

DEFEAT DAMPENS HALLOWEEN ARDOR

Students Half-Heartedly Pile Wagons on Steps of Academic Hall.

ONE CADET STANDS ON GUARD

Cigar Store Indian, Swings and a Playhouse Are Moved.

Halloween, with its weird traditions, merry-making and pranks was decidedly lacking in interest and enthusiasm at the University of Missouri Saturday night.

When a scouting party brought a wagon, lawn swing or some other article to the steps of Academic Hall, the act was greeted with forced exclamations of pleasure.

One Freshman cadet posted at the Agricultural building remained faithful to his trust. With a fixed bayonet, he defied the crowd to enter the building. When he had apparently stabbed one of the students and had been hustled off amid the exclamations "Hang 'im," "Go get a rope," and other angry cries, he detected the joke played on him.

Customarily no effort is spared to do some "stunt" that is difficult, such as the burying of the large boiler in front of Academic Hall last year. Saturday night, the students were contented with half a dozen wagons, a cigar store Indian and a few other miscellaneous articles piled on the front steps of Academic Hall.

A small crowd of students started to take a small playhouse from HIT street but dropped it and run when they heard the angry tones of the owner.

The debris was cleared away Sunday morning.

"CO-EDS" TELL REAL AGES AT Y. W. C. A. PARTY

"Dance of the Goblins" Another Feature of Entertainment.

Attired in original costumes representing spinsters of uncertain ages, "co-eds" of the University of Missouri carried on a lively discussion of man at the Y. W. C. A. social Saturday evening. The discussion was ended by the appearance of a man with a wonderful machine which could, by the turning of a crank, change anyone into whatever he most wished to be. The terrible price was that one must tell her true age. They came out athletes, singers, a modern Romeo and Juliet, all young and beautiful. At last the awful penalty of giving a false age was gruesomely illustrated.

The "Dance of the Goblins" received prolonged applause when they cast Dr. Meyer's system of grading, represented by an "I," into the kettle to boil.

Other original features of the evening's entertainment were "A Scene in Read Hall Reading Room," "Negro Melodies as They Are Sung on a Georgia Plantation," and "The Kindergarten," in which young women, dressed as children, replied to the teacher's questions with witty sayings in verse.

At the close of the program, the spinsters found consolation in the barrels of cider and apples and the stacks of gingerbread and doughnuts in the second-floor corridors.

The first game of girls' basketball of the year was played Saturday morning between the Juniors and Seniors. Much interest was shown and the championship promises to be a hard fought one this year. As it was only a practice game, no score was kept.

PENCILLED ON SIDELINES AS GAME WENT FORWARD

The cheering did not sound so enthusiastic Saturday as it did at the Iowa game. This was largely caused by the different kind of football put up by the Tigers.

Among those who took the defeat hardest, was Dr. W. G. Bek, whose heart was almost broken by those Iowa touchdowns, that is if the expression of his face were to be taken as an index of his feelings.

If Driver had heard the "Ohs" that sounded as though they came from the heart of every Co-Ed on the bleachers, when he was found to be seriously injured, he would have been somewhat consoled for the kick on his head.

Between the halves, "Tommy" Monilaw, Coach Monilaw's son, and "Tubby" Graves, entertained the crowd on the bleachers, by kicking and catching a football along the sidelines. The football was almost as large as Tommy but he handled it manfully.

ST. LOUIS U. MAY PLAY IN SPOKANE

Husky Northwestern Bunch Wants a Contest With Middle-Western Team.

Special Correspondence. SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 2.—J. Houston McCroskey, manager of the football team at Washington State College, Pullman, south of here, announced it is likely that lovers of the game in Spokane will have an opportunity to see the husky eleven of Notre Dame University in action against the bunch coached by Walter M. Rheinschild. The game will be played in Spokane.

The Carlisle Indians were to play in Spokane in December, but the trip to the Northwest was cancelled by the Reds.

In addition to the game with the Hoosiers it is likely that negotiations with the St. Louis University team will again be taken up for a game in Spokane.

Mr. McCroskey believes that a game with the Notre Dame team will give the "rooters" in this part of the country an opportunity to get a better line on the plays of Middle Western and Northwestern teams, and for that reason he is giving all his attention to that team at present.

He said: "We are going to bring one of the big eastern college teams to this part of the Northwest this season, and as Spokane is the central point in the Inland Empire, the game will be played in this city, probably at Recreation park, which has facilities and accommodations for anywhere from 7,000 to 10,000 people."
