For years the Republican party in Arizone has been struggling for statehood. For years a Democratic candidate was returned as delegate to congress and nothing was obtained. Finally present occupant of that office, Ralph Cameron, appeared in the political arena and guaranteed statehood for the people or political retirement immediately and forever for himself. He was slected and he brought home the bacon.

What the Voters Did. .In view of this proof of its power, the Republican party, through its leaders, thought that the people would stand by it in the stress of the batle for delegates to he consitutional convenion. The people had been electing a Democrat for almost two decades vithout an interruption and when they elected a Republican to congress they ty leaders in Arizona deem the situa-secured a statehood bill during his tion dangerous, they would make no first year and then, to the amazement of the entire nation, turned to the old party that had so often promised in vain to secure statehood adn elected a | taking out of it anything that the peomajority of Democratic candidates to ple may decide later to dispense with,
