

If you select a bank with a record for strength and conservatism, one whose officers and directors are a guarantee against your money being used for speculation, then you can feel that your money is absolutely safe. The Farmers Savings Bank went through the panic of '93 and is still doing business at the same place under the same management. Its stockholders are all local citizens and taxpayers with a personal responsibility for over five million dollars. There can be no element of risk in banking with such a bank. We do all kinds of banking business, pay four per cent on time deposits and our business is continually growing. We solicit yours.

DOUGHERTY STOLE MONEY

PEORIA SCHOOL MAN SHOWN BY INVESTIGATION TO BE A PRINCE OF SWINDLERS.

Everett Auditing Committee Will Present Scathing Report Censuring the School Board.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Startling disclosures will be made in a report on the defalcation of former Superintendent of Schools Newton C. Dougherty, which will be presented to the Peoria school board tonight. The school man will be shown to have been one of the greatest swindlers the world has ever known. The report, which is being prepared by the Everett Audit company, embraces the records of the last seven years, and will show total shortage of more than $600,000 in that time. This is more than the wildest conjecture previously had made the steal for the whole twenty-five years of Dougherty's trusteeship.

Bank Responsible.
 It has been disclosed by members of the investigating committee that not only will the report of the audit committee scathingly censure the members of the present and the past school boards for their neglect of duty, but will declare boldly that the liquidated Peoria National bank is responsible for the loss to the school fund.

This charge against the bank is based upon the fact that the peculations were carried out by Dougherty by means of forged and fictitious school scrip, which was cashed by the bank of which Dougherty was president. The scrip was cashed without proper indorsement. The report will assert the criminal liability of the bank officials.

News of this trend of the investigation has produced consternation in Peoria financial circles.

Dividends Stopped.
 When the auditors first discovered conclusive proof of the bank's responsibility, court action was taken immediately to stop the payment of further dividends by the receiver. The order was not executed, however, until 30 per cent of the claims had been paid. If it is finally established that the bank owes the school board the amount of the defalcation these dividends will have to be withdrawn and the consequence will be that the bank's affairs will be tied up in the courts for several years.

The report, which is being rapidly completed, will be read in the open meeting of the school board. One of the conclusions which will be drawn by the author is that, in all the twenty-five years of Dougherty's official connection with the public schools of Peoria, the accounts of the school board never received proper auditing.

In this respect the members of the board in past years and the members of the finance committee will be charged with neglect of their public trust.

Got $50,000 a Year.
 One of the most interesting features of the report is an analysis which will show the magnitude of Dougherty's operations. In none of the last seven years, it is said, did he steal less than $50,000, and in the last three years he got away with $300,000.

Twenty-seventh Child.
 CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—For the twenty-seventh time Jonathan Allen Monroe, aged 62, has been brought to a realization of the fact that he is a father. The latest reminder came yesterday in the shape of a healthy baby boy, making the fifteenth living child.

Mr. Monroe is a cattle buyer at the Union stockyards, and is well known about the district both as an enemy of race suicide and because of his general affability.

Jonathan Allen Monroe was born in Swansea, Mass., April 27, 1843. When he was 18 years old he married Isabella Hunter of Albany. Mrs. Monroe died after having given birth to twelve children, six of whom are still living. Some time later Mr. Monroe married his present wife, Ella, who is now 39 years old.

Bingham Demands Salute.
 NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—General Theodore Bingham, police commissioner, surprised police headquarters this morning by taking a quiet stroll about the building instead of going direct to his office. He soon met Policeman Matthew McCoy, who gave the commissioner the customary salute in the department, a sort of nondescript anything. The general almost snorted at the burlesque salute and stopped McCoy.

"I want you to learn the army salute," said the general. "Nothing like that here."

The general then illustrated the proper salute and McCoy followed his example and saluted properly. During his stroll the commissioner told several other policemen the same thing and made it plain that the army salute must be used hereafter in the department.

THE SENATORIAL PRIMARIES

TENNESSEE VOTERS ARE EXPRESSING PREFERENCE TODAY.

HENDERSON, Tenn., Jan. 12.—The senatorial primaries are held today in the twenty-fifth senatorial district, which comprises the counties Madison, Chester and Henderson. The situation is rather interesting in this district. Several prominent democrats have been suggested to oppose the nomination of Hon. T. W. Pope of Madison county. Pope represented this district in the last legislature and the temperance element was not pleased with his record and is, therefore, strongly opposed to his return to the senate. Among the prominent democrats mentioned to contest his nomination is Hon. J. D. Johnson who made a brilliant record for himself in favor of the extension of the Adams law. The result of the primaries is awaited with considerable interest. A strong vote is expected.

DEVELOPMENT OF OREGON

PORTLAND BUSINESS MEN ARRANGE EXCURSION THROUGH CALIFORNIA.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 12.—A joint meeting of the Oregon Press association and the Oregon Development league is held here today, which will so to speak, form the prelude to the commercial excursion to California to be undertaken under the auspices of the Oregon Development league. The excursion will start from here in a special train tomorrow. At the meeting, which convened here today, various matters pertaining to the commercial, industrial and intellectual development of the state of Oregon will be discussed. The good roads question, various agricultural and horticultural questions, traffic matters and other important subjects will come up for consideration and plans will be considered to effectively boom the various interests of this state. The attendance is very large and among those present are many prominent newspapermen from all parts of the state, as well as a large number of prominent merchants and manufacturers.

Cincinnati's Lid Is On.
 CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—For the first time in twenty years the lid is on here. Mayor Demsey, following a communication from the Ministerial Alliance law enforcement committee, has ordered Chief of Police Milliken to close every saloon at midnight, and stop gambling using every police power, smashing in the doors with axes if necessary. The order is an absolute one, and all the prominent downtown saloons have agreed to obey it. The last drink is to be sold at ten minutes before midnight and the bartenders are to be out at the stroke of 12, with the doors locked and blinds up. Demsey has made no order regarding Sunday closing, but it is generally thought that Governor Pattison will order it.

READY TO LOSE POPULARITY

PRESIDENT KNOWS THE DANGER OF SITUATION BUT ACCEPTS THE CHALLENGE.

Dolliver-Hepburn Bill Is Now Viewed as Measure Acceptable to the Administration.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—President Roosevelt has expressed a willingness to be sacrificed personally, provided he can secure the enactment of a rate bill, moderate in character, which will make an important advance toward control over the carrying companies, now the greatest corporate power this country ever has known.

He realizes the danger to himself that the situation presents, and yet, he accepts the challenge manfully, and, if there should be need for it, will surrender his immense popularity in order to accomplish the desired result.

The time has come when, as he says in his last message, the government must assert its rights over the railroads in the matter of controlling rates. This power is negatively asserted in the present interstate commerce law, but that is not sufficient. The time has now come when the government must decide whether it, or private interests, are to control the great avenues of transportation, and no negative assertion of the federal right is sufficient to hold the railways in check. There must be affirmative assertion.

Bill Will be Epochal.
 This affirmative assertion of the bill, which will be known as the administration bill, will make it an epochal in character, and mark the longest stride forward yet taken by the government in the interest of the whole people in rate matters.

The railways resent this invasion of their long unquestioned privilege. It means a limitation of their powers, possibly a reduction of their revenues, and no negative assertion of their absolute power for harm. The presence of such a law on the statute books would be sufficient to earn for the president the hostility of nearly every railway man of influence in the country. The passage of that bill will at once strike from the list of his supporters nearly every man who is interested in railway management or railway earnings, and there are enough of such men to affect public sentiment powerfully.

While the president is thus arraying the railway power against himself, he is preparing, by the moderation which he is exhibiting, so far as other features of the railway bill are concerned, to invite the open and bitter opposition of a very large class of the people generally, of the shipping public, who, almost without exception, outside the great cities, are radical in their demands and will not be satisfied with any moderate law.

New Town of Roosevelt.
 ARLINGTON, Or., Jan. 12.—A new town opposite Arlington on the north bank railroad has sprung up. T. B. Montgomery has sold many lots in the townsite. There is one saloon, for which Peter Johnson paid $1000 license to Klackit county; a general merchandise and drug store and postoffice. The town will be called Roosevelt.

A GOOD NIGHT'S REST

"Speak for it!" she cried to doggie. For she knew in her little heart, That German Syrup, home's great treasure, Could health and joy impart.

The greatest tonic on earth is a good night's rest. Restless nights and the terrible exhaustion of a hacking cough are dread dangers of the poor consumptive.

But why this fear of the night when a few doses of Dr. Rosch's German Syrup will insure refreshing sleep, entirely free from cough or night sweat? Free expectation in the morning is made certain by taking German Syrup.

We know by the experience of over thirty-five years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders.

Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

PURE—WHOLESOME—RELIABLE

MADE FROM CREAM OF TARTAR DERIVED SOLELY FROM GRAPES, THE MOST DELICIOUS AND WHOLESOME OF ALL FRUIT ACIDS

Its superiority is unquestioned
 Its fame world-wide
 Its use a protection and a guarantee against alum food

Alum baking powders are detrimental to health. Many consumers use alum baking powders in perfect ignorance. They are allured to the danger by the cry of cheapness, and the false and flippant advertisements in the newspapers. Alum baking powders do not make a "pure, wholesome and delicious food" any more than two and two make ten. Their manufacturers are deceiving the public. If you wish to avoid this danger to your food, LOOK UPON THE LABEL and decline to buy or use any baking powder that is not plainly designated as a cream of tartar powder.

The Physical Exercise Fad.

So many of our athletic games and the incentive to pursue them sedulously are imported from England that it is somewhat unusual to have the notion that regular health exercise is necessary discredited on the other side of the water. A writer in the London Mail, who has had athletic training and is a worker, takes issue with those experts who insist that regular exercise and practice are essential to playing a good game or to the maintenance of health. He says that it is possible to be fit for a game—and for another game after it—on Saturday afternoon or any other time without putting in several hours of exercise to get in trim and also to keep up unceasingly the daily stint of work. Of course it all depends upon the man or the woman whether daily exercise is necessary.

To quote:
 If the individual is below the normal in certain respects, then appropriate exercises will be a help. If the individual is beyond the normal in certain respects—say with a cast iron biceps and chest of imposing size—even then appropriate exercises may be a help; for instance, to bring the liveness, the quickness and the repose up to the normal. But if the individual is near normal, then I do not believe in the indiscriminate advice to grind for some half hour every day. I believe that there may be a better way—a pleasanter and cheaper and more sensible way.

The writer began his experiments as a well trained athlete. He left off all exercise except that entailed by his daily routine of working, dressing, walking to his business place, etc., and he found that he could play his game as well as ever and stay at it as long, that he could work twelve or thirteen hours a day without any games, without any developers or dumbbells and without any loss of physical fitness for games or work. Moreover, he ate and drank whatever he felt inclined to and always had a good appetite.

It is presumptuous for one individual to lay down health rules for all—how often to bathe, how much water to drink, how to breathe, and so on—as this writer declares. Each one must take his own road to reach a normal condition in respect of his organs, his nerves and muscles. When that state is reached it is easy to test the diet and the amount of exercise needed to maintain fitness for the usual strain. In the beginning or until normal health is established regular physical drill and practice may be necessary—that is, simply training for health, just as dieting or medication may be used to build up powers which are wanting. Beyond that persistence in practice may not alone cause a waste of time, but actually prove harmful by using up energy or by overdeveloping powers that cannot be given healthy activity. A physique too strenuous for its sphere, like a brain too big for its work.
