against civilization in equal degree. Modern history affords no other such example of a great nation run-ning amuck and calling it military ne-

"It has often happened that men in their desperation have become outlaws. But we recall no other instance in which a great nation has deliber-ately elected to become an outlaw. That is the tragedy of the insenate policy that the German government is pursuing and eventually the German people will pay a staggering price for their government's folly. If the world is again to be ruled by barbarism, that does not masquerade as kultur. Civilization might better perish than to survive in terms that Germany offers to mankind."

Bringing

back the bacon---

When I left here four or five months ago I had a definite plan in view-an object to work for. One that would not only bring prestige to the Buller shop but would also prove a credit and a benefit to Williston in general and Buller customers in particular. That idea was to place the Buller shop in the very front rank as a tailoring house and establish beyond the question of a doubt its superiority over all institutions of a like character, and to demonstrate that a big sign, a bluff and a sample book with instructions how to use the tape measure do not make a Tailor shop. If it did Sears-Robuek

My Dear Sir:—You will no doubt be interested in knowing—and which you will note from the color plates being shipped you to-day—that the board of Master Designers have incorporated and are featuring the designs submitted by you in the following: Special collar and peaked lapel Tuxedos, paked lapel full dress suits, Prince Alberts, English walking suits and the one button cutaways for corpulent figures. These were all accepted as first choice and are as distinct a feature as will be shown this year. Trusting you
