"Despise not the day of small things," is a quotation that has special significance when applied to the rapid growth of our contem. porary, the Sequachee Valley News. The first issue of this newsy and breezy little paper was not much larger than the leaflet of a book, but year by year its publishers have increased its size and improved its appearance, until today it ranks among the best country weeklies in the sate. The News is very grateful for the compliments tendered it by Mrs Grundy. With a patriotic desire to build up the place the News has "stuck" by Sequaches. If we had left the place and gone to more progressive section our ri e might have been much more rapid, judging from our ability to work and as they seated themselves the hard and long, but things are not pastor said: even now a "bed of roses." THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

INFORMATION WANTED.

By some of our townspeople these questions are being asked: Who is furnishing topics for these evening talks at the church? Who informs Bro. Delamere what this person has said, or what that person has said? Who have we living among us who is so unfriendly towards the people in this vicinity that he enjoys the abuse and ridicule which is being heaped upon them?

Hopeless Minority.

A pastor in a near-by city was recently the victim of an amusing joke. The reverend gentleman had just begun his evening discourse when a man who evidently had a little more "Kentucky dew" aboard than the he needed, entered the church and in a dased sort of a way sat down in a

After the interruption the sermon was continued, and it being quite warm in the room, the knight of Bacchus fell asleep. At the close of his remarks the pastor said:

"I do not suppose there is one here to-night who does not desire to go to heaven, but I will ask all who

The ensire congregation arose with the exception of the intoxicated sleeper. The noise caused by their doing so partially awakened him,

"Now, those who wish to go to hell please rise."

The man realized enough to make out that the others had been standing and supposing he was expected to do the same, staggered to his feet. He looked around at the large congregation and remarked:

"Well, elder, I don't know (hic) what we're votin' on, but you and I (hic) seem to be in a hopeless minority.-Mt. Morris, (Ill.) Index.
