The French influence is very strong in millinery this season, stronger than It ever has been, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. Even the hat manufacturers making the popular priced merchandise have sent their representatives to Paris to purchase their own models, which they are copying at moderate prices.

The American woman is now demanding a great deal more of her milliner than she has during the last four years. Women are evidently tired of paying big prices for hats representing little of art and no workmanship. It takes longer to make one of the new ribbon hats—that is, the hats made entirely of ribbon—than it did to make half a dozen of the simple hats which American women have, season after season, accepted from their milliners without protest.

Colors are prominent in autumn millinery. French modistes are using a great deal of a blue known as bleu de France, which is slightly more intense than the blue of the French flag. Louison has made some duvetine hats in this shade Maria Guy is especially fond of using this shade of blue in taffeta ribbon as a trimming on black velvet hats. A deep rose shade is also being shown considerable favor.

In hat trimmings ribbon is one of the strongest factors. French milliners used it in great quantities during the summer season, and its use has increased with the approach of autumn So greatly has it been accepted that milliners expect its use to continue through next spring and summer. In past seasons ribbon trimming has usually meant bands and bows or other tailored effects. Now the use of ribbon is entirely different. It consists of all sorts of hand-made motifs and

Many of the early autumn hats for dressy afternoon wear are of panne velvet, and quite a new fancy is to trim them with broad taffeta ribbon, bringing the ribbon through slashes to the under brim, where it forms pointed panels. The ribbon is also wound around the crown in a sort of oriental headband. This makes a stunning and becoming hat. It is especially attractive when a dash of bright color is introduced through the ribbon such as bleu de France or one of the lovely

WHEY AND ITS USES

In the Journal of Household Eco statement is made that any infant that can live at all may be reared on natural physical solution. Some of the older housekeepers still use whey, when obtainable, in the preparation of bread; the whey is used in place of milk and water, making a very wholesome, tasty loaf. The whey should be scalded before using. In some of the foreign countries a cheese is made from whey; in this country both butter and cheese are made from it.

Whey combinations with fruit juices are especially good; the slightly acid whey is particularly delicious in frozen

Whey Pie.-Mix two-thirds of a cupful of sugar with three teaspoonfuls of cornstarch and add to one cupful of boiling whey. Cook the mixture cornstarch is well cooked, then add two beaten egg yolks, one tablespoonful of melted butter, pinch of salt and the grated rind and juice of a lemon; cook two minutes, then pour into a baked pastry shell. Cover the top with a meringue prepared by beating the whites of the eggs, adding two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a few drops of lemon flavoring. Bake in a slow oven. Whey pie is a close rival of the popular lemon pie. Whey Sponge.-Take two cupfuls of whey, two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, one-third of a cupful of water. two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one egg white, one cupful of grated raw carrot, the grated rind and juice of half a lemon. Soak the gelatin in cold water, dissolve over hot water. Mix the gelatin with the whey, add the sugar and set the mixture in a pan of ice-water. When it begins to thicken around the edges, beat well with a dover egg beater, add lemon fuice, rind and carrot. Fold in the well-beaten white and turn the mixture into a mold.

Cretan until the coming of the Greeks, who introduced the use of iron. Homer was familiar with Smyrna and is thought to have spent some time there. Homer lived about 3,000 years ago, but to him Smyrna was still an ancient Greek city.

The place was conquered by the Aeolians, one of the first waves of Greek immigration to sweep that country. It was the Aeolians who gave the city its present name. The ancient Greeks were a blond people. They came from the Baltic slope of Europe, particularly from what is now Silesia and Bohemia.

Ionian Greeks followed the Aeolians about 700 B. C. Then came Armenian peoples from the uplands of Asia Minor, the Lydians, who were related to the Hittites, When Lydia fell to the empire of the Medes and the Persians, Smyrna fell with it, and was ravaged. Alexander the Great attempted to restore the city when he Rats Exterminate Themselves. Director George Jennison of the Manchester Zoological gardens pronounces Great Britain's "rat week," when efforts were made to decimate the rats responsible for the destruction of $140,000,000 worth of food at nually, to be a great mistake. The male rat, the bold rover, is the one caught by poison, and the death of males only improves living conditions for the survivors. Four male and six female rats will, under favorable conditions, increase to large proportions in a period of two years. Doctor Jennison's suggestion is to upset the numerical proportions between the sexes and leave the males to destroy their own kind; he would forbid the poisoning of rats, but would take them alive in traps, kill the females, and turn the males loose.
