Tuberculosis Ebbs and Flows.
The decline of tuberculosis is likened to that of leprosy by Dr. Louis Corbett, lecturer in pathology at the University of Cambridge. Leprosy was formerly one of the world's great scourges, but has become practically extinct in western countries. Tuberculosis seems to be following, as it is declining at an increasing rate, its deaths having fallen off nearly 60 per cent since 1865. Apparent causes of the change are lessened overcrowding, otherwise improved social conditions, more and better food, and the adoption of methods of real ventilation. The war has given tuberculosis a new lease of life in European nations, especially in half-starved Austria, where it runs riot.

MUCH IS TOLD BY PROVERBS

Household Sayings Throw Light on Characteristics of Social Groups Whence They Emanate.

It is a commonplace to say that a nation's moral code is revealed in its proverbs; but it is less widely recognized that proverbial sayings throw light also upon the long-standing economic structure of a social group. A proverb is not an individual observation; it condenses the experience of a class, a sex, a caste. A large number record the accumulated experience of the small peasant proprietor, his ceaseless labor and petty saving and screwing. "While the sheep bleats he loses a mouthful."

The economics of married life are often tersely laid bare. "A wooden mother is better than a golden father" (Shropshire) must be taken from the outlook of a wife who would be summed up in a national census as "home worker."

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," says the wisdom of the staid British countryman, diligently making the best of his land by long and careful husbandry. "By going and coming the bird builds its nest" is the opposite point of view held by a Negro trader traveling backward and forward through the African forest.

Bawbees are round and rin away.
A grip o' the grund is gude to hae.

expresses the land-hunger of a Scotsman of the old school, mistrusting "investments" which he cannot see and handle.

Here is a trio from Norway: "A large stock needs much pasture." "A cow will not hear that the hay is dwindling away." "You cannot climb a mountain by a level road." Do they not sum up certain aspects of the little farm perched up amid scanty mountain pastures?

Factory life, a modern growth everywhere, has not yet left its mark upon the proverbial lore of any country because it has not yet been fully assimilated as a mode of self-expression. The proverb is everywhere a spontaneous growth, for "shoes alone know if 'tocking hab hole," as they say in Jamaica.

Pointer for the Housewife.

The woman who reduces herself to a frazzle and her family to nervous wrecks does it by trying to do each separate piece of work to perfection. We all like a perfectly appointed household, but it is vastly more important that a home should be comfortable, where the family likes to gather, than that no grain of dust should ever be seen. Housework, done right, is more healthful than almost any other work. Making beds is an excellent exercise for a sluggish liver, but don't forget that a tired housewife may be rested and refreshed by a brisk walk in the fresh air. Fatigue is often caused from bad air, and with the lungs filled with pure air the body is able to throw off the poisons.

Pick out the important things to be done daily and do them, reserving time and strength for these things. The important thing is meals. They mean more to the family than anything else, as they are the fuel which keeps you going.—Exchange.
