El Paso Sees Poor Little Rich Girl Beautiful Play With Pretty Pictures

A Los Angeles critic recently said that he would rather have written "The Poor Little Rich Girl" than to have been the author of "The Blushing." To have been the author of either would have been honor enough.

"The Poor Little Rich Girl" is the only child of rich parents—a father too busy making money to give her any attention, and of a mother too busy with the social set to get acquainted with the little one.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS THE ALHAMBRA. "The Taint," an American drama in four acts, will be the offering today at the Alhambra. This picture is one that will hold the interest of all and is really fine. The Alhambra, under the new management, wishes to let the public know that in the future there will be shown many fine features, such as "Mignon" from the famous opera and with the same stars, "Officer 888," from Colman & Harris' comedy success; Mrs. Leslie Carter in Belasco's great play, "Du Barry"; "Stop Titled," the play that you have all heard of or seen and many others equally as good.—Adv.

"THE SPOILERS." Today, for the last time, William Farnum will appear in "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach. The Bijou management urges all who can to come to the matinee, as it is next to impossible to take care of all who want to see this picture. Hundreds have been turned away every night on account of not being able to get seats. The crowds grow larger every day this picture is exhibited, which is assurance that the production is an excellent one. Shows start at 1:45 and 8:15 p. m., 2 p. m., 5 p. m., 7 p. m. and 9 p. m.—Advertisement.
