ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

RAISING THE DRAFT LIMIT.

Secretary Baker has withdrawn his opposition to the raising of the draft limit. Provost Marshal General Crowder has wanted the ages changed for some time, but has refrained from advocating it from deference to his chief. However, his views have become known. Much mulling over of the question has been going on in Washington, both in the departments and among the members of congress, especially the military committee. A bill fixing the draft ages from 18 to 45 is now before the senate military affairs committee and is likely soon to be reported favorably. There are several reasons for this change in age. In the first place it has come generally to be accepted that the proper size of the army next year should be 5,000,000 men and that 4,000,000 of these should be called this year. There are not enough men in class one, including the recent registrants, to yield this number, and unless the draft age is changed it will be necessary to invade the deferred classes. All that can be taken from those classes without real hardship are being taken now by the reclassification which is in progress.

Men of family and with dependents and men required in essential industries should not be compelled to go while the older men physically fit are exempt from conscription. That is the chief argument for raising the age. Another reason is that in our conscription exchange with our allies, our age limit should be practically the same as theirs, to avoid inequalities and complications. These two reasons are sufficient for the raising of the age to 45 years or even higher, but the lowering of the limit to 18 is not so easily justified. It is true that many boys are developed enough to make good soldiers at that age, but all are not. A large proportion of our volunteers are under 21 years. They make the finest kind of soldiers when they volunteer and pass the required physical examination. But compulsory service of those so young is quite another matter.

Lowering the age to 20 would give the physically most mature of these and add 750,000 men. That is the usual age of military service in countries having the universal system. Keeping track of the young men is necessary. Now it is impossible to tell whether a young man should be registered or not. If we required every young man to register when he reaches his eighteenth birthday, and automatically to be called to service when he reaches his twentieth birthday, no young man would be in the doubtful class. This would automatically eliminate the slackers, because every young man who looked old enough to be in the service would be registered and subject to call as soon as he reached the legal age. It is a matter in which we should be more forehanded than we now are.

Build Huge Wooden Ships

Washington, June 27.—The largest wooden ship ever built is to be turned out by the Emergency Fleet Corporation. It will be a new model, 5,000 ton type, standardized for service by both the American Bureau of Shipping and Lloyd's. L. C. Prior, Naval Architect, has announced details of the new design.

It was decided that the 2,600 ton boat was too small a unit for the needs of the Shipping Board. Naval architects started to adapt the Daugherty design of a 4,700 ton ship to a 5,000 ton ship. These plans were originally donated to the Emergency Fleet Corporation through the generosity of Mr. A. A. Daugherty, president of the National Shipbuilding Co., Orange, Tex.

Numerous changes in designs were, however, to be advisable in the larger ships.

The project to build a wooden ship of this size is without precedent in the history of shipbuilding and it was Mr. Schwab's wish that the best talent in the world of shipping be consulted. A consultation of naval architects and shipbuilders was held and the details of the new craft were decided upon. The design now is under way in the Emergency Fleet Corporation's offices and will be completed within a short time. Meanwhile, the Corporation is continuing to let contracts for the Ferris type to keep the wood yards busy.

In preparing the new design, Mr. Prior says, all the "grievances" of the Ferris type are to be avoided, if possible. Among these so-called grievances is the difficulty of obtaining material. The machinery of the Ferris type is to be utilized, however, in the new ship, and many of the details and the fittings on the former will be employed on the larger design to facilitate construction.

It has been decided to use the majority of the wood ships in the coastwise trade and to get the maximum of carrying capacity it is planned to construct the new vessels so that they may be able to tow barges. In this connection it is announced that plans are being completed for the building of 2,600 ton towing barges. Mr. Ferris, under contract with the Emergency Fleet Corporation, is developing the details of a design of barge prepared by the Kelly-Spear Company of Bath, Me.

Plans for the new steel steamers contemplate the purchase of 100 electrical propelling sets, suitable for the large size cargo steamers, and of the type satisfactory in naval vessels.

MONEY IN EGGS.

Eggs are not bankable, but the money from their sale is. This money is yours for the effort. How do you treat the hen that lays the Golden Eggs? B. A. Thomas' Poultry Remedy will keep the poultry in good condition and increase the yield in eggs. We guarantee this and refund your money if not satisfied.—F. F. BRAUN & BROS.

This is an innovation for merchant ship construction. The experience of the naval vessels, however, indicate a remarkable economy and dependable action from electrical propelling machinery. The ease of manipulation that is a feature of this mechanism also is an attraction, it being said that running an electrical propeller ship is not much more difficult than running a trolley car.

The problem of obtaining men to act as electrical engineers on the vessels has been solved, it is believed, by the decision to ask for the services of men in charge of big power plants throughout the country. As soon as these men get their sea legs they will be qualified to take charge of the electrical apparatus on the new ships.

ASKS OFFICERS NOT TO CRITIC ISEPRESS

Directs Men Under His Jurisdiction to Refrain From Criticism of Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Baker has directed that officials connected with departments of the government under his jurisdiction must refrain from criticizing in their official capacity any newspaper or group of newspapers.

His action resulted in the resignation of Dr. James A. B. Scherer of Pasadena, Cal., field chief agent of the state councils section of the Council of National Defense, who was said to have criticized the attitude of the Hearst newspapers toward the war.

"Some one," said Mr. Baker's statement, "I believe a representative of one of the Hearst papers, had told me that a representative of the Council of National Defense was making addresses and spending a lot of his time criticizing in harsh terms the Hearst newspapers. I told Mr. Gifford, director of the Defense Council, that I thought nobody who was officially representing the government ought to be criticizing any newspaper. I don't care whether it is Hearst's papers or anybody's else, and that while I haven't the slightest desire to prevent any man expressing his individual opinion upon any newspaper, I didn't think that any man, as a representative of the government, ought to be criticizing any newspaper."

Secretary Baker is also chairman of the Council of National Defense.
