People Riot In Money; Want The Best From Shows To Shoes It Is The Same

The criminal court procedure of Texas should be reformed to the extent of giving a speedy trial to persons held on charges where the evidence is certain to demand an acquittal is the opinion of Judge W. D. Howe, of the 24th district. In rendering his charge to the jury in the case of Mrs. Emma Holguin, on trial for murder in connection with the death of her husband, he took occasion to point out the defects of a state law demanding that a person charged with manslaughter should have to be remanded to jail and await indictment by a grand jury and additional delay for trial in the district court, regardless of the fact that the defendant's action was a clear case of self defense.

What used to go in the small town, goes no longer. They demand a play no larger, as clever, as sparkling and as capably played as the New York audience gets. Letters Published By Roosevelt's Biographer, Reveal The Colonel's Intimate Knowledge Of All Literature

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Delving into the mind of 150,000 letters which Theodore Roosevelt wrote during his public career, Joseph Bucklin Bishop, the colonel's biographer, in the October issue of Scribner's magazine, brings to light a number of "gems" in the intimate correspondence between the former president of the United States and Sir George Trevelyan, Bart., a British statesman and author, with whom the great American enjoyed a rare friendship covering 26 years.

Mr. Bishop's paper, the second of the series, entitled "Roosevelt and Trevelyan," reveals the many-sided Roosevelt as an insatiable reader of books, his warm sympathy for literature, and his broad and profound knowledge of ancient and modern literature. Even amid the cares of the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt, it is shown, maintained a regular correspondence with leading literary and intellectual life both in this country and Europe. In Sir George Trevelyan, a member of the historical society, he found a man singularly responsive to his own intellectual tastes and knowledge. The correspondence began when he was governor of New York and continued until a few months before Mr. Roosevelt's death.
