

OWNER PLANS GOLDEN RULE FOR BUSINESS

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 11.—The golden rule in the divine law governing human relationships, accepted by all religions and proclaimed by all prophets and teachers of every creed, is the only workable, industrial and economic law in the universe today, according to Arthur Nash, former legislator and president of the A. Nash Clothing Manufacturing company, of this city who has inspected the golden rule into the conduct of his business. Recently the 500 employees of the company, actuated by the spirit of the golden rule, agreed to surrender their jobs for a month, either January or February, as that unreasonable workmen in the clothing industry could be given employment. In June 1918 the company was incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000 and Mr. Nash as the prime mover and principal investor was elected president.

CHICAGO ART COLONY LOSES STUDIO HOME

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 14.—Chicago may lose its art colony as the result of the recent sale of the Lambert Tree studio building in Madison temple, which plans to build the largest Masonic temple in the world on the site. The Tree studio building was erected by the late Lambert Tree as a home for artists, and about it has grown up an extensive art colony. Many of the painters and sculptors in the studio building have lived there for from 15 to 25 years. They are planning to remove to New York, unless another suitable home can be found here for the colony.

Chicago's art center occupies a favored district on the near north side, just above the loop district. At one end it rubs elbows with the warehouse district bordering the Chicago river, and ten blocks north reaches the opposite extreme, adjoining with the brownstone mansions and tall apartment houses of the "gold coast." On the east is Lake Michigan, with a bathing beach conveniently located, and on the west is Clark street, the highway of brown shops, theatrical hotels and, in the near past, cabarets. Within this district live several hundred artists, musicians, writers and students. The commercialized bohemia of New York's Greenwich village is missing, for most of the members of the colony are earnest

K. OF C. NIGHT SCHOOL OPENS IN COURTHOUSE

El Paso's Knights of Columbus night school for exercises was held Monday night in the 24th district courtroom, where classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. City councilman M. R. Sweeney presided, and city councilman B. C. Sample, taking mayor Davis's place, welcomed the establishment of the school on behalf of the city. J. M. Nealon also spoke, and the principal of the school, E. K. Gilkey, outlined the course and said all exercises must be well attended and that no tuition would be charged.

The American legion is backing the school, helping especially with the enrollment. School headquarters are at 1214 Mills building. Street vendors give away scheme. Street vendors of tobacco, candy and other articles displayed imported tobacco and German cigarettes and cigars, so that eventually purchasers learn the difference and become wary. "Wednesday" was the general name for the goods, and the vendors were in some of the high class restaurants only imported cigarettes are sold. The drug stores are perhaps the chief purveyors of the German cigarettes. Imported toilet articles, and particularly soap, shaving cream, tooth paste and face lotions are sold. Even all the well known American brands have been imitated.

GERMANS TRY TO IMITATE U. S. WARE IN SHOPS

Berlin, Germany, Dec. 11.—German manufacturers have done the market here with imitations of American English and French wares, some so cleverly made it is difficult to tell them, but others are of an almost ludicrous character. The imitations are made in a tobacco shop and take for a standard English or American cigarette probably the "Hudson" brand, with a label clearly resembling the trade mark of the original. The price will be made low and frequently placed with the original in the same box. The dealer in his pocket without closely examining it. Later he discovers that he has a cheap imitation. The law against tobacco on sale are very expensive and those which have not been examined in the German tobacco are not inferior to some imported brands. In some of the high class restaurants only imported cigarettes are sold.

The drug stores are perhaps the chief purveyors of the German cigarettes. Imported toilet articles, and particularly soap, shaving cream, tooth paste and face lotions are sold. Even all the well known American brands have been imitated. Trade marks imitated. Trade marks imitated have displayed their best work in the saloons, where whisky bottles bear the label of well known brands. But either the signature or the brand or a word in the name, is inverted, or the trade mark altered. The bottles have been filled with German-made whiskies, often white but sometimes colored and the substance is of grain alcohol. The effect of the drink is about the same as that of the Kentucky, Georgia and West Virginia "whiskies" and imported gins are virtually never sold. The German inventor talent has been carried further, to include all sorts of wearing apparel. A suit of clothes, displayed in a window and bearing a name of a well known brand, price tag catches the eye of the passerby. Upon careful examination it will be found the cloth is made of paper. Many hats, caps, vest, trousers and even shirts are made of paper. Paper articles are sold in great quantities which can be purchased for a small sum and given in water. They are made of paper. American and English made goods have been so extensively imitated that only an expert can detect the difference.

JAPANESE OPEN SHRINE COSTING TEN MILLIONS

Tokio, Japan, Dec. 11.—After six years' labor and an expenditure estimated at $10,000,000, the national shrine to the late emperor Meiji has been opened with solemn Shinto ceremonies and amid impressive manifestations of loyalty. Every municipality gave a flower show and open air performances and theatrical performances in Hiroba square. The most of the festivities were cooperatively organized by the citizens in different wards. The shrine, which occupies a stage had been erected where vandeville shows were given and there were five wide a high night and day. More than 250,000 persons from the country districts visited the city during the festival. The shrine is a typical Shinto building of plain wood and of the simplest possible construction. The roof of a heavy timber was supported by more than 1,000 posts and officials and lasted about three hours. The entire festival was the delivery to the shrine of the names of the emperor and their inscription in the inner sanctuary. Prince Kuro, a relative of the emperor, departed on a train for the shrine to which Prince Ito had pointed the public and about 50,000 people were there before it.

The scene where these multitudes of people were passing their feet to the shrine of the dead emperor was impressive. The main entrance to the shrine by means of a long bridge, which was two miles in length. Along this road two great strings of people passed. The whole of this roadway was brilliantly lighted and decorated with flags and ornamental banners. But flags and ornaments were not the only things that attracted the eye. The modern world was left behind, the gold and red ornamentation ceased and the scene of the shrine was under the shade of gigantic pine trees which might have been part of the virgin forests of old Japan.
