BEST SEASON OF CONCERTS

R. T. Dufford Chosen Secretary of Phi Mu Alpha.

Expressing the opinion that this will be the greatest season of concerts Phi Mu Alpha has ever undertaken to produce, Prof. George H. Sabine, president of the fraternity, told the members of the chapter at its first meeting of the year last night that the responsibility for the success of the coming programs rested as much upon the people of Columbia and the students of the University as it did upon the members of the fraternity itself.

"We enter upon this sixteenth season of Phi Mu Alpha's work with the knowledge that it will far surpass any other," he said, "and we know that our efforts to bring the best in music to Columbia will not be in vain."

R. T. Dufford was elected secretary during the business meeting that followed Professor Sabine's talk.

Plans for the opening of a large warehouse in Kansas City to serve the farmers' co-operative exchanges and elevators in this section of the state, were made at the executive committee meeting of the Missouri Farmers' Association held in Kansas City on October 2 and 3.

The capital has practically all been sold and the warehouse will be opened within the next two months.

The chairman of the committee which formulated these plans is L. J. Crawford, Atlanta, Mo. The other members are: William Hirth, Columbia; C. L. Moody, Macon; Judge W. L. Steiner, New Haven; B. G. Smutz, Brunswick; R. T. Pence, Marshall, and Howard A. Cowden, Columbia.

Farmers Should Raise More Corn.

County Unit Bill Will Improve Boone County Public Schools

According to T. J. Walker, editor of School and Community and secretary of the Better Schools Committee, the County Unit Bill will produce a surplus of $73,000 to improve the schools of Boone County. The tax rate now varies from 13 cents to 65 cents. In the co-operative system of taxation proposed by this measure, each district in Boone County would pay a tax of 31 cents on the $100 valuation. This rate would not only provide sufficient funds to maintain the schools of the county at their present standard but would provide an additional $73,000 to be used as an improvement fund.

The County Unit Bill, to be voted on November 7, creates a county school district in every county in Missouri. It establishes a County Board of Education but leaves the local districts and district boards as they now exist and defines their powers and duties. The aim and purpose of this bill is to equalize educational opportunity for the boys and girls of Missouri and to equalize taxation for the support of education among the taxpayers of the state.

According to the Seventy-first Missouri Report of Public Schools, there are eighty-one districts in Missouri that have four months of school or less. There are 698 districts that have over eight months of school. The County Unit Bill proposes to remedy this situation by making the county, instead of the district, the unit of taxation. This will mean that the poorer districts of a county will have the same opportunity for education as the wealthier districts. Even some districts having a 65 cent tax cannot afford over a four or five-month school term.

The County Unit Bill does not do away with either the local districts or the local boards. The local board is elected and kept as it is by each local school district. A County School Board is elected by the taxpayers of the county. This board will elect a county superintendent of schools, to provide for a levy not to exceed 40 cents on the $100 valuation, to enter into contracts with the teachers after the teachers have been selected by the local boards, to provide for high school instruction for all pupils living within the county district, to call elections for the increase of tax rates when such is needed and to select and provide free text books. This board shall also provide a system of free high schools throughout the county so that every child of high school age may attend such a school and still live at home. State aid to the poorer counties will still be continued.

Writing in the Missouri Farmer, William Hirth, editor, has the following to say about the County Unit Bill:

"We do not believe that education is a local school district problem. On the contrary, it is the duty of the several counties and finally of the state to see to it that all the children, whether living in town or country, shall receive such an education as will enable them to face with a measurable and equal degree of preparation the stern battles of life."

"A certain district in Saline County with an assessed valuation of $265,000 pays no school taxes whatever, while hundreds of little poor districts are compelled to assess the limit of the law. We pay county, state and federal taxes in accordance with our ability to pay. Why should we not do the same with reference to the vital problem of education upon which depends the future quality of American citizenship?"

The County Unit Bill not only has the support of the leading educators of the state, but is also endorsed by many of the leaders of the Farm Clubs of the state, the Farm Bureau, the Grange, the Missouri branch of the American Federation of Labor, the League of Women Voters, the Parent-Teachers Association, the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Missouri American Legion and many other organizations pledged to the best interests of the people.

This measure has already been adopted in twenty-three states. It was passed by the Fifty-first General Assembly of the Missouri Legislature but was held up by referendum to be submitted to the people at the regular election on November 7.

BROADWAY BEFORE 1843 WAS MUD AND WATER

Duck Boards Made Streets Passable—Wagons Were Stalled on Broadway.

Broadway before its first improvement in 1843 was little more than just a widened place on the Old Trails road. The danger of crossing Broadway then, lay not in the likelihood of getting hit by an automobile, but in the extremely good chance of getting stuck in the mud. There was no paving then on the street, no sidewalks, either of brick, or stone; just a few duck boards served to make the street passable. An old report says that during times of protracted rain, wagons loaded with firewood and country produce would get completely stalled on Broadway, especially in that portion of the street embraced in the depression which then existed between Eighth and Ninth streets.

When the University opened in 1843, a few enterprising citizens, under the leadership of Dr. Wm. Jewell, chairman of the town trustees, undertook to bring about the paving of Broadway and the establishing of footways along the street from Water street on Flat Branch to Eleventh street, then the eastern limits of the town.

The committee on the improvement work were subject to a barrage of criticism. The enterprise, on account of its cost and the alleged high taxes which would be necessary to complete it, produced the wildest excitement among a portion of the townspeople, resulting, in some instances, in the estrangement of personal friendships. But the work went on regardless of all this, and the first improvement of Columbia streets was soon successfully consummated.

FARM BULLETIN IS ISSUED

State Board of Agriculture Makes Report on Crops.

"Missouri Farm Facts and Figures" is a new publication, issued by the Missouri State Board of Agriculture. The bulletin was written by E. A. Logan, agricultural statistician of the United States Department of Agriculture and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture.

A report by counties of the farm crops and products for Missouri during the year 1921 and from January to July, 1922, is given in the publication, which says total value of Missouri's field, orchard and garden crops of 1921 is $200,134,981 against $371,898,265 in 1920. This is a reduction of $17,763,284 or a loss of 40 per cent in value.

There was a decrease in acreage of the principal crops. The bulletin says that the land not now in field crops, has been returned to pasture in most sections.

The July estimates of Missouri's farm crops contained in the report, shows the corn crop of 1922 as 82 per cent normal. Wheat is 79 per cent normal, and oats are only 50 per cent. The fruit crop is the best in recent years. The bulletin says the agricultural outlook is brighter, and the farm faith has been greatly strengthened in the last few months.
