

NELSON W. ALDRICH.

On a hilltop some twenty miles west of Providence, R. I., stands an old fashioned farm house, the birthplace of Mr. Aldrich. He received an academic education and, leaving school at the age of 17, began his business career as a grocer's boy, and was later clerk in a fish market. Next he was a bookkeeper in a wholesale grocery store. He soon became a partner in the company and a little later sole proprietor. He is still interested in this business.

He began his political career as President of the Common Council of Providence at the age of 24 and a few years later was elected representative of the State and then the National Legislature. In 1881 he became United States Senator and in this capacity he served thirty years.

As a school boy Mr. Aldrich wanted to know the "whys" and "wherefores" of things. Later when bookkeeper he worked all night and until evening of the following day to find a deficiency of ten cents. He found it and this incident shows one reason why Mr. Aldrich is a great and successful man. His wealth is estimated at from ten to twenty million dollars.

Marion Swords Finds Old Friend Is Cousin.

Swords R. Lee, of Alexandria, and Marion L. Swords, of Opelousas, discovered Saturday that they are cousins. Both are well known throughout the state. Mr. Lee is a lumber king of Rapides and a former member of the Louisiana legislature. Sheriff Marion Swords of St. Landry—well, everybody knows, Marion who openly declares his opposition to rotation in office.

Both have met a hundred times before.

"I think Lee is correct," said the sheriff. "He tells me we are cousins. He was evidently named after a Swords family and I do not know of any other family by that name. We came from Georgia, and I have no doubt he has traced it out correctly."

Sheriff Swords met political friends at the Caspopolitan Saturday, too. He admits he has secured some new stationery at the top of which is printed: "I am opposed to rotation in office." He believes a constitutional convention may bring on the prohibition issue, "but perhaps it had as well come now as any time," he added.

"My personal idea is that that convention will develop the next Governor of Louisiana," he added.—New Orleans Item.

A Studebaker wagon bought in 1868 — and working today

THREE generations of farmers have been well and faithfully served by a Studebaker Farm Wagon bought in 1868 by Mitcheal Everman of Centerville, Ia. The grandson of the man who bought this Studebaker wagon writes: "There is not a crack in the hubs and I am using it every day."

Let us prove to you that this is not an exceptional Studebaker wagon. Studebaker has thousands of letters telling about Studebaker wagons that have served their owners just as faithfully as the Everman wagon.

A visit to our store will convince you that the Studebaker Farm Wagons and Buggies we always have in stock are just as reliable—just as well built—as the Studebaker Vehicles of half a century ago.

Come and see us when you need a wagon or harness.
