Hyde Issues Proclamation.

Governor Arthur M. Hyde, acting in conjunction with President Harding, issued a Thanksgiving proclamation setting apart Thursday, November 30th, as Thanksgiving day and calling upon all Missourians "to repair to their altars of worship and there render thanks to Almighty God for His outlasting bounty."

The proclamation follows: "Whereas, by the reverent custom of our forefathers one day in each year has been set apart for and dedicated to public acknowledgment and thanks giving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a people and;

"Whereas, the President of the United States, Warren G. Harding, has officially designated and set apart Thursday, November 30th as a day of Thanksgiving and devotion for the year 1922, and

"Whereas, in common with the people of the other states of the union, the people of this state have been blessed with bountiful crops, with richness of natural resources and wealth of material possessions. During the past year no war has disturbed us. No pestilence has afflicted us. No national disaster has overwhelmed us. Peace and plenty surround us. It is, therefore, appropriate that for one day we lay aside our daily tasks, humbly and reverently to give thanks to our Creator and Supreme Ruler for that He has showered upon us blessings and served us as a people;

"Now, therefore, I, Arthur M. Hyde, governor of the state of Missouri, acting in conjunction with the president of the United States, do hereby set aside Thursday, November 30th 1922 as Thanksgiving day, and I earnestly urge the people of the state of Missouri to repair to their altars of worship and there render thanks to Almighty God for His outlasting bounty. It is also appropriate, that, having rendered thanks for our material blessings and possessions, each of us should give thought to the condition of unrest and of class consciousness, which is undoubtedly growing among our people and highly resolve that through the re-generation of our own hearts we shall diligently and patriotically labor during the ensuing year for a broader justice and fraternity among all the citizens of our state and nation.

(Signed) Arthur M. Hyde, governor.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

OF YE OLD TYME

Humorous Description of Thanksgiving Celebration

Some Differences Between the Occurrences of the Day Then and the Festivities of Today.

From picking the stubble out of a wild turkey to killing the starting out of a wild football player. Thanksgiving day observance has undergone a decided change, even within the ken of the present writer, who at that, is quite old enough to gain a permanent home among the mummies at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Roy K. Alouin writes in the New York Evening Mail. There were days away back in Puritan times when people had a lot to be thankful for and enough sense to be thankful for it. It is still true that a portion of our great metropolitan population find time to render thanks in the old-fashioned style, but the rah-rah Thanksgiving has been with us some twenty years now, and it seems to be gaining momentum.

In the old days they used to leave a platter strewn with the bones of wild turkey, and now it is the general custom to leave the griddle strewn with arms, legs, ears and other more or less important impediments.

The history of a Thanksgiving day used to be set down by the church clerk and now it is set down in fact by the sporting writer, all of which goes to show that civilization is moving, though we can't always decide which way.

Ye Old Tyms Thanksgiving. "Know ye all men by these presents: That I, Makepeace Wharburton, governor, do nominate Thursday, ye twenty-fifth of November, to be a day of thanksgiving and a day of prayer in remembrance of the great blessings we have received during the past year. All and sundry of the population are ordered to attend service and profoundly render thank for peace and prosperity or pay penalty on the pillory, the ducking stool or the stocks."

MAKEPEACE WHARBURTON, "Governor."

Those were the days of real Thanksgiving. Peleg Prouty did not have to go to a butcher shop and batter his soul, his house and lot and his food for a turkey. He kissed his wife, Prudence, and the kids good-by for maybe the last time, and set forth for a wild turkey. He carried over his shoulder an 85-pound blunderbuss with a spunkier attachment on the muzzle which would scatter shot over a fair-sized township and would kick Peleg for a goal when it went off. If the Indians got a head on him first it was good night turkey, and if he got a head on them first the spunkier attachment enabled him to put the raspberry on eight or ten of them at once.

If Peleg got home all right with the wild turkey he had a Thanksgiving. If he didn't he had a funeral.

The family would go to church in the morning and arrive there with several arrows sticking through their clothes and hats, and after good old Elder Hudnutt had preached for four hours and a half and finally stopped the congregation had something to be thankful for.

When the feast was ready, Peleg his wife, Prudence, and the children, Steadfast, Charity, Prosper, Faith, Cronwell and Whetstone, seated themselves about the table, the room would suddenly fill with smoke for the reason that there would be an Indian sitting on the chimney top trying to smoke them out and glum the turkey and Peleg's wagon of freewater.

Indians Took Part.

Peleg would nonchalantly wander over to the fireplace and throw a handful of gunpowder into it and the Indian would make a dash for the creek near by, angrily pursued by his burning breechcloth.

Peleg would return to the feast and say, "For what we are about to receive let us be truly thankful." And he received it quickly. A noble redman poked his arm through the window and firmly picked Peleg on the bean with a tommyhawk. Being a hard-headed Puritan, Peleg would go on with his dinner after throwing the tommyhawk back over his shoulder and catching Mr. Shinnecock just below the Adam's apple.

The afternoon was given over to meditation and reflection.

Celebration of Today.

But nowadays they gather in some jazz restaurant and the host says: "For what we haven't had during the past year under the Volstead act, let us be—well, anyhow, something like that. The waiter does not reach through the window and tap him with a tommyhawk, but he hits him for a $56.75 check and a $10 tip.

And instead of spending the afternoon in meditation and prayer, as Peleg did, his great-great-great-great-grandson sits in a grandstand with 15,000 other heretics and they yell:

"Freshwater's got the ball!"

"Freshwater, Freshwater, zip, boom, bah! Freshwater, Freshwater, rah, rah, rah!"

"Go it, Cornsilk! Now, boys, the Cornsilk locomotive!"

"Rah-rah-rah-rah-rah-rah—Cornsilk, Cornsilk—hip, hip, hip, hip, hoorah!"

And after the game Peleg's descendant accompanies a young flapper to a hotel for dinner, where he gets a piece of turkey through which he can read the name of the cafe and make out its coat-of-arms in the center of the plate and calls it a feed.

The only folks funnier than the old ones are the new ones.

Best of Friends Must Part

As somebody said. Two members of the group do not seem to be very much distressed over the adieu.

Day's Real Meaning.

Thanksgiving is the time of aspiration and anticipation rather than of fruition and favor alone—a holiday of grateful hope.

A Wish

"I have taken Cardui for run-down, worn-out condition, nervousness and sleeplessness, and I was weak, too," says Mrs. Silvie Estes, of Jennings, Okla. "Cardui did me just lots of good—so much that I gave it to my daughter. She complained of a soreness in her sides and back. She took three bottles of and her condition was much better.

"We have lived here, near Jennings, for 26 years, and now we have our own home in town. I have had to work pretty hard, as this country wasn't built up, and it made it hard for us.

"I WISH I could tell weak women of Cardui—the medicine that helped give me the strength to go on and do my work."

In Sad and Loving Memory

Of Laura Wilson who departed this life to be with Jesus, November 12, 1921. She was loving and kind to all she met. She has gone to enter the pearly gates. Gone, to be with us no more, where the savior smiles a welcome, and bid her enter the open door. We miss her voice so sweet and kind, and the smile she ever wore, tis a comfort to know she is waiting for us upon the golden shore. Sadly missed by papa and mamma.
