

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

For the first time since the close of the war for Secession, a President elect has addressed himself, in his inaugural, to the reason and patriotism of the American people.

Mr. Garfield has had the good sense and the courage to speak kindly of the South and thus proclaim to the country that the Union is now fully re-established.

As President of the United States, not as the Generalissimo of the Republican party, does Mr. Garfield express his broad and enlightened views, the greater portion of which will meet the approval of a large majority of the people. He evidently believes that the light of education will serve the colored voter better, in directing his ballot, than the bayonets of the army.

By following the course which he has mapped out, the new President will quiet sectional animosities and distrusts. The people will cease to look upon future presidential elections as approaching revolutions, and they will, confidently, devote their thoughts and energies towards the development of the industries of our wonderful country.

The people of the Solid South do not expect of Mr. Garfield that will appoint others to office than those who supported his candidacy. Therefore will they not complain of him for so doing. If he will remain where he has placed himself in his inaugural, he can feel assured that nowhere will his administration be more cordially supported than at the South.

THE NEW ORLEANS PACIFIC.

Progress of the Work Between New Orleans and Shreveport.

The reports concerning the progress of the work on the New Orleans Pacific Railroad are very favorable. The fine weather recently has facilitated operations on the road, and it is now about settled that it will be completed to Shreveport by the 1st of September.

The contract for the branch road of seven miles to connect the main line with Baton Rouge has been let out, and railroad communication between the Capital and New Orleans will be established by July 4th.

Track laying will be carried on at several different points along the road, at Shreveport, on both sides of Alexandria, and at Bayou Goula.—N. O. Picayune.

From present indications the work on the Capitol will have so far progressed as to permit the Press Association to hold their meeting on the first Monday of September next, in the restored Senate chamber. If the N. O. Pacific is completed by that time, the editorial fraternity will have reason to rejoice in the fact that it will be the first body to assemble in the new Capitol, after reaching it from North and South Louisiana by means of the "iron horse." We hope that Mr. Wheelock will not spoil the project by failing to come to time with his road.

THE LIFE OF A HUNTER SAVED BY HIS DOG.

Herman Hutter and Charles Whitman, of Missouri, armed with rifles and accompanied by a deerhound, the other day went up the Rattlesnake river in quest of game. They climbed the mountain to the left of the stream and separated, taking opposite sides of the ridge, in the hopes of legging a deer. Whitman came down the Rattlesnake side, and soon after separating from his companion, he slipped and fell, sliding some two hundred feet down the mountain side. He vainly endeavored to stop himself by digging into the snow with his hands and feet, and clutching at brush and saplings, till just as he was about to be precipitated over the cliff into the Rattlesnake, some forty feet below, he clasped a strong sapling with one hand, and was left dangling in the air over the precipice. By a strong effort he clasped the sapling with his arm in the elbow, and grasping his wrist with the disengaged hand, awaiting his inevitable fall with desperation. The hound, seeing his master fall, followed him to the edge of the cliff and whined piteously at the predicament of his master. Suddenly he dashed off over the hill and disappeared. When nearly exhausted, Whitman heard his companion, Hutter, above him, coming to his assistance. He gathered renewed courage, and held on desperately till Hutter came and reached him. Hutter says the dog came upon him and seized hold of his clothing, whining. He turned upon him and the dog ran off. Repeating the strange maneuver, Hutter suspected something wrong, and followed the dog to Whitman's rescue.

THE NEW CABINET.

We append a list of the members of the Cabinet, chosen by President Garfield, all of whom were promptly confirmed by the Senate:

Hon. Jas. G. Blaine, the Secretary of State, is too well known to the country to need any introduction. He has, heretofore, been considered a violent partisan and a bitter enemy of the South. He is, however, a man of transcendent ability and will possibly be guided in the future by the dictates of statecraft, rather than blind prejudices.

Mr. Windom, the Secretary of the Treasury, has served in both houses of Congress. He is a man of large business experience and is reputed to be fully competent to fulfill the responsible duties assigned to him. He favors internal improvements and the development of water ways.

Wayne McVeigh, the Attorney General, has been quite independent in politics, and has never been popular with the machine politicians of his State. He is a man of learning, not likely to prostitute his office to promote party schemes. He is the son-in-law of the late Simon Cameron.

Robert Lincoln, the Secretary of War, is a young lawyer who has acquired a good reputation at the Chicago bar. He is the son of President Lincoln.

Judge W. H. Hunt, the Secretary of the Navy, is taken from the U. S. Court of Claims. He comes from a family which has won great distinction at the bar and in the arena of Louisiana politics. Since it has become wise to appoint as the heads of the Naval Bureau, men who can't tell a lugger from an old-fashioned three decker, we opine that Mr. Hunt will do as well as any other distinguished jurist that might have been designated as "the ruler of the whole navy."

Mr. James, of New York, has been Post Master of the Empire City. He suits Conkling, so rumor has it. Mr. Kirkwood, of Iowa, is the Secretary of the Interior, has been Senator for four years and is personally popular.

The construction of the cabinet is considered a triumph for the Blaine wing of the party. The Democrats concluded to support it and did so in a body.

The situation is an exceedingly interesting one, the President having arrayed himself with the Republicans who defeated the third term and secured his nomination at Chicago. Conkling, the leader of the stalwarts, takes his defeat with calmness.

BAYOU MANCHAC.

We understand that a party of U. S. Surveyors are taking the levels of Bayou Manchac with the view of reporting upon the feasibility of opening this natural canal to steamers plying the Mississippi.

By a system of locks, it is believed that the rich timber region accessible through the Manchac, might be opened to the markets of the coast and the upper Mississippi. Steamers that cannot now reach this splendid region could easily enter it through this Bayou.

Though the Manchac, Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf coast would be within a few hours travel of this city, and an immense lumber trade developed that would render very valuable lands on the shores of the East Louisiana parishes, that are worth little or nothing at present.

We hope that this important matter will not escape the attention of the Mississippi River Commission.

Last Monday morning, in this city, at the residence of the bride's parents, were united in the bonds of matrimony, Miss Clara E. Nelson and Philip H. Mentz, Esq. There were assembled, on this happy occasion, a large number of the friends of the contracting parties—many of whom, having come from afar, especially to witness the union of hearts and hands. After the ceremony, the invited guests sat down to a breakfast table laden with most tempting viands. The bride and groom, accompanied by a large concourse of warm friends, on the same day, left for New Orleans, to witness the carnival celebration, after which they will proceed to Baton Rouge, the residing place of the groom's relatives, to be gone about two weeks. They carry with them the warm congratulations of numerous well wishers; and may their journey through wedded life be strewn with flowers freshened with the dews of unalloyed happiness and prosperity, is our sincerest wish.—Morgan City Review.

Leading Chicago physicians attribute the disease known as "winter cholera," which has recently prevailed there to an alarming extent, to the consumption of "batterine."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
