CONSUMPTION.

Its Cure and its Preventive

BY J. H. SCHENCK, M.D.

Many a human being has passed away for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of its unfailing efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proved that when never sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the herald in cases of consumption that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-governing, self-sustaining.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two reasons when the citadel of the system is assailed. Two thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally deranged liver. With this condition of the digestive organs "sympathies" with the lungs. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here then comes the culminating point, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's mildest salts—the Podophyllum Peltatum, or vegetable calomel, but entirely free from the poisonous effects of calomel, but infinite calomel, also!

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and noxious deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Sea-weed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing without its previous torpidity. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is then no flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an Omniscient Father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature is helped to throw off the disease. It gets rid of the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings, it prepares them for expectoration, and let in a very short time the family is vanquished. From this date the blood is revivified and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until cured. It will be almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure can not be effected. Fresh air and riding out, proper cloth according to the season, especially in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they have in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients digest well, sleep well and thus feel satisfied to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was to these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at straws, I tried and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate to my whole system, when a ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would cast up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time.

"As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, night sweats, and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since.

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "and, looking like a mere skeleton, my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A.M. to 12 M. Dr. Schenck's directions, examination with the Respirometer will be required. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can at once learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Full directions and blank books are given, and Nature will do the rest, assisting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the tonic remains used no other accompaniments than the simple refreshments that accompany the good appetite. Of returning health, hunger is the most welcome symptom. Eat, as it will come, let the dessert-spoonful of Pulmonic Syrup be taken. Quiet sleep at proper hours, and rough beers, the night sweat is checked, the cough loosens, the night sweat is checked, the cough loosens, the night sweat is checked, the cough loosens
