Eugene TausickBANK ROBBERS ARE FOUGHT OFF.
Two Determined Men With Guns Save
Iowa Bank From a Raid.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, Dec. 10.—Answering volley with volley, two roomers in a hotel opposite the Bank of Jolley, at Jolley, a small town in Calahan county, saved the contents of the bank vault after five robbers had plowed off the outer doors at an early hour today. The first explosion was heard shortly after 3 o'clock and was followed by two others. The reports awoke two boarders at the hotel, who at once opened fire on the robbers across the street with revolvers.

The robbers replied and the fight became so hot they were forced to run to a double-seated carriage, which had previously been stolen and was waiting them at the north edge of the town. The flight of the men was to the north until Levenia was reached, where the exhausted team was abandoned and the robbers took to the fields.

A posse was at once formed and started in hot pursuit, the robbers gradually making their way to a large field near Lake City, where they are believed to be surrounded. One of the gang is thought to have been wounded.

The bank is owned by the First National bank of Sac City and had $2000 in gold in the vault. The vault doors were completely wrecked by the force of the explosion. The entire countryside is joining in the chase and capture seems certain.

FAMOUS PENSION ORDER.

Will Cause Considerable Discussion in Congress This Session.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 9.—The famous pension order 78, which was so much discussed in the recent campaign, promises now to acquire a new interest. It was made the text of criticism directed to administrative extravagance and now it is, to the surprise of the department, working out as an actual economy. The order gives pensions to veterans of a certain age on the strength of a birth certificate and an honorable discharge. This does away with so many medical examiners and clerks that the savings of expense promises to more than balance the increased number of pensioners.

Won't Stir Up South.

Little or nothing will be heard this winter about the Crumpacker proposition to reduce the representation of the southern states by an elimination of the disfranchised negro population from the apportionment. There are several reasons why this is true, but the principal one is that President Roosevelt does not care to stir up the race antipathy of the south, and in this he is indorsed by the leading men in congress. It is part of the president's program to set himself right with the people south of the Mason and Dixie line, and he would be very likely to veto any such legislation as is proposed by the Indiana congressman, and to make it the occasion for some forceful remarks on the negro question.

Armstrong, Not Taylor.

A mistaken impression has been created in the middle west by a story which has been published to the effect that a prominent official of the treasury department had been perniciously active in urging his qualifications for Roosevelt's cabinet, and that this official had been asked by the president to resign. The report came simultaneously that Horace Taylor of Wisconsin was to resign, and his name was identified with the other story.

The story which did not mention names was directed at Robert Armstrong, who is said to have asked Senator Cullom to go to the president in his behalf. The article in question did not refer to Mr. Taylor, who, however, will resign of his own motion about Jan. 1.

Beef Trust Inquiry.

The investigation of the beef trust is taking its regular systematic course. More than a year ago the department of commerce undertook to become informed on all matters pertaining to that vast business. The material accumulated by the special agents of the department would fill three good-sized volumes, it is said. It has not yet been decided whether there will be any public questioning of the men who are at the head of the trusts. They have had an opportunity already to furnish the commissioner of corporations with information about their doing and have not responded with any measure of freedom.
