

FIVE-YEAR LEASES IN RESERVES

FOREST SUPERVISORS MET AT SALT LAKE

Discussed Question of Granting Five Year Permits in the Reserves— Under Long Term Lease Stockmen Would Know What to Depend Upon.

The Boise Capital News says of the recent meeting of forest supervisors at Salt Lake and of the objects of the meeting:

Forest Supervisor E. Grandjean, Forest Assistant O. M. Butler and A. D. Roade, forest assistant from the Henry Lake reserve, arrived home this morning from Salt Lake, where they attended the forest supervisors' meeting. Mr. Grandjean states there were about 45 supervisors at the meeting besides a number of Washington officials in the service.

Timber sales and grazing matters were discussed and also the question of the government issuing five year grazing permits which was discussed at great length.

Mr. Potter, chief of grazing, was present at the meeting and said that the government has in contemplation the granting of five year permits for grazing stock on the national forests such permits will be issued this year.

He said that it is planned to grant the five year grazing permits only after a national forest have been under government regulations for at least five years.

After the issuance of such permits, owners of more sheep than are entitled to a Class A man will only be cut during the period to make room for the Class A men, but the five year permits will provide that he shall not be cut more than a certain per cent in any one year. However, when Class A men do not make application or ask to be given grazing privileges, there would be no cut.

Under this plan, the larger owners will know in advance just what cut they might be subject to in the next five years. If the system is found successful on the forests where it will be tried this year, it is said that it will be applied to other forests next year.

The Way to Succeed.

Here is a bit of advice that will go as far as any that was ever paid for: The only way to succeed is to be successful. Doesn't sound very profound, does it? It isn't. It's about as simple as anything that has ever been printed, and at first sight it may appear idiotic. But there is a lot in it. The man who succeeds is the man who brings to a successful termination every minute undertaking of every day's activity. The successful man's life is made up of a myriad of successes. If you let one little item of your day's work get by you without satisfying yourself that you have done your best on it you are preparing for a failure. A million treatises on how to be successful will not help you.

The trouble with too many of us is that we are so busy trying to see a great success in the future that we can't see the chances for little successes under our noses. Heaven is not reached at a single bound, and neither is success. The only way to succeed is to be successful. It is worth thinking over.—St. Paul News.

Wondrously Good Sight. The Duchess of X. once went to Greenwich to see the marvels of the observatory. It was a lovely night, and for the fair duchess' benefit the great telescope was duly leveled at the dazzling field of stars. "What is that star?" she said, pointing to a very bright one. "Oh, that's Aldebaran, a star of the first magnitude." "Is it very far off?" asked her grace. "About six or seven light years, your grace." "What is a light year?" "Merely an expression which one uses to convey an idea of the distance which light travels in a year. Roughly speaking, light travels at the rate of 190,000 miles in a second, and there are about 31,000,536 seconds in a year. In one year, therefore, light travels above 5,991,840,000,000 miles. The expression 'light year' includes these figures."

"And is that star all those millions of miles away?" "Yes, your grace, as nearly as we can calculate." "Then all I can say," remarked the duchess, "is that you must have wonderfully good eyes to make out that star's name at that distance, even with this big telescope. It's really most marvelous."—London Tit-Bits.

Slaughtered the Anthem. "When I went west first," said a Unitarian minister, "I was in a small town called L., and in the choir of my church the village blacksmith did noble work as baritone. He had a voice that could shake mountains, and whatever it lacked in any other feature it made up in volume. He couldn't read music any more than he could English, but he learned a tune very readily."

"One Sunday we were to be favored with a new anthem because it was a special occasion, and the baritone had one portion all to himself. Unfortunately he had missed many of the practices. "The anthem went along excellently until it came to a beautiful part which reads, 'And, dying, bids us all aspire.'"

"Here the rest of the singers stopped short in that quick, sudden way that choirs have, and in the ensuing stillness sounded the ponderous tones of the blacksmith: "And dying brides are filled with fire."—Boston Herald.

To a Higher Table. John Barrett, chief of the bureau of American republics, after various other experiments in diplomacy, came to Washington from Oregon during President Cleveland's second term to get anything he could. He brought a bunch of Oregon boomers with him, and for a time they stayed at the best hotels. The job was slow in coming, and they went from cheaper place to cheaper place, like Mark Twain's office seeker, until they were forced to eat at one of the lunch places on Pennsylvania avenue. One night while they were at dinner word came that President Cleveland had decided to appoint Barrett minister to Siam. Barrett rose from the table and put on his coat. "Hold on, John!" cried one of his companions in misfortune. "Where are you going? Aren't you going to finish your dinner?" "Gentlemen," said Barrett as he stalked out, "this is no place for the minister to Siam to dine."—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Certain About That. Mrs. Verdigris was enumerating her various ailments. "I haven't kept track of all of 'em," she said, "but one of the first things I had was the lumbago in the small of my back. Then I had the infuenzy awful bad. The next thing was the rheumatiz. Since then I've had neuralgy, nervous headache, sore throat, indigestion, a breaking out on my skin and ever so many other pesky little troubles that I can't remember."

"It would be an interesting list," said her sympathizing neighbor. "Why didn't you take an inventory?" "I'm not certain but what I did," answered Mrs. Verdigris. "I took ever so many things. I'll try it if you think it'd help me, but unless it's very mild I just know it won't stay on my stum-mick."—Youth's Companion.

Made a Record. "Yo' said in yo' sermon, Brother Dickey, dat Jonah wuz eat up by de whale?" "I sho' did."

"Well, den, how comes he live ter tell it?" That seemed to stagger the old man, but he gathered himself together and replied: "Dat's easy. You see, Jonah wuz de fust fisherman, an' he had ter make a record!"—Atlanta Constitution.

An English View of Robert E. Lee. General Robert E. Lee was indeed fully Washington's equal as a hero and a gentleman and much his superior as a soldier. It is only in the larger political or semipolitical sphere that he stands lower and there perhaps only because his opportunities were so much smaller.—London Times Review of Trevelyan's History.

What Dropped. "I heard you let something drop in the kitchen just now, Kate. Did you break anything?" asked the lady of the house when dinner was being served. "Only one leg of the chicken, ma'am!" replied the girl innocently.—Charity.

Inquisitive. Nell—I declare! That woman finds out everything. I never knew any one so inquisitive. Belle—That's right. I believe she would even pump an organ.—Philadelphia Record.

TRYING TO STIR UP TROUBLE.

Someone Starts Baseless Rumor About La Grande Banks With Malicious Intent.

A report has become more or less generally circulated that the banks were restricting withdrawals and to see if there was any foundation for such an Observer representative visited the several banks of the city and received the same reply in every instance, to the effect that since the governor's holidays were declared off, that each and every depositor's check had been honored in full and would be to the extent of the deposits, says the La Grande Observer. This report is doubtless a reiteration of the condition of affairs that were general throughout the state during the long period of holidays, by those who do not carry any bank accounts. Those who do business with the banks knew better.
