U. S. TO HAVE A HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Former Marine Hospital Service To Be Given a Wider Scope With Larger Duties to Perform.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Prospect of an extra session of congress has given renewed hope to the advocates of the early establishment of a department of public health. The Democratic platform is pledged to legislation of this character, and it is believed that the Owen bill, introduced at the last session, or a similar measure authorizing the creation of such a department will receive early attention.

To Sufferers From Tuberculosis

Your attention is invited to an English Remedy for tuberculosis which for some time has been used in Europe with wonderful success. Its claims have been investigated and are vouched for by reputable authorities and the benefits derived by its users are little short of marvelous.

district of Columbia, is in favor of this measure, as are prominent medical authorities throughout the country. The combining of all services working for public health under one head, thereby removing them from the various government interests with which they are now connected, is the object of the proposed formation of a department of public health. The public health service is the largest agency of the government maintained in the interest of the health of the country. Originally it was known as the marine hospital service, its duties being concerned entirely with marine hospitals. By degrees, however, certain sanitary duties were assigned to it. With the yellow fever outbreaks there was created a national board of health. Friction between the board and the marine hospital service subsequently developed, congress finally repealing the act which created the board. The Spooner bill, in 1909, for a department of public health, led to the adoption of a compromise measure, authorizing an enlargement of the duties of the marine hospital service. In 1902 the name of this government institution was changed to the public health and marine hospital service. Still further change in the name was effected through the Mann bill, passed at the last session, establishing the title of the department as the public health service. Notwithstanding the various changes brought about, the claim is made by those who favor the establishment of a department of public health that the work of the public health service is inadequate. All the services working for the public health of the country, they assert, should be correlated into one organization, as proposed in the Owen bill.

American Women Have More Temperament, But Better Manners, Than Spanish, Says Mlle. Bori

Mlle. Lucresia Bori, Young and Beautiful Soprano at the Metropolitan Opera House, Who Thinks 30 the Ideal Age for Women.

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer. "DON'T say that I am 23, make it 24, and oh, how I wish I were 30!" exclaimed the brilliant Spanish songbird, Mlle. Lucresia Bori, and in dead earnest, too. Luckily, the substantial upholstery of the Hotel Racier furniture upheld me, as I sat talking to our latest, most fascinating grand opera singer, when she sprang this astonishing announcement.

'GETS-IT' Will Get Any Corn, Sure!

You'll Quit Everything Else for 'GETS-IT.' Any corn that loves to be cut and gouged, but mightily rough on you. Plasters and knives usually take away some of the toe with them, and leave the corn to flourish. The new corn cure 'GETS-IT' is perfectly harmless to the healthy flesh, but it does go for a corn, bunion, callous or wart right off the reel. The corn shrivels away from the healthy flesh and drops off. You can apply 'GETS-IT' in two seconds and it begins its work right off. Pretty soon you'll forget you ever had corns or bunions. 'GETS-IT' is sold at all drug stores at 25 cents a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. (Advertisement)

"Oh, I'm tired of always being called too young," she replied in quick, jerky French, with waving, humming-bird gestures of the hands.

The Ideal Age. "There are so many things I want to do and sing and I am always being told, 'You are still too young,' as if one had to wait for the years to learn things which one knows by instinct," said the singer, with utmost content.

"But here in America, I am convinced that 30 is the ideal age. Oh, no, I don't know why I have not analyzed it. But women of 30, they are still young without having to be reproached for their youth."

"I'm afraid that if the Americans will only like me and my voice I shall become quite wild about them. People talk a great deal about the temperament of the Spanish women, but I can assure you that the American woman has much more temperament than the woman of Spain; only you see, the American woman has better manners and hides that temperament behind a certain cold exterior. It is her bringing up that makes her seem cold."

"The Spanish woman, on the contrary, gesticulates a great deal. She makes many movements of the hand, she sways from the hips, and that is all called a display of temperament, when it is often nothing but a mannerism."

"Gestures don't mean temperament," Her Philosophy. Here is Mlle. Bori's philosophy of life, a good one for anybody to follow, though it may not lead every girl to the Metropolitan opera house. "I believe in being happy, and I am happy," said the young woman who is already a famous singer, and not quite 30. "When I am assailed with doubt or trouble, I think to myself, 'remember all you have to be happy about and the future that is before you. You should not be unhappy now, and I determine to be happy. For the rest, I try not to expect too much and to be contented. When I was told that I should sing the first week of the opera season, I merely said 'very well,' and believing that the great honor of opening your opera house would not be for me, I was glad to be heard the first week and was happy about that."

Now I shall see that wonderful sight, the first night of the opera season of New York. They tell me it is so extraordinary, with the marvelous frocks and jewels. I doubt if I will be able to keep my eyes from straying around the auditorium. "Already I love the opera house. It is so glorified and so vast, and it must make a beautiful background for the women's frocks. American women always think of that, do they not? And how wonderfully they dress; what

ATTACK IS MADE ON NEWSPAPER ACT

Council for New York Journal of Commerce Declares Law Strikes Down Private Rights.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—The opening attack upon the constitutionality of the sections of the recent postal appropriation act requiring newspapers to give postal authorities access to their circulation records and to publish the names of their stockholders and bondholders, as well as to label paid political articles as advertisements was made before the supreme court in a printed brief filed, by Robert C. Morris and G. B. Plante, on behalf of the Journal of Commerce & Commercial Bulletin of New York. The case is set for argument orally on December 2.

"Absolutely no authority can be found for a contention that the provisions complained of in this act were enacted for the public benefit," declared the attorneys for the newspapers. "Neither the government nor the public at large can be benefited by the knowledge of the private business affairs and the financial affairs of the owners of a newspaper. They are per se down private rights; in fact, they strike down private rights and invade personal freedom and destroy private property in that they ruin the publication if it refuses to meet their arbitrary demands, for ruin would surely follow the denial of the privileges of the mail."

"In the act individual injury is inflicted without any corresponding benefit to society. If the corporation leading business on borrowed money for which it has issued its notes or other obligations, it must publish to the world the holders of such obligations, to the annoyance of such lenders and the endangering of its credit. It must show the vulnerable spots in its financial armor for the benefit of its competitors and enemies. Banks and other large financial institutions will refuse to loan it money for fear that they will be held out and advertised as supporting or controlling its editorial or political policy. Nor are these fanciful
