VISITING TOWNS IN THE WAR ZONE

Montdidier Visited
Montdidier was a city of about 8,000 population, built up entirely of brick and stone. Now it is but a vast pile of debris. The only work of reconstruction that has been done yet is that some of the streets have been cleared.

Our own boys, the First Division, shot up this town. The Germans were in possession and it was the first fight in which the Americans engaged. They went at it with a will, driving out the Boche, but tearing up the town.

I visited the ruins of two very large churches, torn up beyond repair. In one of these ruins were a very large number of German wine bottles.

Wrecked Printing shop
I recognized a printing office as soon as I saw it, though the ecor had about three feet of debris on it. There were enough of the presses showing for me to know what it had been. The only other thing pertaining to the craft that I found was a fragment of a lithographic stone for a letterhead. I salvaged this. This and the ornaments which I cut from an old German officer's cap are probably the only souvenirs which I will be able to take home with me.

So many others that I have found are either too bulky or too heavy. I brought in some Boche shell cases, from which I gingerly removed the contents, but now I think they are not worth taking home.

Yesterday was market day, and the place in front of the Hotel de Ville presented a very lively scene. There were innumerable stalls from which could be purchased all manner of things, mostly junk. The vegetable and flower markets appealed strongly to me and I almost found myself buying things to take home, like I do when I go to New Orleans, though I fear they would not keep.

French Girl not so Wonderful
I think a lot of the A. E. F. have been kidding the folk at home about the French girls. I have seen a lot of them but say American women first last and all the time. However, all tastes do not run alike and many French women are going to America as brides of American soldiers.

PAYS TO READ ADVERTISEMENTS

You've often heard the saying, "It pays to advertise." That is true. And it also pays to read advertisements—pays you. If you read advertisements consistently for any length of time you will agree that this statement is also true.

It pays you in money saved. There are many real bargains offered from time to time in the advertisements appearing in this paper. Watch for them.

It pays you in satisfaction. When a merchant asks you to come to his store he obligates himself to sell you quality goods "as advertised." You have a right to expect satisfaction from what you buy and get it.

It pays you in time saved. When you know exactly what you want to buy and where you want to buy it, you don't have to "look around" and waste time finding it.

Don't you want to save money and time? Wouldn't you like to be sure of getting satisfactory service and quality goods every time you go to a store? Then read the advertisements and patronize the stores which can serve you best.

were able to prove the German soldiers were the guilty ones. The American Red Cross is wonderful," exclaimed Serg. Halyburton, suddenly. "It supplied so well that a prisoner receiving his regular weekly box never had to touch German stuff." [Which must have pleased the Huns down to the ground.]

IMPORTANT ITEMS OF WORLD INTEREST

to perfect the new government, with the probability that Paderewski will be president.

The Supreme Council was said to have agreed upon harsher terms for Germany as the price of renewing the armistice.

Sentiment was said to be crystallizing in favor of moving the seat of the German government from Weimar to Berlin.

The spread of Bolshevism toward the East was said to be one of the most serious phases of the world situation.

Sixty-five suffragists were arrested in Washington for burning an effigy of President Wilson in front of the White House.

The American Red Cross appointed a commission to cooperate in the relief of Russians still held prisoners in Germany.

Comptroller Williams reported that the resources of the national banks have passed the twenty billion-dollar mark.

John M. Parker was the chief speaker at the Boy Scout dedication in Audubon Park of a tree in memory of Theodore Roosevelt.

Threats are made that if the armistice terms are insisted upon, Germany will again plunge the world into war.

President Wilson's plan for the formation of a League of Nations was adopted.

A Belgian delegate at the peace conference urged immediate payment, at least in part, of that country's claims to reparation.

The National Rivers and Harbors Congress proposed that a secretary of transportation be added to the President's cabinet.

The final redraft of the six billion-dollar war revenue bill has been completed.

The House postponed final action on the three-year building program of the navy.

Reports to the State Board of Health indicated that the outbreak of small-pox at Lake Charles is under control.

Japan threatened war on China to enforce her silence as to secret treaties and to enforce territorial claims.

Germany was reported preparing to raise by conscription a new army for the protection of her frontiers and against the Bolsheviks.

The government announces an extended thrift campaign to be conducted throughout the United States.

A truce until noon Saturday was agreed upon in the building trades strike in New York.

Fifty-four aliens from Seattle and the West were put on Ellis Island New York, preliminary to being deported from the United States.

A. M. Wright of Ruston succeeded the late John Marshall, Gov. Pleasant's private secretary.

preparing returns.

LABOR SHORTAGE

Fears of long-continued unemployment are discounted by a report from the training service of the department of labor, which predicted that when agriculture and industrial concerns get under way in the spring there will be a shortage of several million men.

Manufacturers were urged to begin at once a training program to increase the efficiency of the help they now have in anticipation of the shortage to come later.

The statement said that practical cessation of immigration in the last four years had caused a loss of 2,500,000 new inhabitants and that probably 1,000,000 American workers would be under arms in France for many months.

WOMAN'S VS MAN'S PAY

Mrs. Amanda B. Brown, expert in the redemption of mutilated money, who died recently at the age of eighty-one after forty three years of service in the United States Treasury, earned the gratitude of countless poor persons by her identification of the charred remains of currency and performed marvelous feats in determining the original value of burned or mutilated fragments of bills, but her pay was only $1,500 a year.

And the chances all are that if a man can be found competent to replace this conscientious and indefatigable woman, he will be paid three or four times as much as she received.

The proposed scheme for providing farms for returning soldiers and sailors is only "an extension" of the idea upon which the original Reclamation Act of the United States government was based, and in the working out of which in the west, the government already has expended about $115,000,000 in the last fifteen years.
