Card of Thanks.

Editor Eagle: Through your columns I beg leave to tender my sincere thanks to my dear friends for their noble work and many acts of kindness shown my beloved wife during her recent illness. Though she lingered on her deathbed only a few days, she was always attended by friends, who with watchful eyes and hearts sought to do good. How am I to thank those dear friends for their devoted and unselfish aid? I can only add they have the heartfelt thanks of a broken hearted husband who will never be inexpressible to the many courtesies shown to him and his. Gratefully Yours, J. D. Irons.

PLAIN TRUTHS IN PLAIN LANGUAGE.

Madisonville Meteor. One of the advantages that Madisonville hoped to derive from the telephone line to Huntsville was that the town might be enabled thereby to obtain the latest important news without having to wait for the daily papers, which arrive here 36 hours after they are printed. But in this, as in other things we expect from the proud and haughty little city sitting like a toad upon her "pine-clad hills," we were disappointed. A recent case will serve to illustrate this point: The news of the nomination of McKinley reached Huntsville by telegraph and telephone in just 13 minutes after it was made—the news reached Madisonville the next day. This shows the difference between some towns. There are other cases we would cite, but this one will suffice. The telephone to Huntsville is of no advantage to us except now and then someone after a terrific exercise of lung power, manages to transmit a little private business. And business in this line is falling off on account of the very unsatisfactory service of the phones, it being very hard to understand what is said, especially between Midway or Connor and Huntsville. Now we have begun this "kick" against Huntsville and are just getting warmed up to the subject; by the eternal gods now is just as good a time as ever to unlimber our guns against that little bunch of egotism which feasts and fattens on the labors of the people of Madison county.

Huntsville is ungrateful because she treats with disdain the hints that feed her. No only is treated with more supreme contempt than an humble Madison county farmer; when in the city of Huntsville, especially after he has sold his cotton and spent the money, it is degrading to a self-respecting citizen of our county to note the supercilious and snooty expression on the face of the average Huntsvilleite when he finds that the man whom he chanced to meet lives in Madison county. But there are other and weightier matters with which we have to deal. Huntsville rests easy in the fond delusion that she has got the trade of Madison county by the tail with a down-hill pull, but she hasn't. The tail hold is slipping, and Bryan, a city that shows her appreciation of what she gets, is taking two-thirds of it and it will get more. It takes the old farmers who deal annually with the Huntsville people to say how costly and completely the "ring" and "combine" capture them. A prominent merchant of Huntsville once made the remark that the Madison county people would "coun a leg" to get to trade in Huntsville. A proprietor of a former newspaper published in Madisonville two or three years ago, laboring under the impression that the Huntsville merchants would show in a little substantial manner an appreciation of our trade, visited the city for the purpose of soliciting advertisements for his paper. At every place he was given the "marble heart," and was astonished at being informed that it was no use whatever for them to advertise in his paper, for they would get the trade of Madison county anyhow.

Huntsville has succeeded in securing off one or two railroads which would otherwise have been built to Madisonville, and an effort was made to "buy off" Maj. Lykes of the Link Line nearly two years ago, but the Major was found not to be for sale. Whether or not that city had anything to do with the failure to sell the Link Line bonds is not known, but we rather think not, as that was most too big a job for even Huntsville to tackle, but the I. & G. N. road was largely responsible for the failure.

The Meteor has tried to favor Huntsville and her people, but only even getting "thank you" for it, is going to work for number 1, and turn its entire influence for those who appreciate our sale.

A great majority of our people are with us in this resolve, for they realize that we are now and have been all the time working in the interest of Madisonville and Madison county, and we expect to continue to do so.

This only the firing of a light charge but the Meteor's batteries are heavily loaded and you may hear from us again soon. There is a great large "ben on" up here in Madison county. Our motto is, "live and let live."

distance from the various firms doing business in the Amazon.

The revolutionists, it is stated, have already declared a free republic in the province of Loreto, and have made overtures to the great Brazilian states. The governors of these states have made no reply, but it is known that the sympathies of the Brazilians are in a large measure with Seminario.

Arnold, a white schooldirector. Arnold gave himself up. He claims self-defense and shows several knife cuts inflicted by Swain.

Quiet a Now.

VICTORIA, TEX., July 1.—On the Garcias road, Mr. Tody Burns, guard of the county convicts at work there, in attempting to quell a row between them, was compelled to use his pistol, inflicting a slight flesh wound upon one of them, who was making threatening demonstrations with a spade upon the would-be pacificator.

She Spoiled His Clothes.
