VOL XXVIII JULY 1, 1920 No. 8

OUTLAW STRIKERS

The members of the labor unions are supposed to abide by the rules of their unions and obey the orders of the leaders, when those orders do not conflict with the laws of the State. Yet, in spite of this, we find the country facing strike after strike which the leaders claim is not authorized and which cause untold hardships to millions of people. Where is the authority of the leaders in these cases?

Railroad men, several hundred thousand of them, so it was claimed, were idle for some time this Spring—and yet the strike was supposedly "unlawful." When the railroads gave them a certain time in which to return to work or lose their ratings for promotion, they openly defied them and did not present themselves until the time limit had expired. Then we find the leaders, those same leaders who had declared the strike "unlawful," going to the railroads and interceding for a restoration of the men without loss of rank.

The printers in New York were out for many months on what they chose to call a "vacation," and which their leaders insisted was not sanctioned by the union. Was any member of a union ever fined or otherwise disciplined for going on an "unlawful" strike? Nay, was any member of a union ever out on such a strike who did not receive the regular strike benefits during the time he was unemployed?

We believe in the principles of unionism. We believe that organization has accomplished much for the workingman and will accomplish much more. But we do not believe that the public, who in the last analysis must bear the burden of strikes, can be deceived by any such subterfuge. Either the leaders must control their men and send them back to work when a strike is unauthorized, or they must admit that the strike is backed by the union.

During the bituminous coal strike the men were ordered back to work, but it was afterward testified that the leaders issued the order "with their fingers crossed." It was not meant to be obeyed, and perhaps no one would have been so much surprised as the leaders if the men had taken it seriously.

It is time for straight dealing on both sides. The great public will insist that both union men and employers live strictly to their agreements, and if the men fail to do so and the leaders cannot compel them to obey orders, then the leaders should resign and give way to men who can do better. The "unlawful" strike fools no one—least of all the public, who foot the bills.

RACE RIOTS

The trouble in Chicago is more than the death of three men and the wounding of several others. It brings forth that latent race hatred which we have tried so hard to stifle in America. So long as man has recognized different races, so long has there been war one with another. And so long as man endures this race antagonism will endure unless human nature is re-born.

The Almighty, in His wisdom, has not made up all of one race, and there are differences which cannot be bridged. Two races can live together in peace and amity, but two races cannot exist co-equal. The superior race will rule.

and all history shows that it is the race with the greatest mental development that controls the world. The negro did not come here voluntarily, hence we must deal with the negro question differently than with the Chinese or Japanese question. The latter is a question of immigration—the former a question of facing serious facts.

Cool heads must meet and solve the problem. It must not be with violence on either side, but must be along the lines of Justice, always keeping in mind the differences between the races, their characteristics and their mental and moral status. If God had intended the negro to be our equal, he would have made them white.

The railroads must have money to operate, but the public must not be called upon to pay one cent more in freight or passenger charges than is needed for efficiency and for reasonable return on investment—minus the water.

Today's dollar is worth only fifty cents, or less, compared to pre-war valuations. Well, they are coming easy, and the man who saves these easy dollars will find them purchasing as much as ever if the slump comes—and if not, he is making provision for the rainy day.

Uncle Sam never defaulted on either principal or interest on any obligation. Therefore, the man who buys Liberty Bonds below par is picking up money, for every one of them will be paid at face value.

Said to be numerous cases of "raised bills" on the market. Seems to be easy to raise the $1 Federal Reserve note to $10. If you will remember that the $1 bill has a picture of Washington, while the $10 contains a likeness of Jackson, you'll be able to spot the raised bill promptly.

State Attorney General Newton, of New York, asserts that between 300,000 and 500,000 persons in New York City belong to organizations which advocate overthrow of the government.

Since they were taken over by the government, about two years ago, the operation of railroads, Pullman lines, express companies and waterways has cost the nation $700,000,000.

The reason why an adequate anti-Soviet army cannot be recruited in Russia is said to be the peasants do not believe that Bolshevism is so bad for them, the Reds having given them land.

Methodist Church Notes

Rev. C. C. Wier, No. 230 Olivier St. Phone Algiers 138.

Yesterday was an interesting day in our church: at the morning hour the pastor's subject was Proverbs 11, 11:30, chapter, 30 vs., "The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise." One feature of the music the Girls' Choir rendered was a violin solo by Miss Orrie Summers. At night Mr. Harris, a guest, spoke upon the subject "Jesus Praying for Peter." It was one of the best sermons that the congregation has heard in some time. Mr. Harris is a young man, but is forceful, prayerful and fluent, and altogether left a deep impression upon his hearers.

Miss Elsie Monk, secretary of the Epworth League of the Lake Charles District, worshipped with us yesterday and made a talk that was greatly appreciated by the Junior Epworth League.

Mr. Herbert Hingle led an interesting devotional service for the Senior Epworth League.

Curtis Blakeman is visiting relatives in Houma.

Our church crowd enjoyed a swim at Spanish Fort Monday night.

News has been received of Claude Entwistle, who was in Sweden when last heard from. He has enjoyed the trip, but hopes the next one will be shorter.
