A southern authority declared Adam was a democrat and a contemporary is anxious to know what there is to substantiate it. The Herald has never inquired into the first man's political affiliations, but a little consideration shows any number of proofs to sustain the southerner's argument. There are some scoffers who jump at the conclusion the first thing that it was because Adam saw snakes before he had been in the garden a week and was rejected by his landlord, but the Herald has reasons for rejecting this argument. We are told that God looked upon him and he was good. That's proof, but it's only a starter. We are further told that Adam took an apple from the forbidden tree and ate it. If he had been a republican he would have taken all the apples from the tree, incorporated himself as a cider mill and charged Eve an exorbitant protective tariff to smell his breath, because he was an infant industry. Thirdly, who ever heard of a republican in habiting a country where there were no offices to hold? But if there was no other proof we have the most conclusive proof in the fact that Adam raised Cain before Able. The one distinguished characteristic of democrats is that they raise Cain before they are able; that is why they are seldom in power. Republicans promise to raise Cain if the people will make them able but, when the time comes, they put it off until after the congressional elections and after they are returned to office they discover, as Adam did, that raising Cain either before or after they are able doesn't pay, so they don't do it. Adam was a democrat; there is no question about it.—Yankton Herald.

Keep Smiling

Many Little Helps in Calling Fate's Bluff.

(By Rev. Frank Crane, Chicago)

It is wonderful what you can do if you will only keep your chin up.

This is a strange world, and one of the strangest things about it is the way it sympathizes with success.

We are supposed to sympathize with failure and grief, but we don't.

I am going to tell you the truth about this naughty world, and the truth is that whatever way you're going, up or down, people want to help you along.

If you are going up we all want to boost; if you are going down we all want to push. That is what we call sympathy.

You hear complaints that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer. That has always been the case, simply because it is human nature. Society has always been organized to increase the wealth of the wealthy and the power of the powerful; also to make the weak weaker.

There's no use whining about it. It is simply one of the flinty laws of nature. The only thing to do with nature's laws is to adjust oneself to them and not complain.

This might be called the law of the inertia of prosperity.

You are guilty yourself. Whom do you want to see? The man everybody wants to see. And you read the book everybody's reading and go to the store where it is "the thing" to go.

If you have a hundred dollars ahead to whom do you want to hand it? To the poor man who needs it? Not at all, but to the rich banker who doesn't need it.

If I ask you for the loan of a quarter you will pass it over to me without a word if you think it is a trifling matter to me; but if you suspect I really am in want and need the quarter to buy a little food with, that's quite another affair; you can't encourage that sort of thing; I should go to the Associated Charities.

Now, the way to use this law is to feign prosperity even if you have it not. Keep your chin up.

Wear good clothes. Don't withdraw from the society of the prosperous. Look pleasant. Don't let yourself get down at the heel. Don't get that poor beggar look on your face.

It isn't hypocrisy. It isn't pretense. It is sheer courage. It is letting the world know that while you live you propose to fight, and that like old General Taylor you "don't know when you're licked."

Keep smiling and a unfriendly universe will not know what to do with you; so it will crown you.

Says Alfred de Vigny: "All those that struggle against the unjust heavens have had the admiration and secret love of men."

Fate is a bluff. Face her, defy her, and she will fawn on you.

Fate is cruel, but only to the quitter.

WIDENS THE SCOPE OF MINING BUREAU

Washington, Feb. 26.—President Taft today signed a bill which more clearly defines the functions and broadens the scope of the Federal bureau of mines. This act is the first general recognition by the Federal Government of all branches of the mining industry, according to Representative Foster, chairman of the house committee on mines and mining.

"The bureau of mines retains its original name under the law," he said, "but it becomes a bureau of mining, metallurgy and mineral technology and this language represents the wider scope of the new organization."

The purpose of the new organization or to better safeguard the lives of the men engaged in hazardous occupations to prevent unnecessary waste of natural resources and to aid in the general upbuilding of mining.

Coal Waste.

The production of anthracite in Pennsylvania includes appreciable quantity of usable fuel recovered from the old culm banks by washeries, and the unsightly monuments to the wasteful methods of early times are disappearing from the landscape in the anthracite region. The quantity of coal recovered in twenty-two years since the first washery was constructed in 1890, has amounted to about 50,000,000 long tons, considerably more than total production amounting to 4,136,944 long tons. In addition to the coal recovered from the banks, 94,647 long tons in 1911, and 91,833 tons in 1910, were recovered from the bottom of the Susquehanna river by dredges.

In the bituminous regions the principal use of washeries is to improve the quality of the slack coal used in the manufacture of coke by reducing the ash and sulphur, although considerable quantities, particularly in Illinois, are washed in the preparation of sized coal for household use. The quantity of bituminous coal washed at the mines in 1911 was 12,634,111 short tons. The washeries yielded 10,969,481 tons of cleaned coal and 1,483,633 tons of refuse.

Killed at Cadet.
Toney Hook, a young single man about 21 years old, whose home was at Middleboro, and at the time of his death a fireman on a freight train on the L. & N., was instantly killed at Cadet Sunday night. The crane that catches the mail at the Cadet postoffice had been let down Sunday night and just before the passenger train arrived a freight train passed and it is supposed that the fireman had his head out of the cab when his engine passed and was struck in the head by the mail crane, killing him instantly, as above stated.
