FREE LOVE ENDS COLONY'S LIFE

TACOMA SETTLEMENT BREAKS UP AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Farm Consisting of 217 Acres Will Be Sold—Colony Is Begun by Socialists Who Decide "To Have All Things in Common"—Colony Is Later Moved and Attempt Made to Establish Industries—Free Love and Anarchy Is the Last Step.

Tacoma.—The communistic or anarchistic colony at Joe's bay, after a life of 20 years, is a thing of the past. The entire 217 acres, comprising the farm and settlement site of the colony has been platted and will be placed on the market and sold.

The colony had its beginning near Eatonville, in the southern part of Pierce county, where a number of socialists acquired land and, amalgamating their holdings, "had all things in common." After a trial of five or six years the colony removed to Joe's bay, and attempts were there made to build up a typical communistic industrial community. Hands were held out to any person who wished to unite with them who appeared to be sincere. A sawmill was started and various kinds of manufacturing undertaken.

The colony appeared to be unable to pass a certain milestone of progress, and the same was true in the matter of expansion of membership and property owned. This was due in part to a constantly changing membership. There was nothing to hold any one after he grew tired of life at the colony, a fundamental principle believed in being the inalienability of individual choice. This constant changing kept the mass of the colonists forever in the kinderggarten of communistic development.

Leaders Arrested for Fieri Talk.
At the time of the assassination of President McKinley the wave of indignation against anarchists, communists and socialists resulted in the head men of the colony being arrested and brought before the federal courts here for incendiary speeches and for writings in newspapers published at Joe's bay. But they were released, public opinion finally veering in their favor when it was known that the actions were principally instigated by prejudice.

The principles believed in by the colonists were multiform. Many advocated and practiced the doctrine of nonresistance. Others believed in the "strong arm and the knockout." Free love was practiced by many, according to reports, and during a number of years the colony's existence the marriage tie was disregarded. Many men and women lived together by mutual consent and separated when one or both tired of the other. In a conscience-stricken spasm a boatload of these one day came here and were married.

In the matter of religion there "was a confusion of tongues," many being out and out infidels and others admitting a Deity, but there was a general disbelief in the divinity of Christ and the vicarious atonement.

Colony a Financial Failure.
Financially the colony was a failure.
With the rest of the northwest growing with great strides, it stood still. Wave-like impulses of activity would sweep over the colony, during which land would be cleared and industrial achievement undertaken. But out of these the colony would drift into the "doldrums" of inaction.
Many very bright men have belonged to the settlement.

MAKE DEFENSE OF
THE NUDE IN ART

Berkeley, Cal., June 5.—Clothes are only of value in art in so far as they convey an impression of what is beneath them. In other words, they are an impediment of art, is the defense of nude artistic expression by Professor Frederick Mortimer Clapp, of the University of Chicago. His assertion has created unlimited discussion in university circles here.

Professor Clapp, who has spent years in the study of art in the European centers, is staff lecturer at Mr. Rockefeller's university and is delivering a special series of art lectures at the University of California's summer session. His defense of art in the nude, following closely upon the discussion in San Francisco art circles during the past week, was made during the course of a lecture.
"The human body in painting," he said, "gives the opportunity of conveying the most direct message from the master artist to the spectator.
"We are human beings and our bodies are all important from the artistic standpoint, since they, in their mobility, portray quickest and most sincerely the stream emotion."

STARTS TO SEE THE WORLD.

Portland Lad Leaves Home With $1.10
In His Pocket.

Portland.—Attacked by the wanderlust while he had $1.10 in small change in the pockets of his well worn overalls, Elmer Black, aged 11 years, residing with his mother at East Alder and tenth streets, started Wednesday to see the world. His itinerary led him to Council Crest, to the end of the Waverly-Woodstock carline and to the Oaks before the lad reached out and demanded a return to the simple life.

Elmer had been given a dollar by his mother and 10 cents by his aunt, Mrs. Miller, residing near the boy's home. With adventure in his mind he started out, without telling anybody of his intentions. Landing at Council Crest, he rode the merry-go-round and the "bumpy" railroad until most of his cash had changed owners.
Night overtook him without a place to sleep, so he again boarded a car and rode to the end of the line. A friendly station offered protection during the night, and Elmer slept on the hard floor of the tiny shelter. Thursday morning with not enough money to get a light meal, Elmer was found by a kind-hearted man who was early at the station to catch the first car.

Giving the boy a car ticket on which to go home, the man accompanied him to the east end of the Morrison street bridge. Here the lad took an Oaks car, and was soon wistfully looking over the high board fence which separates the pleasure seekers from the "maddening crowd."

With the instinct of an experienced traveler without funds, Elmer says he leaned over the fence and his hat fell on the opposite side. Appealing to a friendly officer, he was allowed to follow the headpiece, and a few minutes later was permitted to follow Chief Probation Officer Teuscher back to the courthouse.

The juvenile court ordered the boy into the custody of his aunt, Mrs. Miller, East Alder and Eleventh streets, it being shown that he had gotten beyond the control of his mother.

EXHIBIT REVIVES HEROIC STORY

Gallant Effort of Sailors to Save Companions Illustrated at Seattle.

Seattle.—An interesting story of the wreck of the U. S. S. Saginaw and the marooning on a small island in mid-Pacific of the crew in the year 1870, is revived with the exhibit, in the main government building at the Seattle World's Fair, of the sextant, crew of five men used in crossing the ocean 1,500 miles to secure aid.

It was after finishing work at the Midway Islands that the U. S. S. Saginaw started to return to San Francisco. The captain desired to run over to Ocean Island, in mid-Pacific, which was out of the ordinary track of vessels. During a rough night the Saginaw herself was wrecked on an outlying reef of the island, but happily all hands reached shore in safety.

Plans were at once made to send a crew of four volunteers under Lieutenant Talbot U. S. N., to the Hawaiian Islands for aid. One good sextant had been saved from the ship, but as it was believed that the five men would never reach their destination, it was thought advisable to retain the good sextant and build a schooner from the wreckage. Therefore a sextant was made for the small boat out of a dial plate from a vacuum gauge, an old copper bolt, wire, etc. The tools used was a hammer, a file, cold chisel and pocket knife.

Pythian Week at Exposition Attracts Great Gathering

Seattle, Wash.—Pythian week has attracted the largest fraternal gathering in Seattle, ever seen in the northwest. In connection with the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Domain of Washington, a jubilee is being held and lodge men are attending from Oregon, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia in large numbers.
Every lodge in this state is well represented. Some Knights from as far east as the Atlantic coast are also here. The coming of the Iola drill team from Dayton, Ohio, has been made the big feature. Its presentation of the dramatic story of the friendship of Damon and Pythias, on which the order is founded, has been attended by large crowds in the armory. The monster parade the first of the week, proved to be a notable turnout. Grand Chancellor Otto A.
Case is well satisfied with the assembly. The last two days of the week at the exposition will be turned over to the Pythians. The next big reunion is that of the Elks, which comes on July 27th. All wearers of the antlers will participate in a circus at the Fair on that day. Many delegates from the grand lodge at Los Angeles are expected to be here.

New people are constantly arriving in the justly celebrated "John Day" valley, as the new extension of the Sumpter valley railway is to be completed and in operation to Prairie City by November.
