Christmas Spirit is Strong at Weston

(East Oregonian Special.)

WESTON, Dec. 17.—In spite of the fact that the Spanish influenza has closed everything, it has not kept the Christmas spirit from entering Weston. The good cheer of that merry season is already beginning to be felt. The stores are brightly decorated and people are busily engaged with their Christmas shopping.

Miss Louise Rintoul, primary teacher in the Weston schools, left yesterday for her home in The Dalles where she will spend the Christmas holidays with home folks.

Joe Hodgson has secured the services of an expert miller to operate the Flavel flouring mill. He will now run the mill continuously making wheat flour for the shipping trade.

Hesekiah Key, a Weston pioneer, while sitting in a hotel in Pendleton yesterday, was suddenly taken very sick and was conveyed to a Pendleton hospital for treatment.

Joe Lewis, a former Westontite, now a farmer in the Vandevoort country, is a visitor in Weston.

VON BETHMAN HOLLWEG COURTS INVESTIGATION

LONDON, Dec. 4.—LONDON, Dec. 4.—Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, German imperial chancellor at the outbreak of the war, is eager for an investigation into his share in the origin of the conflict, according to a statement he has made to the North German Gazette of Berlin, as quoted by the Central News correspondent at Copenhagen.

The former chancellor in his statement refers to the Bavarian revelations regarding the war's origin and protests against the publication of fragmentary extracts from documents and the deductions made from these. He admits that Germany was not surprised at Austria's action regarding Serbia, but declares he was not aware of the text of this ultimatum before it was dispatched and when he saw it he regarded it as too sharp, both in its tone and as to the demands made. The ex-chancellor says he is anxiously awaiting the day when his case may be judged by an impartial government tribunal. "We will admit our errors," he adds, "but will not allow ourselves to be forced to make untrue confessions."

WRITES ON NOVEMBER 11

Royal Spiermann, member of the 148 Field Artillery, tells in a letter to his sister, Mrs. W. A. Miles, of how his company was ready to fire when the news of peace came on November 11 and all hostilities ceased. He sent several interesting souvenirs, among them buttons and a map from a German uniform, a piece of shrapnel and a scrap of cloth from a German airplane. He also sent a German "death card" used by the Germans to notify relatives of the death of those in the army. Following is the letter in full.

Battle Front, France, Nov. 11, 1918.
My Dear Sister, I am glad to hear that I believe here isn't a happier man in all France today than I am. This morning we heard over the wireless that peace was declared. We had orders to fire and when the official news came to cease all guns would cease at 11 p. m. Before that time it seemed like a barrage was going up. Just after 11 p. m. everything was quiet on the front.

I suppose it will be only a few months until we are allowed to go home. O' boy!

Gee, I've thought many times I would never see the end. It seemed that God has been with me throughout. He has performed miracles. I have seen men being cut in many places, killed and wounded, by my side and I have come out safe.

This strip of cloth is a piece of a German airplane brought down. The two round buttons belong to a dead German's cap.

Best wishes,
ROYAL.

TELLING OF BOMBING

Calvin A. Jordan ("Art") member Co. E, 2nd Batt. 23rd Engineers, A. E. F., writes to his mother, Mrs. A. R. Ramsdall of this city, that he had his first and only exciting experience with an air man recently when he discovered that a German plane was just about to go straight over him and three of his comrades. Following is the letter:

November 2nd, 1918.

Dear Mother:

Much time and a whole flock of action since I wrote last. I left Camp Montebellino with its mud and troubles and moved in the general direction of Deutschland and some more mud. The highboys are the best part of our equipment.

When we moved in the names of these towns around here were just recently in print—scenes of hard fighting—but the towns are things of the past and the fighting is also past as far as this section goes.

Fritz bothers us a little for all that. Their birdmen have a great habit of wandering around after night. You can recognize them when three or four miles away by the throb of their motors.

The first and only exciting time I had with a skyman was the second night we were in camp. Three of the four of us who are dug in together, decided to go about a half mile after some ammunition boxes we had seen that day as clothes boxes. We got about two-thirds of the way when we heard Fritz coming. We stopped and hid in the bushes. Searchlights began doing the same thing and about that time we discovered if he held his course he would go straight over us. We left. Went about a hundred yards toward camp at top speed and hit some barbed wire, so we stopped as he had passed.

He dropped eight bombs on the little hill south of us, then turned and dropped one in the little valley and one on the hill back of us as we went home. While the last two were lighting we all three were flat with our noses in the dirt and when he left we went to camp and moved our pup tents to a distance we had prepared during the day. This doesn't remind me of the hole we dug on the hill back of Fritz. Some one has dug deeper and four of us live in it.

Got a letter from Cliff today and answered it. Guess he will be the class of the family. Would like to tell you where we are but can't do it. We are busy as bees and don't have much time to write as lights are scarce and have to be well covered at night. For my part I don't think we will put in more than three more months in this country.

Lots of love to you all.
