breathing relieved and in most cases the services of a physician not needed.

Clothesline Holder.

A simple, but nevertheless practical, clothesline holder, which is a decided improvement on the common hook usually attached to the fence to support the clothesline, is shown herewith. With the ordinary hook the rope must be tied to prevent slipping when the clothes are on the line, the weight forcing the rope off the hook. With this hook the greater the weight the tighter the rope is held in the holder. The latter is in two sections. Pivoted to the bracket is a cam, which serves as the hook for the rope. The latter is caught in the hook and the end inserted in the opening between the hook and the bracket. Naturally the greater the pull on the rope the more firmly will the hook be forced against the bracket, preventing the rope from slipping out of position.

To Remove Tea Stains.

If you find boiling water poured through the stain does not remove it, try equal parts of chloride of lime and soda or baking soda—either one will answer the purpose—say two or two and a half tablespoonfuls of each dissolved in about three quarts of boiling water. Dip the stain into this solution and then wash in the usual way, using soft water. You will find that this will remove a stain of long standing or one that has been set by being washed in soap. If you have washed an article and had the trimming fade and run, the above solution will remove all traces of it.

Glazed Potatoes.

Select medium sized sweet potatoes, boil until done, take out and cool and remove the skin. Have an egg beaten with a dash of salt and pepper, cut the potatoes in half lengthwise, dip in the egg, dust with granulated sugar, arrange in a generously buttered pan, put in oven and bake until brown. Serve hot.

Tea and Coffee Pots.

Never wash tea or coffee pots with water in which there is soap. When they become badly discolored fill with cold water in which is dissolved a tablespoonful of powdered borax, and heat slowly until the water boils. Rinse thoroughly with hot water and dry. Always dry on the back of range.

Ammonia For Silver.

A teaspoonful of household ammonia in warm suds will clean silver thoroughly and make it very brilliant. If the silver is chased use a small brush. Rinse in hot water and dry with a linen towel. Ammonia is also excellent for polishing glassware.

I used many different remedies said to be good for this trouble but received no permanent benefit from any of them. I read an advertisement about Doan's Kidney Pills and deciding to try them I procured a box at a drug store. This remedy did me more good than any other medicine I ever used. It was only a short time after taking them that I noticed that I was being benefited, and finally all the difficulties caused by disordered kidneys disappeared." For sale by all dealers. Price 50c.
