Don't!
DON'T SKIP THESE LINES just because its an advertisement—a legitimate, honest advertisement deserves better treatment. Don't sigh and say you take no stock in advertisements, you'd be mighty apt to use the same means if you had occasion for it, and what is more, await early responses and good results. Don't close your eyes to the fact that an advertisement is the best and most convenient factor between buyer and seller, usually to the benefit of both—the buyer as well as seller. And don't you forget that we are SELLERS of most everything pertaining to Men's and Boys' Wear, that we have fresh from the factories, an immense stock of fine Suits, Overcoats, Trousers, Hats, Caps, Shoes, Topshirts, Underwear, Neckwear, Gloves, Hosiery, and most anything that goes to make the Man or Boy completely and well dressed, and that we are ready for a rushing fall trade. Finally, don't forget that our prices are invariably as modest and reasonable as the lowest quotations in this whole blessed country, and its up to you what to do! So think twice before you forget us once.

MISS HASWELL HERE.
In "The Favor of the Queen"—Shakespeare's Character Introduced—Audience Lacks Enthusiasm.

To paraphrase Mrs. Parington "comparisons are odorous." Perhaps it was for this reason that Miss Haswell's presentation of "The Favor of the Queen," coming as it did the night after the brilliant dashing "Winsome Winnie," with Miss Paula Edwards, was so quietly received by such an audience, the size of which never filled Colonial Theatre, who, while it showed quiet interest, lacked enthusiasm. The comparison was so striking that to quote Shakespeare, who himself was one of the actors, "it smelt to heaven."

Miss Haswell, the darling of the gods and goddesses of Baltimore, did not receive the curtain calls she does there, nor was she called upon to make any speeches; not because her work was unappreciated, but perhaps because she has yet to "grow upon" an Annapolis audience which is more or less phlegmatic. The play itself is new, and yet it is old. The heroine is suggestive of both Rosalind and Viola. Miss Haswell's impersonation of Lady Julia whose identity is hidden in the "boy Ned," is marked by freedom, grace and animation. Her love scenes are beautiful, and the difficulties she meets because of her male attire give a touch of humor to the character she impersonates. While a mixture of Rosalind and Viola, Lady Julia has some degree of value as a dramatic creation and Miss Haswell brought out the very best there was in the character. As the play progressed, the audience warmed up, and now and then there was a burst of applause or a ripple of laughter.

Miss Anit Carroll, the young society woman of Baltimore who has recently gone on the stage, was cast as Anne Hathaway, Shakespeare's wife. She had a small part and but few lines. Her voice is poor, and she was either frightened or has mistaken her vocation. The play is far too wordy. There are long conversations and dialogues when Miss Haswell, who is the play itself is not on the stage that are tiresome and meaningless. The drinkingscene in the second act could be cut out without damage to the play.

It lacks humor and is wearisome. For at least five minutes nothing is said, and the silence is painful before Master Barton falls asleep after his debauch. The waits between the acts are almost of the "Sweet Jasmine" type, and apparently not scenery to justify them. Many of the characters either have not committed them well or forgot their lines and had to be prompted by Miss Haswell, who herself appeared to be stranded for the cue at one interval of the play.

The author of the play, Mr. Roy S. Senebault, is a more boy. It was a somewhat daring thing to do when he introduced such characters as Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth and the Earl of Essex as characters. Yet he has done it with tact and has put such beautiful lines into the mouths of his Shakespeare's great playwright himself his part into the mouths of others. The young author gives great promise and had his play been seen here under more favorable circumstances and not by strong contrast, it might have scored a hit and met with a more enthusiastic audience.

Change of Residence.
Mr. George E. Merriam, wife of Commander Merriam, has taken her home on Prince George street, formerly occupied by the family of the Rev. William Munford, and will reside here for the winter.

The family of Mr. Frank Bealer has moved to Laurel, where they have taken up their residence. Mr. Bealer is train dispatcher at the tower near that place.

Mrs. John C. Boesell has taken the house on Prince George street recently purchased from Mrs. Robeck. She has had the house newly papered and painted and fitted up as a model boarding house with all new furnishings. It is in a desirable locality and Mrs. Boesell expects to have it filled with Delegates and Senators during legislative session this winter.

Major Charles A. Doyen, U. S. M. C., in charge of the barracks at the Naval Academy, left today for Fort Riley, Kansas, to witness military maneuvers. During Major Doyen's absence Captain James O. Breckenridge will act as commanding officer at the marine barracks.

Child Drinks Laudanum.
The two year old daughter of Mr. William Hardesty of West street drank a quantity of laudanum last night from a bottle and was violently ill for some hours. Emetics were given the child and the usual treatment for such cases administered while a physician was being summoned. The result was satisfactory and the child is apparently all right today.

This is the second case of children being poisoned in a similar manner in the last two days. It is a warning to parents to keep poisonous matter out of the reach of children.

Missionary Meeting.
At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held yesterday afternoon. The following were elected first, second and third vice presidents, respectively: Mrs. W. M. Abbott, Mrs. Girault, Mrs. Samuel Jones. Resolutions were passed on the death of Mrs. Ridout the late president.

"Keep Off The Grass"
A new order has been passed at the Naval Academy and it literally means "keep off the grass." No one is allowed to walk on the green sward. Yesterday a young lady who had been accustomed to visit the Academy, took a "short cut" across the grass and was politely told by a watchman she was violating a written law of the Naval Academy.

YESTERDAY'S FOOT BALL.
The Middles Score Eighteen Points Against Deaf Mutes of Gallaudet College By Good Playing.

The Naval Academy football team scored 18 points against the Deaf Mutes of Gallaudet College yesterday afternoon, as stated in the "Capital" last evening. The weather was so warm that the players suffered severely, and the game was stopped a little short of the agreed time in order to allow the visitors to catch a train. Gallaudet carried the ball on end plays well at times, and tackled fiercely and cleanly but they were not quite up to the standard of the midshipmen in playing ability and were considerably out weighed. Nevertheless the Navy boys had to play ball all the time to make any headway.

The Navy got their first advantage on a fumble by the visitors after the first kickoff. The Navy kicked, but the ball rolled along the ground and was fumbled by the visitors. Farley falling on it. The Navy gained ground steadily, and carried the ball to their opponents' eight-yard line. Here ground was lost on a quarterback run, which worked slowly, and Gallaudet got the ball on downs. They could not gain, and punted 30 yards out. From this point the Navy did not lose the ball until Halsey was forced over for the first touchdown, and Howard kicked the goal from a wide angle.

The Navy kicked off again, and was penalized on account of Farley being off sides. Gallaudet had possession of the ball several times before any scoring was done, and Burns made one 20-yard run for Gallaudet. The Navy, however, got the ball in the center of the field, and Strassburger, Farley and Root carried it steadily down the field, and Pearson made the second touchdown, from which Howard again kicked the goal. There were a number of exchanges of punts in the second half, Howard generally gaining from 5 to 10 yards for the midshipmen on each return. Gallaudet also got the ball twice on fumbles and twice on downs. The midshipmen's team was changed considerably, but continued to put up good ball.

Hickey, a new man was tried at left half, and put up a dashing game. Farley and Strassburger were used with the greatest success in carrying the ball. Farley scored the only touchdown in the half, and Howard scored his third goal.

The Navy coaches decided to try a few substitutes in the latter part of the game as a result of which Hickey, Keene, Martin and Bagley were given a chance. They all acquitted themselves well. The line-up:

Navy—Soule, captain, I. e.; Farley, and Martin, I. e.; Oak, c.; Reese, I. e.; Smith, r. g.; Howard, and Bagley, r. e.; Root and Hickey, I. h. b.; Strassburger, r. h. b.; Halsey and Keene, f. b.
Gallaudet—Schoenman, I. e.; Wine-miller, I. e.; Winston, c.; Garrett, r. g.; Messer, I. g.; Neesam, captain, r. e.; Cooley, r. e.; Erd, c. b.; Burns, I. h. b.; Escherich, r. h. b.; Bloedel, f. b.

Referee—Ridgely P. Melvin, of St. John's College; Umpire—C. E. Watson, of Swarthmore. Touchdowns—Halsey, Strassburger and Piersol. Goals—Howard, 3.

THE ARMY-NAVY GAME
To Be Played On November 28th On Franklin Field—The Order Read To The Midshipmen Today.

It has been definitely decided that there will be a game of football this year between the Army and Navy teams, a game which has become of National interest and was thought to have been called off because of technicalities in athletic rules governing the two institutions.

After dinner formation today it was formally given out, and a notice read to the midshipmen to that effect that the game between the Army and Navy would take place as usual this year, at the same time and same place as heretofore. This means that it will be played on Saturday, November 28, at Franklin Field, Philadelphia in the afternoon. The notice also said that the game this year will be played under the same rules and same conditions as formerly, but after this year's games, others will be played according to fixed rules adopted by both Athletic Associations of the Army and Navy.

The news of the Army-Navy game spread like wild fire, and midshipmen as well as citizens were rejoiced at the decision. The news came through a telegram and was announced to the midshipmen at dinner formation. It was a great surprise and caused considerable demonstration.

The message was sent by Superintendent Brownson who said all eligibility rules would be waived this year.

Four Score And Eight.

Mr. John W. James today arrived at the advanced age of 88 years. He was born at Hills Point, Worcester county, Md. Oct. 15, 1815. He has resided here for many years and has followed the vocation of a waterman. He goes out fishing and oystering even at his advanced age when the weather is favorable and attributes his long life and hard constitution to temperance and out of door employment. He now resides with his son, Mr. Frank James at Mill Creek, Third district, and frequently visits his daughter Mrs. O. Klaring of this city.

Relieves Capt. Wainwright.

The Navy Department is informed that Rear Admiral B. P. Lamberton has arrived at Rio de Janeiro and assumed command of the South Atlantic squadron, relieving Capt. Richard Wainwright, commanding the cruiser Newark, who has been temporarily in command of the station since the departure of Rear Admiral George W. Sumner for the United States to await retirement. The cruiser Gloucester awaited Rear Admiral Lamberton at Rio and conveyed him to Santos, Brazil, where the flagship Newark and the other vessels of the squadron are lying.

Marines Leave For Washington

A detachment of the Naval Academy marine guard, under the command of Major C. A. Doyen, left this morning for Washington, to take part in the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the General William T. Sherman statue in that city. The detail consisted of nine commissioned officers, twenty-five noncommissioned officers and 135 privates. They left on the train over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad this morning and will return to night.

Kindergarten Opened

The private Kindergarten taught by Miss Mary Nicholson Magruder, opened yesterday at the school room in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on State House Circle. There was a large attendance of children and the outlook for the school year is most favorable. Miss Magruder is a graduate of the Elliman School of New York, and is a most capable and efficient teacher. The result of her work is most satisfactory and the children leaving her school always enter well in other schools and give evidence of an excellent foundation.

Any more boys wishing to take part should be at the rehearsals on Thursday and Friday afternoons at 4 o'clock. The costumes will be engaged from Baltimore firms.

Service Inadequate.

The service in the midshipmen's mess hall is said to be inadequate. There are not sufficient waiters for the army of midshipmen, who have to be fed and many of them leave the dining room without being satisfied, some not having been served when the signal is given at the close of the meal. The employment of an extra corps of waiters is necessary.

The Real Carvel House.

It is now positively settled that the house occupied by the Sisters of Notre Dame is in reality "Carvel House." Heretofore there has been some doubt, as to the identity of the Scott Mansion, the home of the Sisters of Notre Dame, being the Carvel House made famous by Winston Churchill. All doubt is at last removed. The Sisters have a pet dog named "Carvel" and his home is rightfully—"Carvel House."
