SCHOOL PRINCIPAL
GIVES CHILDREN
PRACTICAL LESSON

Takes Scholars On Trip To Mount Vernon And Visits To Washington

On Saturday, October 11th, Mr. R. Bradley Jones, principal of the Davidsonville School, took a part of his school on a trip to Washington and Mount Vernon. The party left Davidsonville at 6:30 a. m. in Mr. Irving King's top-covered truck, driven by Mr. Benjamin Duckett, and arrived at the steamboat wharf about 9 o'clock, where they went aboard the steamer for Mount Vernon. After landing at Mount Vernon the children apparently utilized every minute of the limited time in seeing all that could be seen at the old homestead of the "Father of his Country."

The party returned to Washington at 2 p. m., and went immediately to the old National Museum, Smithsonian Institute, and the New National Museum, where many exceedingly interesting things, both new and old, are on exhibition from this hemisphere and the remotest parts of the earth.

The next place visited was the Capitol, where the children enjoyed the privilege of seeing both houses of Congress in session and listening to a speech in the Senate on the Peace Treaty and League of Nations. They also had the privilege of looking in through the open door into the room where that august body, the Supreme Court, holds its sessions.

On leaving the Capitol, the party, in the top-covered country truck, paraded up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House, but, of course, with somewhat less ostentation and show than that of the recent military parade; and, as far as could be seen and heard, there was no patriotic demonstration in our honor on the part of those on the side walk, notwithstanding the fact that our school and the community which it represented had done so much to help defeat the Germans, and "made the world safe for democracy." Well, we should have told them before hand that we were coming.

All day the children seemed to have the mania to spend all the money they carried with them on the trip. In order to relieve them of the burden which had been weighing heavily upon them all day the last hour of their stay in the city they had the privilege of spending all the loose change they had left and go home happy and contented with their pocketbooks empty.

Not long after leaving the city a stop was made to eat supper, but an unfortunate cloud passing over at that time quickly put an end to what promised to be a unique little country picnic on the public highway at eventide. Supper being finished on the Davidsonville Special, it pulled out from the side track on the main line and, without incident, under the skillful guidance of Mr. Duckett, it reached Davidsonville on schedule time, about 9 p. m., where the children's parents met them and took them to their homes; some, possibly, dreaming that night that they saw George Washington's ghost, or that they were sleeping in the White House as guests of President Wilson.

TO DECLARE NOV. 11
A STATE HOLIDAY

Governor Harrington Will Issue Proclamation Of Observance Of Armistice Day

FITTING CELEBRATION

Armistice Day will be made a State holiday by proclamation of Governor Harrington.

Announcement to this effect was made by the Governor yesterday, he at the same time declaring himself to be heartily in favor of a celebration in keeping with the importance of the occasion. In order to launch arrangements for such an observance, he said, he would probably name a State committee, giving that matter his immediate consideration, so that the announcement of the names of those selected for the purpose might be made by tomorrow.

This action of the Chief Executive will undoubtedly strike an appreciative chord in the hearts of every citizen of the State, who remembers with what ecstasies of joy the signing of the armistice was hailed just a year ago on November 11. The day is associated with depths of emotions that are rarely so universally sounded.

Mothers To Fly Flags
If there are any members of the community who comprehend the full meaning of the Armistice Day, they are the mothers who had boys across the water, fighting for democracy. And because of its significance to them, it is provided in the constitution of the Service Star Legion, formerly the War Mothers of America, that national banner and service flag shall be flown on that day. But, in addition to that, the members of this organization are anxious that there shall be a public observance of some kind.

Just what kind of an observance is most appropriate and how it shall be organized will be one of the important questions brought before the State meeting of the order, held yesterday afternoon at the Young Women's Christian Association building, Baltimore. In announcing that this matter would be discussed it was stated by one of the officers of the State organization that the Service Star Legion stood ready to co-operate with any patriotic body or bodies or with any State or municipal committees in arranging a program for the day.

MISS MARBURY, LONE K-C
WORKER HOME AGAIN

Miss Elizabeth Marbury on her return from overseas work where she was the only woman worker of the Knights of Columbus said:

"Yanks in France and in the Army of Occupation are strong for the 'back to the farm movement.' The boys responded to the call of the Department of the Interior lectures, which I conducted with really gratifying results."

"Miss Marbury, famous in the show shop world of the Gay White Way, was sent abroad with instructions from the Knights of Columbus to interest the returning soldiers in the plan of Secretary Franklin Lane, of the Department of Interior, in the beauties and advantages of a bucolic life. She traveled some 4,500 miles and gave sixty lectures with moving picture machines."

"The boys were very responsive when I told them valuable land from California to Maine was waiting for them, and that they were allowed forty years to pay for it. The applications just swamped us. One regiment had 400 men who wanted to be farmers."

"I told the boys the Government was willing to lend them money at four per cent, to improve any farm land they took an option upon. I am positive our little drive to get returning soldiers interested in the abandoned farm lands will bring worthwhile results."
