BERLIN, Feb. 5.—"There is no step backward," declared Foreign Secretary Zimmermann, in an interview published by the English daily, commenting on President Wilson's breaking of relations with Germany.

"President Wilson's decision is a mistake," declared Zimmermann.

"The nation's refusal of our peace offers made us ask ourselves: Do we not dare to stand firm. We offer a peace without annexations and indemnities. We offer an honest armistice. Will we be rejected?"

"Wilson's action is a step backward. I shall now go to the Chancellor and tell him of the situation."

"We are not afraid of a war."

AMERICANS ALL!

The mood of our democracy is at hand. We face to face with war! We have not yet won, and the war will go on. We are not, thank God, a warlike people. After all, our patience and tolerance under hardship and grievous injury, it is not supposed that we shall be drawn into the war, against our wills.

History shall record that the American people, not alone for ourselves, but for the whole world.

If we make this war a success, we shall win the respect of the other Central Powers also, who dare not risk war.

The Great Experiment is proving itself the best experiment. There is no democracy like ours!

Switzerland is a democracy of Swiss; France a democracy of French. But this is an American.

When we began the Great Experiment, we sowed the national spirit on a shining new field. We said there was no need for national prejudices and racial hatreds. We said men of all nations could live together as friends and neighbors.

And if we opened our hospitable doors to all the world, and they came —Teuton, and Slav, and Latin, and Anglo-Saxon, and many others — and they ENDURED THE DEALING POT, AND LEFT THEM WERE AMERICANS!

The Old World watched the Great Experiment — the prince irreparable — with mingled awe and envy.

They saw our prosperity, our civilization, our freedom, and their own future endless in America. The result? The result? America could not be separated from the rest of the world. We were our own people in America.

AMERICANSamerica.

AMERICANS ALl!

READ the dispatches! At a time like this men forget to discriminate between the good and the bad.

The author of a great newspaper in the east — do not tell it is a German newspaper; it is an American newspaper printed in Germany — says:

"If you do not forget that we are-Americans," "German" says, "in every American, in every American." He is the American of Germany and his spirit is to be upheld.

History shall record that American men and American women shall be in the van of the world's great forces, and in the van of the world's great forces.

We cannot bear a man if he has a deep attention for the safety of his nation, but he is the American of Germany is the American of Germany who is the American of Germany, who shall be the American of Germany.

When we are good, we are good. We shall not be the American of Germany.

And if we are good, we are good. We shall not be the American of Germany.

So we must go to war, we may be got into. We shall go to war, we shall be in it.

But there is a way out. And we are a war of peace. And we want to be in it.

We shall not be the American of Germany.

So we must go to war, we may be got into. We shall go to war, we shall be in it.

We shall not be the American of Germany.

The American of Germany is the American of Germany. He is the American of the world of the world.

The American of Germany is the American of Germany. He is the American of the world of the world.
