KING OSCAR II.

His Keen Interest in Kindly Nature of His People.

American correspondents who visit Sweden never tire of writing about King Oscar II. Though he can be as imperious as his imperial highness, Wilhelm II. on occasions, he is ordinarily pleasing and gracious, and invariably extends the "glad hand" to journalists. The correspondent of the Pittsburgh Gazette tells a very characteristic story which he prefaces by his personal opinions regarding the king:

"King Oscar of Sweden has a most interesting personality. Tall, well built and handsome, in youth he must have been the ideal fairy prince of the children's fairy tales. Possessing also a clear, well-trained mind, and a benevolent, gracious nature, he is the fittest of rulers for a people themselves at once simple and intelligent, kindly and shrewd.

That he is universally beloved and respected goes without saying, and he returns in full measure the affection of his subjects.

He has many plans for their advancement, is an enthusiastic patron of literature and the fine arts, and ever ready to assist all worthy industrial enterprises.

He is particularly anxious that his people should stand well in the estimation of other nationalities, and once remarked:

"My people may not be as artistic as the Italians, nor such deep students as the Germans, nor such thorough-going business people as the Americans, but I firmly believe they are the best, the kindest, the most thoroughly polite people—with the politeness that comes from the heart and is not a mere veneer—on the face of the earth."

The question he oftentimes asks of strangers is, "Do you find my people kindly?"

And it is the sign of his own gentle nature that he values this characteristic so highly.

He is the terror of unjust judges, for the poorest and humblest of his subjects may appeal personally to him for redress of their grievances.

A case of this kind occurred not long since.

A very poor peasant was drawn into a difficulty with a neighbor, which involved the loss of everything he possessed on earth. The matter was brought before the resident judge who, taking offense at what he considered the disrespectful demeanor of the peasant, decided the case against him, although justice was clearly on his side.

The man at once set out on foot for Stockholm to lay the matter before the king.

After a tiresome journey of three weeks he reached the Swedish capital, and presented himself, ragged and travel-stained, before King Oscar. The king's words were characteristic—"How dare you appear before your sovereign in this condition?" but, "My man, you look tired and hungry. Go with one of my servants and get some food and rest for awhile, and then come back."

The poor fellow, almost fainting with hunger and fatigue, was led away to a hearty meal and a comfortable couch, returning refreshed and laid his case before the king, whose brows darkened in the hearing.

"The matter shall be thoroughly investigated, and, if you have told the truth it shall go hard with the judge. Here is money to pay your way to your home and provide for your temporary wants."

The matter was probed to the bottom and the judge suffered a heavy fine and imprisonment, with, of course, the loss of his position.

Putting Her Right.

"That man with the bird cage on his face," remarked the beautiful girl in the grand stand to her escort, "just yelled 'foul,' but I can't see even a feather."

"Of course not," replied the wise guy who had steered her up against the game, "both of the nines are picked. See?"—Chicago News.

University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

Private rooms are given free to students of the Sophomore, Junior or Senior years of any of the Collegiate Courses.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is a unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class-work, exactness in the care of studies, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of the University of Notre Dame.

Sixty years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

St. Mary's Academy, Notre Dame, Ind.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy, which appears in another column of this paper. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the highest standard, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher at St. Mary's strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the true, noble, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of classic conditions—all these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.

Capturing Monkeys.

Ring-tail monkeys, one of the most valuable and expensive of the smaller animals, says a writer on the traffic in wild beasts, are caught in an interesting way. A cocoanut is split in two, and a banana with a piece of wood running through it placed lengthwise through the nut, the two halves of which are drawn together by wires. Then a hole is cut large enough for the monkey's paw to enter. The monkey spies the tempting nut from his tree. He hops down, looks it over, sees the hole and smells the banana inside. He is fond of bananas. Putting his paw in he grasps it, but the wood prevents it from coming out. Then the catchers appear and the monkey runs for a tree. But he cannot climb because of the cocoanut on his paw, but he will not let go of that, so he is captured pawing wildly at the tree trunk.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

SMASHED RELICS.

Rifles Used by Finns in Turkish War Are Destroyed by Russians.

As is well known, the Finnish battalions were a couple of years ago merged with the Russian regiments, but what is not known is the manner in which the battalion rifles, in which the Finns took so much pride and which they used with so much bravery in the last Turkish war, were handled by the Russians in the transfer. Instead of being set up as decorations in the arsenals in respectful memory of the Finnish army, or sold to the people, they were brutally destroyed by being laid over sharp corners and demolished with clubs. They were then thrown together in a heap as condemned.

Adventures of a Watch.

Miss Agot Tharaldsen of Madison, Minn., a daughter of Rev. Mr. Tharaldsen, is rejoicing over the return of a watch which she lost last summer at Thronhjelm, Norway. The watch was forgotten on a steamer, was found by a dishonest maid, who was later apprehended by the police for other thefts last February. She gave up the watch with other plunder and it was forwarded to New York. Here it was held for duty, but an affidavit that it was of American manufacture secured a release, and the adventurous watch was sent westward, where it eventually reached Miss Agot.

Norwegian Copper Find.

An important copper discovery has lately been made at Leko, in Tromsø Amt, Norway. The mine is located on Liknaemoen farm and is owned by Haugesund and Stavanger parties. It has been concluded that at this place there exists one of the greatest copper fields in Norway. Several foreign and Norwegian firms have announced themselves as buyers.

Cholera Semi-Centennial.

It is now fifty years since the great cholera epidemic took place in Norway. In 1853 2,484 persons died in Norway of the dread disease, whereof 1,597 in Christiania, 3.3 per cent of the population. From June 12 to Oct. 1 the same year an epidemic of cholera at Copenhagen claimed 3,737 victims out of a population of 130,000.

Found a Friend.

Valley City, N. Dak., July 27th.—Mrs. Mattida M. Boucher of this place tells how she found a friend in the following words:

"For years I suffered with a dizziness in my head and could get nothing to cure me till about two years ago, when I was advised to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. These pills cured me before I had used the whole of the first box, and I haven't been troubled since.

"In January of this year I had an attack of Sciatica that made me almost helpless, and remembering how much Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for me before, I sent and got some and began to take them at once.

"In three weeks I was well, and not a trace of the Sciatica left, and I have been well ever since.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have certainly been of great benefit to me. I have found them a friend in time of sickness, and I will always recommend them to every one suffering with the troubles that bothered me."

FOR TWENTY YEARS MAJOR MARS SUFFERED FROM CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions

A LAWYER'S CHANCES.

What Inducements a Big Firm Offers to the Young Man.

On being admitted to the bar I took time to decide some grave questions. The first was whether to enter a law firm or to set up my own office. From my experience as a student in a big office, where I had toward the last been entrusted with every variety of work not done in person by the heads of the firm, I had learned clearly the scale of probabilities open before a young lawyer in a firm. I had observed that if a young lawyer has family prestige and means, he may bring enough to the firm to entitle him soon to a good independent position in it. If he cannot make this contribution, his individuality is likely to be lost, and he does not stand much chance to rise far above a clerical connection. Inasmuch as my individuality was my only asset, I determined to work for it for all it was worth by setting up my own little office; later on, when I had earned my place, I could consolidate with a firm, if I chose, to much better advantage. The years have justified the initial decision.—Everybody's Magazine.
