

Cities Are Interested in North Dakota Boys

Minneapolis, Jan. 30.—Every mail was being watched today by members of the First North Dakota regiment, which early Sunday arrived at Fort Snelling, for the majority of the men were anxious to know what committees in their home towns have been doing to get positions for them.

The guardsmen said that earlier communications from the committees reported jobs were being found for the men, and that some business firms that employed guardsmen have signified their willingness to take them back.

The Dakota militia men claim that their organization was one of the best equipped and trained on the border. When they arrived at Mercedes, where they were stationed, they had everything necessary for a long stay except a place to build their camp. Except on one occasion, when they ate "hard-tack" and canned beef for 12 days, the food, they said, was good.

A meeting of the officers of the regiment was held today to plan the mustering out, which will be in a week or ten days.

Company D boasts the only wildcat wrestler in the country. He is Smith Taylor, a student at the University of North Dakota, who defeated all human aspirants at Mercedes. Then he captured a wild cat which attacked him while he was doing guard duty at night. The animal is now the company's mascot.

The men, like Minnesota troops, are almost unanimous in the belief that the border service has sounded the death knell of the present national guard system. They declare themselves in favor of compulsory training, and denounce a system "that took men away from their jobs while others remained at home."

The North Dakota legislature Saturday appropriated $10,000 for the relief of returning guardsmen who will find themselves without jobs. A commission will visit Fort Snelling to interview the soldiers.

Marshalltown (Iowa) Daily Republican. Several hundred khaki-clad troopers, swarming up and down the streets of the city this morning, attracted much attention, and created a temporary boom in trade for many merchants. The men constituted the entire First regiment of North Dakota troops, divided into three battalions, and running in two special trains of about 21 cars each.

The first battalion, in charge of Capt. B. C. Boyd, arrived over the M. & St. L. from Moberly about 9:30, and remained here for over an hour, while the horses were watered, and the men given a chance to stretch their legs uptown.

The men descended upon the main portion of the city in a body, many of them marching up town, and then having a generally hilarious time. A snow ball fight was staged at the corner of Main street and First avenue, and a number of sleds were "commandeered" by the soldiers, who rode up and down Main street, whooping and yelling. Tobacco dealers had a rush of business, and souvenir post card stores were swamped.

The men rode in tourist cars, while behind them came the horses, and then a long string of flat cars, loaded with army wagons, which looked as if they had seen hard usage. The troops have been stationed at Mercedes and Llanos, Tex., towns about three miles apart, and are now on their way to Ft. Snelling where they will be mustered out and then return to their homes. There were 1,100 men in the two trains, which follow each other closely into this city.

Officers who were on the second train were guests of the Marshalltown club for lunch, after which they spoke briefly of troop life on the border. The officers with the second train were Major Dana Wright, of James town; Capt. N. McLean, of Kenmare; and Lieut. Deane Wiley, of Dickinson. The regiment was under the command of Colonel John Fraire, formerly lieutenant governor of North Dakota.

KATHRYN SHIPPERS' ASSOCIATION HAD GOOD YEAR

Kathryn Recorder: County Agent James, of Valley City, attended the annual meeting of the Kathryn Shippers' of a breeders' association as an adjunct to the present shippers' association. In this connection he laid great stress on the importance of co-operation in the community to obtain the best results. He advised the members of the association to decide on some particular breed of cattle, beef or dairy. Those who might prefer the dairy breed to decide on some breed, Holstein or other dairy breed, form an association of their own and improve their herds by a careful selection of their best cows, then several groups of three farmers purchase a good sire of the particular breed which they favored and use him as long as is considered practicable and then exchange with some other group, who are raising the same breed. Mr. James advised the association to consider the raising of sheep. Below we give a brief summary of the financial condition of the association on Jan. 1, 1917:

Soo Kills Laborer Near Lucca Sunday

Fargo, Jan. 30.—The dismembered and terribly mangled body of a Polish laborer, believed to be John Ewonick, Jamestown, from a notebook and papers found on his person, was found on the Soo tracks, six miles south of Lucca, in Cass county, Sunday afternoon. The authorities believe that the man was attempting to beat his way, and in some manner fell under the wheels. The body was cut in 12 pieces.

The remains were shipped to Fargo last night by Dr. Samuel Mitchell of Mapleton, county coroner, and are now in charge of B. F. Wasem, county undertaker, pending disposition.

County authorities are today attempting to definitely establish the man's identity.

An employment slip found on the body shows that the man obtained work as a snow shoveler for the Great Northern company at Glasgow, Mont., from the Fedder's Brothers employment agency on Marquette avenue in Minneapolis on Dec. 31, 1916, and a discharge slip showed that he had worked 180 hours on the job.

The body is that of a man about 35 to 40 years of age, but from its condition it is impossible to obtain any tangible description.

First Warden of Pen Is Dead at Bismarck

Bismarck, Jan. 30.—Daniel R. Williams, one of the earliest of Burleigh county's pioneers, passed away suddenly on Monday afternoon, at the home of his brother, Gen. E. A. Williams, death being due to heart failure. While his health during the past year had not been of the best, yet it was not such as to give any indication that the end was so near.

Daniel R. Williams was born in Mystic, Conn., May 10, 1846, and came with his parents to Werner, Wis., in 1861, where they resided for about a year, later removing to Freeport, Ill. In 1869, deciding to strike out for himself, he left home, and came to Yankton, then Dakota territory.

In 1871 Judge Brookings of the United States federal court at Yankton, appointed Mr. Williams special administrator of the estate of Charles Reider, who had formerly operated a wood yard at Painted Woods and had been killed the fall before in a dispute with one of his employees. In settling up the estate it was necessary for Mr. Williams to come to Painted Woods, and it was on this first trip that he became acquainted with Joe Dietrich, Joe Taylor and W. H. Mercer, who then resided near Painted Woods.

Very much impressed with the country and infatuated with the wild and adventurous life existing here at that time, he returned to Yankton, settled up the estate, and the following spring left Yankton overland for Painted Woods. He established a hunting camp and wood yard on the banks of the Missouri, furnishing wood to the steamboats operating on the river at that time.

In 1873 Burleigh county was organized and Mr. Williams was appointed the first register of deeds by the board of county commissioners. Two years later in a closely contested election, in which there were four or five candidates, he was defeated.

Gold having been discovered in the Black Hills he joined a party of Bismarck people and left for South Dakota settling at the point where Rapid City is now located. Spending about two years in this vicinity in an unsuccessful quest for gold he returned to his former home in Illinois, and three years later he again came out to North Dakota and settled at what was formerly Williamsport, Emmons county. Being one of the organizers of Emmons county, he was appointed register of deeds when that county was organized.

In 1883 the territorial legislature established the penitentiary at Bismarck, and Mr. Williams was chosen by the board of directors as the first warden. He had charge of the building of the institution for about eight years, when he was succeeded by Clark Haggart. It was while serving in this position that he met and married Mrs. Ruth Gibbs at Williamsport, in 1885.

At the conclusion of his term as warden of the penitentiary, Mr. and Mrs. Williams removed to Chicago, where he engaged in the real estate business. He had lived on the frontier too long, however, to be satisfied with the settled life of Chicago, and four years later he returned to North Dakota and established a cattle ranch on Brush lake in McLean county.

Being well along in years and desiring to spend the latter years of his life in peace and quiet, he several years later purchased a tract of land at the site of his first camp on the banks of the Missouri near Painted Woods, and removed with his wife from McLean to Burleigh county, where he has lived up until a few weeks before his death.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Edward Morgan and Mrs. Walter G. Ford, of Freeport, Ill., and his brother, Gen. E. A. Williams of this city, his wife having died in 1909.

Funeral services will be conducted in the home of Gen. E. A. Williams Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Bruce E. Jackson of the Baptist church. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

FAIL TO SEE APPRECIATION WEEK IN ITS TRUE LIGHT

Sherwood, Jan. 30.—Although last week was appreciation week in North Dakota, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hain, living six miles southwest of here, fail to see it in that light. Last fall fire destroyed all their household goods and the residence. Last week some one broke into the granary on the farm and took about 150 bushels of wheat. Mr. Hain had sold some of it at $1.71 a bushel.

Report Urges Better Prepared Teachers

Raising the standard for admission to that of high school graduation, lengthening the course to two and possibly three years, eliminating special courses and laying more stress on the education of teachers for rural schools are some of the recommendations concerning the Normal School made by the survey commission in its report, copies of which were received here some days ago.

The survey commission, students will remember, was provided for by the last legislative session, through the action of the Board of Regents, U. S. Commissioner of Education, Hon. P. P. Claxton was secured to direct the survey. Assisting Dr. Claxton were Dr. E. B. Craighead, former president of the University of Montana; Dr. William T. Bawden, specialist in industrial education, Washington; and Prof. Lotus D. Coffman, University of Minnesota.

"Since more than four-fifths of the children of North Dakota live in the open country," says the commission in its summary of recommendations, "and only one-tenth live in places of 2,500 or more, all Normal schools should, without neglecting the training of teachers for city schools, make it their chief purpose to prepare teachers for rural schools. Their courses of study and their practice and observation schools should be reorganized as may be necessary for this purpose. It should be recognized that teachers for the elementary rural schools need no less education, professional knowledge and skill, maturity and native ability than teachers of schools of the same grade in urban communities.

"The standard of admission to the Normal schools should be gradually raised to graduation from a standard high school of four years or its equivalent, or of six years when the high school is preceded by only six years of elementary schooling. It is recommended that this be done by requiring one year of high school work for admission in 1918, two years in 1919, three years in 1920, and four years in 1923 and thereafter.

"For the sake of teachers of low grade of preparation already employed in the school of the State, the summer session of the Normal schools should continue to admit persons who have less preparation than is required at any given time for admission to regular classes in the school except those who have already been employed as teachers."

The commission also recommends that high school graduates who have completed two years in the Normal school shall be granted a Normal school certificate, and for the completion of three years a diploma. It also recommends that the state provide a minimum salary for the teachers who hold a certificate and a larger minimum for those who hold a diploma.

Space forbids a further report of the recommendations made, but further details of the Survey report will be published in the Budget from time to time on the assumption that prospective teachers are interested in the views of experts on the situation.

VERY PRETTY CEREMONY AT SIGNING OF SUFFRAGE BILLS

Bismarck Tribune: The capitol teemed with visiting ladies, many coming here expressly to see the signing of the suffrage bills. Mandan and many other nearby towns were well represented. Senator A. T. K. Kraabel, of the senate, and Speaker Hoard R. Wood, of the house, signed the bills in the presence of an immense gathering. President Kraabel, after signing the bill, presented the pen to Mrs. Elizabeth Preston-Anderson, state president of the W. C. T. U. The pen was one typical of the cause for which Mrs. Anderson works, the W. C. T. U. It had a white quill handle.

After Speaker Wood had signed the bill he presented the pen to Mrs. Grace Clendenning, president of the state Votes for Women league. This pen had a yellow quill handle.

Mrs. Grace Clendenning, president of the state Votes for Women league, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston-Anderson, state president of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary Darrow-O'Neil, composed the committee who took the two bills for suffrage to Governor Lynn T. Frazier's office for his signature. After the governor had signed the bills the pen was presented to Mrs. Weible. Three organizations were represented in the committee, the W. C. T. U., Votes for Women league, and the Congressional Union. During the signing of the bills by the governor a photograph was taken.

AMERICAN LIVESTOCK WORTH MILLIONS OVER A YEAR AGO

Washington, Jan. 31.—Livestock on the farms and ranches of the American farmer is worth to him today—as a result of the high cost of living—11 per cent more than it was worth one year ago, according to recent estimates by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

Livestock valued at $6,920,670,000 the beginning of last year, is now estimated to be worth $6,685,200,000—an increase of $664,350,000.

For his cattle the farmer this winter will receive just $2.35 more per head than he received last winter. Likewise for his sheep he will receive $1.97 per head more. His hogs will bring him $3.33 more per hog.

Service animals—horses and mules—are worth to him today, respectively, $1.34 and $4.49 more than twelve months ago.

Even the lowly milch cow is greatly enhanced in value to her owner, both as to her market price and her value as a producer.
