THE ELECTION TO-MORROW.

A CONTEST OF VITAL IMPORTANCE.

Its General and Local Aspects.

THE IMPENDING FATE OF BOLTERS.

THE ISSUES PENDING.

The election to-morrow has not enlisted that attention, nor aroused the measure of enthusiasm its importance seemed to call for. In it are involved matters of momentous consequence to the people, and the varied interests that give Illinois prominence as a State. Its results will involve a remodeling, possibly a reconstruction, of that organic law under which, for a half century, we have lived and prospered; and upon the intelligence and influence of the democratic representation in the body with whom that responsibility is reposed, measurably depends the preservation of those State rights that have thus far secured to us self-government, and shielded us from the tyrannies of centralized power. Upon a large democratic representation in the convention most probably depends the protection of our State identity, the assertion and maintenance of those rights committed by our fathers, to the States and the people. Upon such a representation measurably depends a renewed lease upon that enlarged liberty that has insured us happiness and contentment as a people, and distinguished us as free and independent citizens. Upon the same contingency depends the easy acquisition of the rights of citizenship by the foreigner; and, in general, a liberal, democratic organic law.

GALLANT STANDARD BEARERS.

In every representative district of the State the democracy has brought forward its most talented, influential and substantial men as candidates for the constitutional convention. The democrats of Egypt have been particularly fortunate in this regard, and have put forth men whose very names are a tower of strength, and a terror to enemies of a popular government. They are men in whose hands the people may commit the highest trusts, with every assurance of their ability and disposition to do and dare what duty or the common weal requires. Men imbued with a love of constitutional government, appreciating the necessities of our great and growing State, pure in morals, liberal and patriotic in sentiment, they would form just such an assemblage as would insure to us a wise, comprehensive and democratic constitution—one under which our varied interests and institutions would prosper, and our people realize the blessings of a good and liberal government. Elect the democratic nominees, and the flag of our capital will float above the most talented, and patriotic body of men that ever gathered in Illinois or in the Northwest—a body of men of whom the people would feel proud, and in whose honesty, integrity and patriotism the people could place the most unbounded faith and implicit reliance. The bare possibility of securing the presence of such an assemblage in Springfield, or even the probability of securing a controlling representation there, ought to inspire every democrat with enthusiasm, and excite him to a work for his standard bearers that will cease only with the setting of to-morrow's sun.

Hard work, ceaseless effort on the part of democrats, will enlarge the democratic representation in the constitutional convention. The prospect is not altogether gloomy. Effort may let in the sun light. In a single year the hard working democracy of Ohio has reduced the enemy's majority nearly 35,000 votes. Everywhere we have been making the most successful assaults upon the radical works. Strongholds have fallen into our hands, and others are at the very point of capitulation. Illinois is now the battle ground, and we cannot permit ourselves to believe that the enemy will maintain his old advantage. Where his columns were well supported, a year ago, they are now weak, and by a gallant charge we shall break through them. We do not expect to route him—"horse, foot and dragoons"—but we do expect to gain ground, to maintain fields from which we were driven last year, and to convince our foes that, for a "defunct party" we are the liveliest old "corpse" with which they ever had to do. To effect this, we must work. Every man must do his duty, his whole duty and nothing less.

LOCAL ASPECTS OF THE CONTEST.

The election to-morrow is one of considerable consequence to Alexander county. The democratic party has placed in the field a ticket eminently deserving of every democratic vote in the county. It was nominated by a convention, the fairness and legitimacy of which the most captious sorehead cannot question. Through that convention the party spoke, and the nominees of the convention are unquestionably the choice of the party. Never before in the history of the county, has a better ticket been presented. In putting it forward the party has shown a just appreciation of the wants of the county, and the importance and magnitude of public affairs and business. Men have been chosen who are known to be equal to a satisfactory discharge of the duties that will devolve upon them. "Old foginess" has been laid in the shade, and candidates selected who will give county matters a new face. The resources of the county will be intelligently and judiciously applied. The varied wants and necessities of the people will be understood, and supplied as rapidly as prudence may dictate. Our public schools will be faithfully looked after by a man who will seek their elevation and prosperity with the zeal of an enthusiast. Our assessor and treasurer will be a man who will act according to his convictions of duty. Bringing a good judgment to his aid, he will do what he conceives to be just between man and man and then "shoulder the responsibility." The county clerk's office will command the services of the present incumbent—a gentleman fitted by nature, education and experience for that position. No man could fill the position more acceptably; and, for another four years, at least, the democracy will not permit any other man to try. Such is the provision the county convention has made for the immediate future, and what good democrat can question the wisdom or acceptability of the provision?

DECEASED AND MISGUIDED MEN.

Notwithstanding the fact that the convention framed a ticket that is entitled to the support of every man calling himself a democrat, in the county, there are, here and there, avowed democrats who, setting up their judgment against that of the party, declare a purpose to bolt at least a part of the nominations. This is not only very presumptuous in these few men, but an act of bad faith which they will live to regret. One of these men brought to a bed of sickness, and to a calm survey of his course, saw its iniquity, and not only abandoned it, but apologized to his party, and publicly avowed his determination to support the regular nominees. But Mr. Severe Marchildon perseveres in his recreant work, flattered by a few busy-bodies into the belief that there is a chance for his election. The deluded man! The count of ballots to-morrow night will teach him a lesson he will be apt to remember. Of the twelve hundred votes that will be cast to-morrow, Severe Marchildon will not get seventy-five! Of the nine hundred democratic votes that will be thrown, he will not receive fifteen! He will, in short, realize such a difference between his own estimation of himself as an "independent candidate," and the people's estimation of him as a "bolter" that he will feel like hiding his head in shame and confusion. But he will run. Let him take the full measure of rebuke he insists upon.

DEMOCRATS OF CAIRO.

Turn out and vote. You may not consider your ticket in peril; but you will fall in the discharge of a duty if you fail to vote. Every vote will swell the grand aggregate by which we are to determine our present strength and future prospects. One year ago Illinois gave the radical ticket a majority of 51,150 votes. A full democratic vote to-morrow will reduce that majority at least one half, and point us to the time, not in the very distant future, when the "Prairie State" shall have passed from under the sombre cloud of radicalism, to the glorious sun light of democratic rule. Such an inspiring prospect is worth working for. Let us, then, buckle on our armor, and with stout hearts, nerved by a consciousness of the justice of our cause, enter the morrow's fight, each resolved, come weal or woe, victory or defeat, to do his duty.

VOTE FOR HOWLEY AND McCRITE.

The democratic nominees for associate justices, John Howley, of Cairo, and James E. McCrite, of Hazelwood precinct, are just such men as should fill the offices for which they are named. Both of them are eminently practical in their views; and honest and conscientious in their official acts, they are the kind of men to assist in the management of our county business. That, like all men, they are liable to err, we shall not deny; but that either one of them has an act of official neglect or wrong doing to remember or regret, no man will believe who knows them. They are cautious and exact, friendly to such improvements as aid the growth of the county and contribute to the convenience of the people, yet in encouraging these, they keep an eye to the credit of the county and the ability of the people. Against Mr. Howley a "spurt" of opposition has been raised, having its foundation in a spirit the people will rebuke by electing him by a larger majority than will be received by any other candidate on the ticket. Like Mr. McCrite, Mr. Howley enjoys the confidence of the people, and will be returned to his seat in the county court by a majority that will utterly stound his half dozen traducers, who blindly conceive they are playing havoc among his supporters.

VOTE FOR WILLIAM MARTIN.

A resident of the county for more than a quarter of a century, acquainted with the people, possessing a very exact knowledge of "how the land lies" of sound judgment, an honest heart and a resolute will, William Martin will serve the people faithfully, honestly and we believe acceptably, as assessor and treasurer. He is, and always was, a democrat of the inflexible, unflinching type, and is now before the people for the first time in his life, for an office of trust and profit. Shall he have it? "Aye," responds every true democratic heart in the county. Against his private character no man can say a disparaging word. His honesty and integrity stand unimpeached and unimpeachable. Surely for such a man we may, with a good grace, ask every democrat to vote!

VOTE FOR BROSS.

Friend nor foe will deny to Mr. Bross, the democratic candidate for county judge, all the essential requisites to a first class officer. Well versed in statute law, possessing a good store of common, practical sense, firm in his convictions of right, he is the very man to fill the office of county judge. Regardless of what this man may say or what that man may think, Mr. Bross will do his duty and his whole duty. What the law requires at his hands, will be performed by him. He will have no favorites to reward, no enemies to pursue or punish. He will fill the office as an honest, common sense man should, unswayed by fear, favor or affection. He will have opinions of his own, and by them he will be governed. In short E. Bross, Esq., is "got up" just right to fill the office of county judge, and the people will so declare, to-morrow, by a majority that will admit of the designation of "perfectly reusing."

VOTE FOR BUTLER.

Mr. L. P. Butler, the democratic candidate for superintendent of public schools, is a gentleman of very superior qualifications. As the temporary incumbent of that office he has entered upon the discharge of its duties with a zeal quite gratifying to every friend of popular education, displaying in connection therewith, a full knowledge of the duties of his responsible post. He is a young man—life is ahead of him, and as he now sows will be in the future reap. But a higher consideration incites him. He is an enthusiastic friend of public schools, and craves no higher honor than that his name shall be associated with the history of their advancement in Alexander county. That he will make a good officer, one that will be faithful to his trusts, we are satisfied, and therefore appeal to democrats, one and all, "to vote for Butler."

VOTE FOR HELY, VOTE FOR LYNCH, VOTE FOR THE WHOLE TICKET.

In Mr. Lynch, Alexander County boasts of a County Clerk whose superior in point of capacity, fidelity and urbanity, is not to be found in the State. He gives his business his undivided attention, is a splendid scribe, good accountant, and is entirely familiar with all details of the office for which he is named. It is not overestimating Mr. L. or detracting anything from other gentlemen, to say that no man in the county is better qualified for the office of County Clerk than he is. Furthermore he is a staunch democrat, a gentleman in all the relations of life, and a good citizen. To invite democrats to vote for Lynch, is only to invite them to the performance of a pleasant duty.

For the office of county surveyor we have Mr. John P. Hely, a gentleman of first class qualifications, and a steady reliable citizen. By the death of Mr. Robert Winston, who was the unanimous choice of the democratic county convention, (Mr. Hely not competing) a vacancy was made on the ticket, which the Democratic Central Committee filled with the name of Mr. Hely. He has accepted the nomination, and of his election there is no sort of doubt. He will go through with his ticket, and the ticket will command the regular, round, old fashioned majority.

THE RUSH FOR OFFICE.

That the scramble for office under the present administration is disgusting and disgraceful, the following "notice" sufficiently attests. Read it. The State Department was compelled to issue it that the seige of the office-seekers might be raised, and the assaulting army dispersed:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, Oct. 20, 1869.

Notice is hereby given to applicants for office that there are no existing vacancies in the department, abroad or at home. Vacancies hereafter occurring will be filled only on written application addressed to the Secretary and filed in the department. The Secretary will not receive applicants personally. No answers will be made to applications unless the applicant is appointed, and in no case will papers filed in support of an application be returned to the applicant. Attention to this notice will save the applicants much inconvenience.

HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

DON'T BOTHER HIM.

That we may not, in the future, be called upon to interrupt his round of pleasure and dissipation by giving attention to the dry details of business, the President has issued the following:

EXECUTIVE ORDER.

All communications in writing intended for the Executive Department of this government and relating to public business of whatever kind, including suggestions for legislation, claims, contracts, employment, appointments and removals from office and pardons, must be transmitted through the department to which the care of the subject matter of communication properly belongs. Communications otherwise transmitted will not receive attention.
By order of the President.
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.
