DISPUTE OVER THE TRACKAGE

HARRIMAN AND HILL UNABLE TO AGREE ON MATTER OF EXCHANGE

Rumor That O. R. & N. Will Bridge the Columbia at The Dalles and Build to the Sound.

One portion of the Hill-Harriman agreement has not yet been fixed up, and that is the giving of trackage privileges to the Northern Pacific from Wallula to Portland and extending the same courtesy to Harriman from Portland to the sound, says the Portland Telegram.

Autorities well-informed in that connection declare that, while Hill will grant Harriman permission to haul his rolling stock over the Portland-Puget sound division, the former refuses to accede to the request of Hill for trackage down the Columbia. That the Northern Pacific has not entirely abandoned its intention to construct a road to Portland along the north bank of the river is evident from the fact negotiations for a right of way continue, and it is said Hill has even purchased entire farms to further his needs in that direction. But all this would be stopped if Harriman would let the Northern Pacific enjoy the easy haul from Walla Walla over the O. R. & N.

O. R. & N. Surveyors Busy.

That the presence of a party of O. R. & N. surveyors at a point on the Washington side of the stream between Bonneville and the locks, is of more significance than the mere fact lines are being run in connection with preparing statements for the payment of taxes is generally believed. In the first place the taxation Washington imposes on the useless strip of land extending along the Columbia at that place is so low that the cost of making the present survey would pay the assessment for more than ten years. Under the laws of the state a railroad is entitled to a right of way 100 feet in width. By purchasing more land, Harriman can blast out the rocks for a sufficient distance inland to prevent Hill from ever coming down the river, as he would be compelled to build on the high ground, and from there could not find a practicable descent to the low country for an entrance to Portland.

Roads Are Jockeying

The fact that the Columbia River & Northern made a survey from Lyle along the river to what was formerly known as Hellgate, but is now called Grand Dalles, where a crossing can be made at comparatively small expense and little labor, leads to the introduction of a story that Harriman is preparing, in the event the Hill line to the sound cannot be used, to extend the Tacoma eastern from its present terminus south to the Columbia, connecting with the old portage road right of way and continuing on to the crossing, and there affecting a junction with the main line on the Oregon side. Harriman wants a northern route badly, and it is thought now that his threat to connect at Olympia with the projected independent line was but a ruse, and he will use the Tacoma connection if forced to by reason of Hill's determination to return tit for tat in the failure to make amicable trackage adjustments.

METCALF LIKELY TO RESIGN.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor Is Displeased by President

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Now it is asserted that Secretary Metcalf of the department of commerce and labor will when the summer wanes, throw up his job as cabinet officer—all on account of the summary directions that were given him by the president, by reason of which the secretary was compelled to issue orders to his subordinates that they must deal leniently with "John Chinaman."

It is asserted that Mr. Metcalf did not issue the order without showing the president plainly that he did not wish to do so because he felt that the situation was one that should be dealt with another way than that decided upon by the president.

Secretary Metcalf comes from the state of California. He feels as does every Californian on the Chinese exclusion problem. He is probably the best equipped man in the cabinet to talk on this subject, for he knows the dangers that underlie the Roosevelt policy, as has been announced to the state department.

What Hurt Metcalf.

What is galling to Metcalf, beyond the president's attitude, is the fact that the matter should have been assigned to Secretary Taft for quasi administrative advice. Taft took the position that Metcalf, being a Californian, was therefore prejudiced against the Chinese beyond the point where his advice could be accepted as safe and sane. That Taft should have sat in judgment, so to speak, upon another member of the cabinet, is very unusual, except in the Roosevelt administration, and the general opinion in Washington is that in permitting this "faux pas" to occur, the president has been guilty of at least discourtesy to his secretary of commerce and labor, whose business it is to be an expert on the questions arising under his jurisdiction.

For these things, Metcalf was very near tendering his resignation to the president the moment that he was ordered to promulgate the orders of June 24. His friends, it is asserted, kept him from resigning, but that they will finally dissuade him is very doubtful. Of course, he will not discuss the subject lest his talk be considered an insult to the president.

Provocative of Trouble

The order to the subordinates that they shall accept a certificate as bona fide from every Chinese that presents one, without any unusual tests to find out if the person described in it is one to whom it was issued, will be provocative of grave troubles, for it is but a bid to venality on the part of the diplomatic agents—an open door to wrongdoing by persons who, according to the president's letter of June 24, had been very lax in their duties in the very matter in which he says they should be more attentive.

The best of the situation is the attitude of the Chinese legation towards the president's note. They are happy over it. They say it will perhaps make the Chinese government feel more friendly towards the merchants of the United States. Why the merchants? That they feel so pleased is due to the fact that they know with the law loosely construed on this side of the Pacific and the certificates issued by men who are virtually accused of having put their cupidity above their patriotism and duty on the other side, China need have no fears as to the outcome so far as "John Chinaman" is concerned. The Chinese know that by appealing to the cupidity of the American merchants and threatening a boycott upon American goods, they would raise a howl through a section of the United States, and the political wires would be pulled vigorously. This was done, and the result, that what the Chinese most prayed for—a letting down of the bars—has been done.

OVER HALF OF CHURCH INCOME

"Tainted Money" Man Gives 75 Cents for Every Dollar Collected

CLEVELAND, July 3.—When John D. Rockefeller reaches for that yellow wrapped roll in his left hand hip pocket, digs into the middle of it, exhumes a $5 note and deposits it in the plate at Euclid Avenue Baptist church he taxes himself $3.75 besides giving up the $5.

The fiscal arrangements existing between Rockefeller and his Cleveland church stipulate that for every dollar of income received by the church through collections or other sources Rockefeller shall give 75 cents. This plan means that approximately 43 per cent of the cost of maintaining the church and its various institutions and benevolences falls on Rockefeller.

The revenue of the church last year was nearly $35,000 of which about $17,000 was spent in the support of the foreign missions and other benevolences. The other half went to the support of the church itself.

American Exhibitors.

LONDON, July 3.—American manufacturers of electrical apparatus and supplies for electric and steam railways are well represented in the International Tramway and Railway Exhibition which opened today in the Royal Agricultural hall. This is the third exhibition of the kind held in London and from present indications it be even more successful than the two held previously. The establishment of these exhibitions was the direct outcome of the success of the annual exhibitions of the American Street Railway association.

Winona Assembly Opens

WARSAW, Ind., July 3.—Today's formal opening of the annual session of the Winona Assembly was marked by an unusually large attendance. The program for the session this year offers many attractions and it is expected to be one of the most successful sessions in the history of the assembly. Congressman James E. Watson is to deliver the patriotic oration tomorrow.

EDUCATORS AT ASBURY PARK

TWO THOUSAND DELEGATES ARE GATHERED FOR THE NATIONAL CONVENTION

Annual Address Will Be Delivered by Superintendent Maxwell of New York City.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 3.—The twin resorts, Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, have today within their gates 20,000 or more delegates to the forty-fourth annual convention of the National Educational association. It is expected there will be 25,000 visitors here when all the delegates arrive. Every state and territory of the Union is represented among the visitors. Though the east is naturally the most largely represented section there are good-sized delegations on hand from the Central states, while the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast regions have representations far exceeding the early expectations. The proximity of New York city and other large cities to which side trips will be made after the convention has concluded its business is regarded as responsible in a measure for the unusually large attendance.

The meetings today were confined to the national council of education, the department of Indian education and other side conferences. The national officers and committees, under the general direction of Secretary Irwin M. Shepard, were up to their ears in the work of completing final details of the convention arrangements. As fast as the delegates arrive they are escorted to headquarters, where they were registered, given badges and assigned to quarters.

The general sessions are to begin tonight in the Ocean Grove auditorium, which has been tastefully decorated both inside and out for the occasion. At this meeting Governor Stokes of New Jersey will make an address of welcome, and Albert G. Lane, former president of the association, will respond. Superintendent Maxwell of New York City, the present head of the association, will deliver his annual address. William T. Harris, the United States commissioner of education, will talk on the "Future of Teachers' Salaries." Frederick J. V. Skiff, director of the Field Columbian Museum, will speak on the "Uses of Educational Museums," and a discussion will be led by Harry Snyder, superintendent of schools of Jersey City, and Superintendent J. W. Carr, of Anderson, Ind.

An interesting and attractive program has been arranged for tomorrow. The morning will be occupied by departmental meetings and a big general session will be held in the afternoon. The program of the open meeting will include addresses as follows:

"The Standards of Local Administration," Mayor George B. McClellan of New York City; "American Idealism," President Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia; "The Nation's Educational Purpose," Andrew S. Draper, state commissioner of education for New York. A general discussion will be led by Superintendent James A. Forsnay of Los Angeles, and President Livingston C. Lord, of the Eastern Illinois State Normal school.
