SUFFERED TORTURES.

Racked With Pain, Day and Night, For Years.

Wm. H. Walter, engineer of Chatsworth, Ill., writes: "Kidney disease was lurking in my system for years. I had torturing pain in the side and back and the urine was dark and full of sediment. I was racked with pain, day and night, could not sleep, or eat well, and finally became crippled and bent over with rheumatism. Dean's Kidney Pills brought quick relief, and, in time, cured me. Though I lost 40 pounds, I now weigh 200, more than ever before."

Indirect Persuasion.

On a vacant lot in West Philadelphia and down in a hollow made by raising the grade of the streets newly opened through some old farming land there were observed the other day two men huddled over a tiny fire, which was fanned by the same wintry wind that blew through their long and flowing whiskers. One of the knights of the road was eating something out of a tin can, and the other was reading a newspaper. "I could dig that channel for the Delaware," said the reader, "for less money than the subway would cost. I'd get a lot of gold dust and salt the bottom, put it light on the surface and squirt it in with a force pump so as to make more gold the deeper you went. This need only be done in one spot. Then I'd have some one discover that spot and begin to dredge out the gold. The city could then sit back and take in money for permits to dredge, and the channel would soon be cleared out all the way down without further expense."—Philadelphia Record.

Sheridan in a National Convention.

"It is a tradition that no American ever refused a Presidential nomination," said Judge W. B. Rodgers, City Solicitor of Pittsburgh, "and yet I saw a very noted man stammer forth a renunciation of the place, although it had not really been tendered him. It was at the Chicago convention of 1880, when we battled for days before Garfield finally won. I was there as one of the 306 who stuck by Grant to the last ditch. Somebody in the convention hall shouted out: 'Mr. Chairman, I nominate General Phil Sheridan for President.' There were cheers, and in a moment the little cavalryman was on his feet, very greatly confused, very red in the face and yet determined to speak. 'Please don't mention my name,' he said. 'I assure you that I have no such ambition. I am loyal to my old chief. Then he sat down amid a tremendous uproar of plaudits.'—Washington Herald.

BLACK, ITCHING SPOTS ON FACE.

Physicians Called It Eczema in Worst Form—Patient Despaired of Cure—Cuticura Remedies Cure Her.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black spots all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians in— After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. Their treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Then my husband purchased a single set of the Cuticura Remedies, which entirely stopped the breaking out. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every spot was entirely gone. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. Mrs. Lizzie E. Sledge, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1907."

Catching Cold.

A baldheaded physician as he brushed a few flies from the white and polished dome of his skull, said: "I used to be dreadfully subject to colds even in the summer. I had to wear a black skull cap all the time. The minute I took it off I began to sneeze and wheeze. But now for a year I have not once worn a skull cap and I have not once had a cold. Why, I could go and stand bareheaded in a snowstorm without any ill effect. My immunity to colds comes from this: Every morning I put my head under the cold water spigot and let the cold water run for a minute on my bald crown. This is a refreshing thing, and since I began to do it I have never had a cold."—Milwaukee Journal.

Diet of the Oldest Parisienne.

This is the daily diet of Mme. Robinson, aged 107, the oldest inhabitant of Paris: Early in the morning she takes a cup of chocolate and a biscuit. At noon she eats some eggs, mashed potatoes or peas and fruit, and in the evening at 6 o'clock, about an hour before she goes to bed, she takes a bowl of soup. She drinks only water sweetened with a little sugar and colored with a drop of wine. For years she has scarcely tasted any meat, and only once in a while she takes a little breast of chicken. On this diet she expects to live happily still many years.—New York World.

WENT TO TEA.

And It Wound Her Bobbin.

Tea drinking frequently affects people as badly as coffee. A lady in Salisbury, Md., says that she was compelled to abandon the use of coffee a good many years ago, because it threatened to ruin her health and that she went over to tea drinking, but finally she had dyspepsia so bad that she had lost twenty-five pounds and no food seemed to agree with her.

She further says: "At this time I was induced to take up the famous food drink, Postum, and was so much pleased with the results that I have never been without it since. I commenced to improve at once, gained my twenty-five pounds of flesh and went some beyond my usual weight. 'I know Postum to be good, pure and healthful, and there never was an article, and never will be, I believe, that does so surely take the place of coffee as Postum Food Coffee. The beauty of it all is that it is satisfying and wonderfully nourishing. I feel as if I could not sing its praises too loud.' Read 'The Road to Wellville,' in pgs. 'There's a Reason.'"

IF SERAPHINE ON GOING TO THE CITY.

Seraphine, my Seraphine! I had not finished breakfast, dear, 'tis true. I'd like another buckwheat cake or two. Put, hark! The distant tooting 8.15— Farewell, my Seraphine. Ah, life is such a rush! A tumble out of bed, a scurry down, a race to depot, and a jolt to town. And then, reverse the process, adding— Ah, such an empty rush. Yes, love, I have the list: One ham, one servant girl, two spoons of milk. The new hall carpet and the baby's milk. You'll see, when I return, that nothing's missed. That you've put on your list. Time's short; where is my hat? And where my mackintosh and over-shoes? I'll need them both against this rain and cold. Ah, there! I felt that in no small a flat One source could lose one's hat. And now, at last, goodbye. Oh, for a house in town, however meek! But there! It can't be done on six a week— So we commute. Hark! It is rumbling high— Ta-ta! So-long! Goodbye!

I'll stop to add just this: I used this style of poem yesterday. And rather liked it, in my artless way. Hence this—Now, let me fly, or I shall miss The train, for adding this! —Richmond Times-Dispatch.

What An Elisor Is.

The function of "Elisor" conferred upon a business man by Judge Danne of San Francisco to hunt for Abraham Reuf and bring him before the court is not a familiar one here in America, and must have puzzled most readers of the news from California. The word is of French derivation, from elire, to choose, and represents in English law a person chosen by the court to perform certain duties of a sheriff when that official is disqualified by self-interest. Some of the dictionaries limit the functions of an elisor to the duty of returning a jury, but others make him eligible to the performance of any of the duties of a sheriff or coroner under the orders of the court.—Springfield Republican.

Painless Cancer.

There is a prevailing opinion that cancer is always painful from the beginning, whereas it is really painless in the majority of cases. It is desirable to ascertain how far the public ought to be instructed in the early signs of cancer, with a view to the adoption of earlier diagnosis, and consequently earlier operation.—Hospital.

Doctor's Advice Taken.

"Medicine won't help you any," a 15th Ward physician told a patient, after diagnosing his case. "I see what ails you. What you need is a complete change of living. Get away to some quiet country place for at least a month. Go to bed early, eat more roast beef, drink plenty of good, rich milk and smoke just one cigar a day. And if you are in this neighborhood in a month or two drop in and let me see you." The man started off feeling that he was already on the road to improvement, and the next day found him headed for the country. A little more than a month passed. One day the patient walked into the doctor's office. He looked like a new man, and the doctor told him so. "It pays to have a change sometimes, doesn't it?" was the doctor's greeting. "Yes, doctor, your advice certainly did the business. I went to bed early and did all the other things you told me to do. But say, doctor, that one cigar a day almost killed me at first. I tell you, it's no joke starting in to smoke at my time of life."—Philadelphia Record.

Indian's Fondness for Dancing.

Like the rest of his red skinned brethren, the Crow Indian dearly loves the dance. An Indian will drop his haying in the face of a thunderstorm to go to a dance, and a snow will forget all her hifalutin college education at the prospect of keeping step to the magic beating of those tom-toms.

The music of the dance represents the summons of the ages—it is the call of the wild which the Indian cannot resist. The best and most industrious succumb to its wiles.

The Government is trying to stop Indian dancing on all the reservations, for the reason that an Indian will do nothing but dance when he is given free rein. Crops and blooded stock and all the higher ideals of civilization would soon go to smash on the reservation if the Indians were allowed to dance when and where they pleased. So, beyond a few dances, given at stated intervals, and a big "dance fest" at the time of the annual fair, the Crows have very little of their favorite enjoyment, unless one counts the dances that are held on the sly.—Denver Republican.

WORKING WOMEN, WHAT THEY SHOULD KNOW

MRS. SADIE ABBOTT MRS. PREE MCKITTRICK

Women for the most part spend their lives at home, and it is these women who are willing and ambitious that their homes shall be kept neat and tidy, who do their own cooking, sweeping, dusting and often washing, ironing and sewing for the entire family, who call for our sympathy.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done" and it is any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or alteration of the abdominal organs, a female weakness is brought on, and the struggle of that wife and mother to continue her duties is pitiful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, is the exact medicine a woman needs whose strength is overtaxed. It keeps the feminine organs in a strong and healthy condition. In preparing for childbirth and recuperating therefrom it is most efficient. It carries a woman safely through the change of life and in making her strong and well assists her to be a good wife and mother.

Mrs. Sadie Abbott, of Jeanette, Pa., writes: "I suffered severely with pain every month and also a pain in my left side. My doctor prescribed for me but did me no good. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I wrote you in regard to my condition. I followed your advice and am a perfectly well woman. The pains have all disappeared and I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL ACHES

It's a very strong friendship that can survive intimacy.

Did you ever know that Gen. Benjamin F. Butler considered himself a handsome man? Well, he did, says the Boston Herald, and there is a letter in his own handwriting pasted on a Washington street store window to prove it. Ben wrote it in July, 1879, and thanked the firm of haters for the gift of a "skypiece" in these words:

"I take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of your hat, with thanks for your kindness. 'The proof of the pudding is in eating the hat,' said the proverb, and I have worn your hat both ashore and afloat and do say it is one of the best if not the best hat I ever wore. Besides, I have been complimented for my good looks with it on. With thanks for your kindness, I am very truly yours, 'BENJAMIN F. BUTLER.'"

Innocent but infectious.

A man running toward the Reading Railway station, Germantown, on Saturday, as it in great haste to make the train, was the cause of enlivening the gate of a number of other pedestrians bent on that purpose, among whom were several women who fancied they were late for the train. As the latter wore shoes of the cramped pattern known as pumps, their discomfort in running may be imagined. When, breathless, they reached the station they found the first runner sitting comfortably and reading a paper, with ten minutes' margin before train time. One of the women, made bold by indignation, advanced upon the cause of her anger with the query: "What were you running for?" The answer was "For my health."—Philadelphia Record.
