HOLD UP FOUR NEW LAWS

Four of the laws passed by the last legislature, on which referendum petitions were circulated, will be voted upon by the people at the next election in 1922. The four laws are the certificate of necessity law, the law with reference to medical examination of school children, the law requiring voters to state their political belief when registering, and the law regarding the election of precinct committeemen. As the matter now stands all of these laws are suspended until after the vote is taken.

CHARMING BRICK AND STUCCO HOME

For Small Family in Moderate Circumstances.

BUILDING COST REASONABLE

This Design is Attractive in Appearance and Thoroughly Comfortable From the Standpoint of Number of Rooms and Equipment.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

According to all indications, the big demand by home builders for several years to come will be for small homes. Thousands of families, in an effort to get away from the exorbitant rents of the apartments in the cities, will build homes of their own, and because of the cost and their limited means, these homes will necessarily be small. But they will be as complete and just as modern as any pretentious home on an exclusive boulevard. The building art has been developed to the point where the small home can supply the same comforts and conveniences that the larger and more expensive one has heretofore had alone.

With a small home the man is not worried over rents, nor worried over a place for his children; he has plenty of room to turn around in, plenty of fresh air to breathe. And he is an independent citizen keenly interested in at side and rear provide an abundance of real daylight and insure splendid ventilation.

Between the reception hall and the kitchen, which is at the rear of the lower floor, is the grade entry and staircase to the second floor. The kitchen is a splendidly arranged room, equipped with many labor-saving devices of a novel nature, such as the built-in hinged ironing board which fits snugly, when not in use, into a niche in the wall, and various cupboards for utensils and the like. At one corner in a sort of wing is the pantry, a large room designed to be a storage and work room. It is also fitted with several space-saving features of which the outdoor icing refrigerator will find much favor with the housewife. A swinging door connects the kitchen with the dining room.

The upper floor or half story, for this house is what is familiarly known as a story-and-a-half house, contains the two bedrooms, bathroom and a small alcove, 8 by 6 feet, which can be used as a sewing room. The bedrooms are of comfortable size, 11 by 12 feet, and well lighted and ventilated by a row of windows in the front and rear dormers. Each bedroom has adequate closet space for clothing. The front bedroom opens out on to a small balcony with special prepared canvas flooring.

There will be thousands of small homes like the one shown here built this spring and summer. If they are planned along the same substantial lines, there need be little fear that they will not prove to be comfortable and ideal homes. Only through the protection and continued prosperity of the home can the nation hope to survive. In face of the present acute shortage it is imperative that building be started and carried out on a large scale. Otherwise we may have disturbances of a far-reaching character.

The front porch is quite large, extending the full width of the house and screened in so as to make an admirable lounging place on the warm days. Recessed as it is under the main roof, the porch is well protected by solid walls on either end. The front door is a single door, artistic in design. It opens into a small reception hall, which leads to the large living room on the left. These rooms are connected by a cased opening.

The living room is an extra large room, ideal for the family lounging and resting room. In the outside wall is a large open fireplace, and on one side of this fireplace is a wall bookcase. This room is the most important room in the house and consequently the most comfortable and attractive. French doors lead the way into the dining room, a room not quite so large, but perhaps more cheerful and brighter, an ideal place for the happy family around the dinner table. Windows

Both Good Customers Of Ours

The electric light business is mighty democratic! The workman's cottage and the best house in town get exactly the same grade of electricity, the same service, the same rates. Both owners buy from the same source of supply and take the same discounts. A hurry-up call from either home gets the same attention from the Repair Department.

Regardless of street address, size of the home or amount of electricity consumed, every customer of ours is considered a good customer and treated as such.
