Democratic Nominees.

SHERIFF—S. T. SMITH.
Treasurer—T. F. BISHOP.
Congress—M. R. PATTERSON.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

REPRESENTATIVE.
We are authorized to announce H. E. CARTER as a candidate for reelection to the Legislature from Hardeman County, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

FLOATER.

We are authorized to announce J. A. DEMING, of Chester County, as a candidate for Floater from the Twenty-fourth District, composed of the counties of Chester, Haywood and Hardeman, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The common stock in trade with the McMillins is: "What did Bate ever do?" An old soldier who recently had this question fired at him answered: "I saw him lifted into his saddle, his foot dangling in the stirrup, and with his crutch on the pommel of the saddle lead a charge in one of the hardest fought battles of the Civil War."

Resolutions of Respect.

To Berlin Lodge No. 170, Free and Accepted Masons, Saulsbury, Tenn:

Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late brother, Dr. J. D. Sasser, Sr., beg leave to report the following:

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call Dr. J. D. Sasser, Sr., from labor to refreshment; be it resolved,

1. That in the death of brother Sasser this Lodge has lost one of its most worthy members, a member in whose life the principles of free masonry were exemplified.

2. That his family have lost a husband and father whose affections were most tender and constant.

3. That the Church of which he was a member and ruling elder has lost one of its most faithful and useful supporters.

4. That this community has lost one of its best and beloved citizens.

5. Be it further resolved, that we extend our deepest sympathy to his bereaved family and commend them to the tender mercies of the Supreme Architect of the Universe.

6. And that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge and a copy be sent to the family of brother Sasser and to each of the County papers for publication.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary A. Sasser, who was born in North Carolina, April 15th, 1819, died at the home of her son, Dr. Dr. J. D. Sasser, Sr., May 6th, 1904. She was married to Mr. John Sasser in 1835, who died August 24th, 1875. She raised six children, four of whom are left to mourn their loss, which is her gain.

Grandma Sasser, as we all called her, was one of the best women I ever knew. When only a child she professed religion and joined the Methodist Church, where she remained a true and consistent member until death. She was a dear lover of books, especially the Bible. She was devoted to all the interests of the church and her pastor always found her a helpful friend.

Let us be ready when the death Angel calls us and meet her again beyond the "Jordan of Death."

HER PASTOR.

How "OUR BOB" PARDONED THE HOGS.

The following story is told on Gov. Taylor:

"During his canvass for Governor for the second term, his Republican opponent was the Hon. Sam Hawkins, of Carroll County, probably the ablest and without doubt the most popular representative of his party in the state. They had an appointment to speak at a remote town in the mountains, and in a county where the Republicans had a safe majority. The town being some distance from the railroad and the livery facilities limited, it became necessary for them to make the trip in the same buggy. On account of bad roads and a sudden cold snap, darkness overtook them, and they were obliged to accept the hospitality of a farmer who lived in about three miles of their destination.

"The two distinguished guests made themselves known to their host, who, by the way was the leading Republican of the county, and they were especially honored by being assigned to the front room, which was comfortably and neatly furnished, but in which there was only one bed. Being worn out from a long and tedious journey over the rough mountain road, it was not long after supper when the candidates said good-night, and in a few minutes afterward Democracy and Republicanism were sound asleep and literally verifying the old saying that 'politics make strange bed-fellows.'

"Next morning about 4 o'clock there was a sudden rap on the door, followed by a voice saying, 'Get up, men; get up, men; breakfast 'bout ready, and the women folks air in er powerful hurry to git things cleaned up fore they goes to jerking fat. We'uns gwine ter kill hogs ter-day—git up, men.'

"This is a devil of a come-off," growled Taylor. What shall we do, Sam?"

"I'm going to stay in this old fat bed till 8 o'clock," replied Hawkins.

"But you will offend the old man, and he and his sons and all his sons-in-law will vote against you."

"Blamed if I'd get up to carry the state. Say, Bob, suppose you pardon those poor innocent hogs."

"That's a good idea, Sam, but you'll tell it on me."

"Well, here goes. 'Sir,' shouted Taylor, in a loud voice, 'by the power vested in the Governor by the Constitution of Tennessee, and as Chief Executive of this great commonwealth, I this day commute the death sentence of those hogs to imprisonment for life.'

"Bob, you are a daisy," remarked Hawkins, as he laughed himself to sleep—a sleep in which he dreamed of the ideas of November and big Republican majorities and his election to the highest office within the gift of his people.

"Not so with Taylor. Instead of sleeping, he was wide awake, and, unlike his opponent from the bogs of West Tennessee, he knew the mountaineer, his habits and prejudices, and he was not long in devising a plan to get ahead of his bed-fellow. So he quietly arose, hurriedly dressed himself and with the stealth of a cat slipped from the room.

"It was 8 o'clock when Hawkins awoke from his slumber. He missed Taylor before his eyes were hardly open, and at once instituted a search for him. Walking out on the porch," he observed a big log heap fire down by the spring.

Around the fire sat a group of men, in the center of which was the Governor of Tennessee. Blood was on his shirt, hog hair on his trousers, and he was without hat or coat. In his mouth was a cane pipestem, with one end inserted in a hog bladder. He would blow awhile, and then, withdrawing the stem from his mouth and squeezing the neck of the bladder between his fingers, resume an unfinished anecdote.

"The Democrats carried the county for the first time in its history, and their candidate for Governor led the ticket."
