For School of Printing

Efforts to have the North Dakota Press Association adopt the course in printing to be started at the Wahpeton State School of Science with the beginning of the school year are being made by men interested in the school, which is attempting to fulfill its mission as a school of trades and industries. The starting of a course in printing was approved by the Board of Administration at a meeting in July.

For the last ten years the North Dakota Press Association has been looking over the supply of apprentices and a year ago a committee was appointed to make efforts to get some school of the state to put in a school of printing. The committee, made up of Mark Forkner of Langdon, Julius Bacon of Grand Forks, and Norman Black of Fargo, considered reporting to the Press Association that the proper course to arrange for a course in printing at the University of North Dakota in connection with the school of journalism at that place.

During the convention at Devils Lake, newspaper men from the southeastern part of the state interested themselves in the proposition of having the Press Association foster the school already approved by the board at Wahpeton. The committee of the Press Association listened to these men but withheld judgment.

The friends of the State School of Science are now asking for a meeting at Grand Forks between a representative of the board of administration and the three members of the Association's committee at which the school can present the plans it has for being an Industrial and Trade School with special reference to its plans for a school of printing and the committee in turn can determine if the plans meet with the demands from the newspaper profession for men at least partly trained in the technique of printing.

In a conference of the heads of the school with Dean Babcock some time ago, it was the decision to make their special effort in a trade line for the present year that of printing. Dean Babcock of the university having been named adviser for the school because of his understanding of the industries of the state.

Capt. Gross "Arrested"

Capt. Otto Gross, police commissioner, was "placed under arrest" at his home Tuesday evening, charged with "speeding thru life." The Captain and his good wife were loaded into the Black Maria and hauled to the police station, where Judge Lynch looking more austere than even in his high hat, heard the case against him. Members of the police force were on hand to testify against the prisoner.

The Judge fined Capt. Gross $20 and attached $10 costs, or sentenced him to 20 days' hard labor on the streets for default.

This happened on the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Capt. and Mrs. Gross. The kind hearted judge agreed to remit the fine if the couple would agree to be married over again. This proved agreeable and the Judge performed the ceremony, in a manner almost equal to that of Judge Murray.

The Captain and his wife were presented with a beautiful four-piece silver set.

The affair took place before an assemblage of prisoners, policemen, firemen and city employees. Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, police matron made the presentation speech.
