SHALL WE BUILD THE BRIDGE?

The Tribune presents on this page a letter from Mr. Pressley Hopper in opposition to the bond issue for the construction of a bridge over the drainage ditches.

It has been more than half a century since the railroad bonds were voted, and since that time Cape Girardeau has grown from a coal oil lamp village into a city with electric lights and all modern conveniences.

The farmer of today sells one bushel of wheat for the price of a calf back in those days. Conditions have changed materially since then.

If we do not bridge the Rock Road Levee, Cape Girardeau will go back; business in this city, no matter what it would be, would be ruined.

Cape Girardeau's future is bright if it must divorce itself from the patronage of the people who live in the counties below us.

Why He Opposes Bond Issue.

THE BOND ISSUE. To the Editor of The Tribune: I am writing you to oppose to put a debt of $200,000 on the township of Cape Girardeau to build bridges across the Drainage ditch and this to help out the business of Cape Girardeau.

The Scott County road was a toll road once and kept up by the toll and at the instance of the business men of Cape Girardeau was taken away from the owners without paying the owners a cent.

All this is clear enough. But the question I want to ask: why should the farmers of Cape Girardeau township and the poor people who own a piece of land and working the soil be taxed to build bridges over this drain ditch? That is the question. The county is building bridges up on Appleton and Levee at Allenville. Under the law the county takes care of the bridges and if the township taxpayers build the bridges across the drainage ditch the whole county will have the advantage of the work.

I say let the whole county bear the expense of building these bridges and be taxed for it.

Cape Girardeau township just got through paying a railroad tax and it took fifty years to pay that $150,000 railroad subscription. Do the people of this township and city want this kind of a done again and have the whole county and country laugh at us?

In a word I am against taxing the farmers of the township for the benefit of a few business men, even if the poor lot owners of Cape Girardeau City are willing to be skinned again by taxation for the benefit of a few.

Unless the people of the city and township act promptly they will find to their sorrow that they have been made the goats again.

PRESSLEY HOPPER.

Train Women in Poise and Judgment for Better Government of World

By MRS. WILLIAM GRANT BROWN, President of Michigan Federation of Clubs

I would not have woman usurp man's place in world affairs, but I would have her reach an equal footing with him. I do not believe the right to govern should be entrusted solely to man or entirely to woman.

Woman's entrance into public life is not so objectionable as it once was because what she is doing is commendable work. She has become accustomed to seeing herself in the public eye.

Woman's entrance into public life I believe a woman should have some sort of training to fit her for those trials and responsibilities with which she intends to burden herself.

I would first be sure she was fitted for her work in whatever sphere she enters, and I would be sure of her integrity and honesty and truthfulness.

TRANSPORTATION OF FARM PRODUCTS MADE QUICKLY AND CHEAPLY BY MOTORS

MOTORTRUCK USED FOR CARRYING MILK.

In fruit and truck growing and in dairying the motortruck has peculiar advantages. Perishable products deteriorate rapidly with handling and time. Rail shipments are subject to many and long delays, particularly now when there is such freight congestion and when preference is given by the carriers to munitions and other high-freight-rate shipments.

There are many places in the country within fifty miles of great markets where farm produce is allowed to rot on the ground or is fed to live stock, because it does not pay the farmer to ship it, the Christian Herald states.

PROBLEM OF FUEL MUST BE SOLVED

Improved Methods of Carburetion Must Be Provided by Manufacturers.

EXHAUST-HEATED MANIFOLD

Three Separate but Connecting Jackets Furnish Three Different Degrees of Heat at Three Different Points—Shut Off in Summer.

Although the fear that the United States faces a gasoline famine has been proven unfounded by statistics on petroleum supply and demand, thousands of American motorists still have a fuel problem with which to contend.

Statistics compiled by the Society of Automotive Engineers show that the average car now travels only twelve miles to the gallon, but the authorities maintain that this average can be almost doubled if automobile engineers will furnish better means of carbureting the heavier and less volatile grades of fuel now being produced by the refiners.

An inspection of automobiles, however, is exceedingly encouraging. A solution of the problem apparently has been found in devices used on several makes of cars, among which is an exhaust-heated manifold consisting of three separate but connecting jackets that furnish three different degrees of heat at three different points.

The first jacket incloses the branch of the manifold, heating the gasoline at the point of immediate distribution to the cylinders and taking care of any condensation. The second is around the throttle chamber, where it prevents condensation around the throttle valve at low throttles. The third is located at the low speed throat of the carburetor, insuring vaporization at low speeds.

In warm weather, when efficient carburetion often ceases to be a problem, the heat can be shut off by turning a butterfly valve located at the exhaust connection of the manifold jacket. In addition there is another butterfly valve at the connection of the carburetor exhaust jacket, which is linked to the throttle valve and automatically shuts off the heat when the throttle is wide open.

Headlights in Good Focus. Instructions Given for Proper Adjustment of Lights and for Getting Best Use of Them.

If your headlights are not in proper focus you are not getting the best use from them. Some light up the sides of the road more than the center, and some light up the road too far ahead.

It is generally understood nowadays that wheels which are out of alignment cause undue tire wear. Few owners, however, realize that rims which are loose or otherwise improperly mounted will have the same effect of causing excessively rapid treadwear.

AUTOIST MUST WATCH LEAKS

It Will Pay Car Owner to Make Thorough Examination at Least Every Three Months.

There are so many places about the motor where leaks are likely to develop that it will pay the car owner to go over the mechanism once in three months with this in mind. Frequent offenders are the spark plugs and priming cups. Pour a little oil around the lower parts of these while the engine is running. If there is a leak bubbles in the oil will betray it.

BLOWOUTS AND PUNCTURES

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a spring wheel, invented by E. G. Hill of Spokane Wash., says:

The object of the invention is to provide a wheel which will give the resiliency of a pneumatic tire without the danger of blowouts and punctures.

Side View of the Wheel.

In use when the hub moves eccentrically of the wheel the arms of the spokes at one side of the hub will move outwardly, lengthening the short axis of the ellipse, while those at the other side will move toward each other, shortening the short axis, and the spokes both above and below, and at the sides, will assist in the cushioning movement of the hub with respect to the rim.

LOOSE RIM CAUSES TROUBLE

Generally Makes Its Presence Known by Squeaking Sound When Out of Alignment.

It is generally understood nowadays that wheels which are out of alignment cause undue tire wear. Few owners, however, realize that rims which are loose or otherwise improperly mounted will have the same effect of causing excessively rapid treadwear.
