At Your Grocer's Here in El Paso and throughout the Entire Southwest

—Park Pittman Collection

Stores of Lightbody and James, South El Paso and West Overland Streets, present site of Guelias Theatre. Picture taken in 1891. This was the only two-story building in El Paso at that time.

An examination of this picture by those living in El Paso today will give a graphic illustration of the growth of the city and its future possibilities. In the few short years intervening this "old fashioned" general store has given way to two of the largest and most excellent department stores in the country—the Popular and the White House. Merchants have kept pace with the times and what has happened to the stores has happened to Real Estate all along the line. An investment in a vacant lot in El Paso today is about as sound an investment as any good business man or woman can ask. Property is destined to rise phenomenally in this city in the immediate future. Successful investors always have their ears open for the latest story of opportunity and if you are wise the lesson of El Paso's immediate past will spell financial success for you. Investigate this vacant lot idea and see what it can do for you. A modest purse is no bar to you, for there are opportunities for all.
