

Vote For Weaver.

General Weaver has withdrawn all his Georgia appointments, and in a doleful epistle addressed to mankind in general and Yankeeedom in particular, he declares he has been maltreated at the South; that his wife has been struck with a rotten egg, and he can no longer risk his life in so dangerous a community. He and Mrs. Weaver and his friend, Mrs. Lease, who was speaking, or rather screeching for him, have all gone North to spread the tale of their disaster. The South needs to be reconstructed, he has been outraged simply because he is a Northern man. We are barbarians down this way and not worthy to unloose the latchet of a loyal man's shoes. There can be no free speech or free expression of opinion at the South and consequently he and his have to flee the country, so cries Weaver as he runs.

The fact is Brother Weaver lies about this whole matter and he now slanders the South as he oppressed and robbed Southern people when they were powerless and he had a little brief authority and strutted round in epaulettes and blue uniform. When he came South a short while ago he would have been civilly treated if he had behaved with decency. People were willing to go and hear him speak, though his record was such that it was brazen impudence on his part to show his face before a Southern audience. Instead of conducting himself properly and discussing the merits and demerits of his platform and the issues now before the people he thrust forward as his principal spokesman his friend, Mrs. Lease, who is not only a woman suffrage shrieker from way back, but who last year after a trip to Nashville wrote to one of her home papers that she hoped to see the time when there would be black heels on white necks down South. This female in a speech at Albany, Georgia, a few days since when Weaver and his wife were on the platform with her pitched into some of the Southern papers and especially into the Atlanta Journal. She dragged up Weaver's Pulaski record, undertook to whitewash the Federal officer, and declared that the Southern papers, especially the Atlanta Journal, had slandered the great and good Weaver. The reporter for the Atlanta paper was present and came forward and said that he had affidavits of respectable citizens of Tennessee to prove all that his paper had said. At this Mrs. Lease and Brother Weaver fumed and raised such a fuss that a policeman was called in and the reporter was arrested and taken from the stand. He (the reporter) then went outside the house and addressed a large crowd there. He read his affidavits showing Weaver's Pulaski record, and told them of the indignity that had been offered him inside. The crowd was so incensed that when Weaver came out he was hooted at; a disturbance was raised, and, he says, a rotten egg was thrown which struck his wife.

We certainly do not justify the throwing of a rotten egg at any one, and if such a thing was done it was highly improper. But what right has Weaver to bring a woman like this Mrs. Lease down to insult Southern people? Is it not very trying and really a great risk for Weaver himself to come among us with his record? What Southern man, who had abused Northern people as Weaver abused Tennesseans during the war, would dare to travel North now? Would he be safe in any Northern town even if he behaved himself, and if he took along with him a blab-mouthed female to abuse and slander the people whom he had formerly oppressed, what chance would he stand of getting out of the country with a whole skin? The Southern people are human. They are willing to let bygones be bygones, but the man who crushed them under his heel thirty years ago ought not to come back now and fling insult in their faces.

The fact is that Weaver's trip South and Weaver's canvass this year is all very thin disguise. If he can stir up trouble, now at the South and arouse the animosity of his Northern brethren, he may help to save the Republicans some doubtful Northern State. If he can stir up bad blood among the Southerners themselves, and get them to wrangling among themselves, he may divide the solid South and help Harrison to another four years in the White House. The thing for our Southern people to do, is by all means to vote for Weaver. Southern gentlemen always did like crow. It would speak well for the people of Tennessee especially to roll up a good vote for Weaver. It would be an endorsement of his Pulaski record. It would show that the miserable rebels down this way deserved all the bad treatment they got at his hands thirty years ago. We hope, especially, for a big Weaver vote in Montgomery county. The old rebels who left this country and went into the Southern army need to be rebuked, and a vote for Brigadier General Weaver, late of Pulaski, is the way to rebuke them. Southerners, Tennesseans, old rebels, sons of old rebels, crowd to the polls on the 8th of November and vote for Weaver.

A Candid Offer.

When Mr. Scott, of Kansas, was here last week to fill his appointment an offer was made to divide time with him, which he rejected. Notwithstanding the fact that he had refused to allow a discussion of the questions which he came to present, he was rash enough in the course of his remarks to hold up the platform of the Republican and Democratic parties, and say he would give any man five dollars who would tell him the difference between the two platforms on the currency question. When he said this some one in the audience asked him to repeat his offer, as it was desired then and there to take him up. Mr. Scott, of Kansas, seeing he was about to get himself into a snap, did not repeat his offer, but went off into a little burst of indignation at being interrupted and then abruptly changed the subject.

Five dollar bills seem to be plentiful with Mr. Scott, of Kansas, who is working in the interest of Harrison in this State. It is perhaps not polite to enquire of him, he being a stranger here, who gives him his five dollar bills while he is working in the interest of Harrison. As he and Weaver and Pepper and others of their kind from the North have always been so affable and polite and civil to the Southern folks, we will not embarrass Mr. Scott, of Kansas, by asking him who pays him five dollar bills for helping Harrison in this State. We will concede that he has a right to work for Harrison as he is doing and that it is none of our business who pays him. We need money down South, however, and five dollar bills are not to be despised. Mr. Scott, of Kansas, with his pension list of a hundred and fifty millions a year (which Weaver proposes to raise to three hundred millions) has about drained us of our spare change, and if it is not too late we would like to earn the five dollars which Mr. Scott, of Kansas, offered to any one who would show him the difference between the Republican and Democratic platforms on the currency question. If Mr. Scott, of Kansas, has any friends left in this community who are willing to stand up to his rash offer, we propose to deposit five dollars with Mr. C. P. Warfield (a good man, though off on a wild spree now) on condition that he (Mr. Scott, of Kansas), or some other person in his behalf, shall deposit a similar amount with Mr. Warfield, and if after both sides have had a full hearing through the columns of this paper, we do not convince Mr. Warfield that there is a plain difference between the platforms of the two parties on the currency question, and a difference decidedly in favor of more money for the people, we will forfeit our five dollars. If we do convince Mr. Warfield that there is a difference in the two platforms on the currency question and a difference on the side of more money for the people, then Mr. Warfield is to give us the five dollars deposited with him by Mr. Scott, of Kansas, which will help to pay the awful pension debt heretofore imposed on us by Scott and his friends. We make this as a serious proposition and will leave it open for ten days. If Mr. Warfield will not act as umpire in this case we will agree to take any other plain, honest, third party man who stands well among his neighbors, and who will promise to render a fair decision in the matter.

We will agree moreover to select a committee of five voters in this county, of whom two shall be chosen by us, two by Mr. Scott or his friends here, while Mr. Finis Foust, president of the Montgomery county Alliance, shall be the fifth man. We will allow a column and a half a week on each side of the question for four weeks for discussion. If at the end of that time the committee by a majority vote does not decide that the Democratic platform on the currency question is better for the people than the platform either of the Republican party or the People's party we will agree to donate twenty-five dollars to the Montgomery county Alliance, to be expended as its officers may see fit.

We make the above offer because we consider it a perfectly safe offer. We have never said one word to Mr. Foust or Mr. Warfield on the subject here mentioned, but we know them both to be honorable gentlemen who will render an honest decision on any question submitted to them. It would be hard for us to raise twenty-five dollars after paying the awful pension demands of Mr. Scott, of Kansas, but for the good of the cause and of the people who have always sustained us we are willing to risk that amount. We want the attention of our people called to the platforms of the three parties, especially on the currency question.

Is the five dollar proposition of Mr. Scott, of Kansas, still open? If so we accept it. Does the Montgomery county Alliance need twenty-five dollars? If so it can get the money by showing that the Democratic platform is not the best now before the people on the currency question. Select the committee and open the discussion.

ON RECORD.
"In confutation of these and all future calumnies, by way of anticipation, I shall make to you a profession of my political faith, in confidence that you will consider every imputation on me, if of a contrary complexion, as bearing on its front the mark of falsehood and calumny. . . . I am for free commerce with all nations."
—Thomas Jefferson to Ellbridge Gerry.

"We denounce Republican protection as a fraud, taxing the labor of the great majority for the few. We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the Federal Government has no right to impose and collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue only, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the Government when honestly and economically administered."
—National Democratic Platform.

"If I am to name the typical American, the man who loves and believes in his country beyond everything else—the man who, determining once in what direction his duty leads, cannot be swerved from the path—the man who is doggedly persistent in what he believes to be right—the man who thinks not of self, but of his country and its needs, I would name Grover Cleveland. What he has accomplished is the very highest tribute to the possibilities of American citizenship."
—Chauncey Depue, Republican.

"Our workmen are still told the tale, oft repeated, in spite of its demonstrated falsity, that the existing protective tariff is a boon to them, and that under its beneficent operation wages must increase, while as they listened scenes are enacted in the very abiding place of high protection that mock the hopes of toil and attest the tender mercy the workmen receive from those rendered selfish and sordid by unjust governmental favoritism."
—Grover Cleveland.

"I am sorry, indeed, to hear of any Southern Alliance Democrat going in to a third party, for it means, to my mind, ruin to the South, turning our Southland over again to Republican rule, and I hope before the final step is taken our brethren will reconsider and think what the result will be and where it will eventually lead to—ruin, ruin, ruin."
—Governor Buchanan last April.

"I don't give rebels in the South vouchers. I would rather furnish rope to hang every d—n one of them."
—Gen. Weaver, Peoples' party nominee for President.

"I am inclined to think that there will eventually come in this country a dictatorship. There is a growing demand for a strong government that will be able to protect all of its citizens, rich and poor, white and black alike. I am working with the Republican party because I believe it is the best instrument to secure this condition of justice to all. In fact there is nothing better for us."
—Fred Douglass.

"I have read that bill with care and attention more than twenty times. I have read it in the light of calm consideration. And I repeat that if it were presented to me now with the alternative of party support or party dismissal I should not vote for the bill. A more infamous bill, in my judgment, never passed the threshold of the doors of the Senate. Avowedly in the interest of good government, it was instigated, in my judgment, by men whose interest it was to prevent a full expression of the will of voters at the polls."
—Henry M. Teller, Republican Senator from Colorado, on the Force bill.

"Put none but Democrats on guard."
—Pete Turney.
